Violence Slackens, But No Peace Yet

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Patrols of National Guardsmen swept lawless mobs from their path today in sweeps through a Negro section wracked by four days rioting. Violence slackened, but peace was not restored.

Additional troops were ordered into the litter-strewn, fire-ravaged streets where 17 persons died in the worst racially-triggered riots of the nation's recent history.

Dawn of another hot day—sixth straight in a Los Angeles heat wave—showed the extent of damage wreaked by the night's rioting:

Fire officials estimate $100 million in fire losses. Whole blocks of buildings have been burned to the ground. At one time 125 major fires burned out of control.

STORES LOOTED

Five hundred stores have been looted. Many were burned.

Jails were filled to overflowing. More than 600 persons have been arrested.

The dead were mostly victims of police riot guns. One Negro was shot by National Guard riflemen as he sniped at a formation advancing through the riot center. Another was killed when he drove into a National Guard roadblock.

DEATH BREAKDOWN

The breakdown of dead: One fireman killed by a falling wall; one sheriff's deputy shot by looters; one white man killed, possibly by rioters; 12 Negroes slain. All except the firemen were shot to death. Police said most of the dead were looters who ran when trapped.

Gov. Edmund G. Brown of California, hurrying home from an interrupted vacation in Greece, told newsmen in Rome:

"From here it is awfully hard to direct a war. That's what this is. It is mob rule at its worst. I cannot understand it. Relations between different races have always been excellent in California."

At Johnson City, Tex., President Johnson denounced today "killings, rioting, and looting" and offered Governor Brown any possible federal assistance in the Los Angeles situation.

Johnson described the events of the past two days in Los Angeles as "tragic and shocking." He said, "We are deeply committed to the fulfillment of every American's constitutional rights."

"Rights will not be won through violence," he added.

He urged every person in a position of leadership "to make every effort to restore order in

Uneasy Peace After Negro Fire-Bombings

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (UPI)—Carloads of Negroes rolled through the streets and a dozen picketed police headquarters today as an uneasy peace followed the fire - bombing of two white-owned stores.

Negro youths smashed the windows of two stores in the predominantly Negro Winchester Square area late last night, hurled jugs of gasoline inside stores and set the buildings ablaze with flaming railroad torches.

The two fires were set only a few hours after white-helmeted police arrested 23 civil rights demonstrators on the steps of City Hall, a mile and a half away.

Those arrested, about two-thirds of them Negroes, were charged with trespassing, breach of peace and, in two instances, drunkenness.

Police credited a severe thunderstorm, which drenched the city for almost two hours, with averting — or at least postponing — a large - scale racial disturbance.

Civil rights leaders met at a Negro church and planned to lead a new march on City Hall, but the rain apparently forestalled renewed demonstrations. It was not known whether the demonstrators would try again today to camp out on the City Hall steps.

Police Chief John F. Lyons ordered the City Hall arrests late yesterday after the demonstrators refused to call off a round - the - clock "camp out' protesting alleged police brutality.

CHICAGO AREA

Racial Outbreak Is Under Control

CHICAGO (AP)—The Chicago area's worst racial outbreak in a dozen years was brought under control early today by more than 150 policemen. Officials arranged quick meetings with Negro business, civic and civil rights leaders in an attempt to prevent further violence.

Policemen engaged in a wild battle with several hundred Negroes in a West Side area for more than seven hours, in the second straight night of violence.

Eighteen policemen and 47 civilians—most of them Negroes—were injured in the latest outbreak, mostly by flying bottles, bricks and stones.

At least 105 persons were arrested. Numerous store windows were smashed and merchandise looted.

Fire trucks, responding to false alarms, criss-crossed the area with sirens screaming.

Albert Raby, a leader in the recent civil rights demonstrations in Chicago, hurried back from a meeting in Birmingham, Ala., to make a personal appeal for an end of rioting.

Raby called off a scheduled demonstration in the South Side neighborhood of Mayor Richard J. Daley so police assigned to the marchers would be free to work in the riot area.

Police said the racial outbreak was the most violent since a racial strike of 1952 in suburban Cicero when then Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson called out the National Guard.

Police and FBI agents on the scene as observers were checking to determine whether Communist elements were attempting to incite more violence.

Leaflets found near the scene read in part:

"The cops and the Daley machine had this coming. The people are in the right, the cops in the wrong. After years of frameups, brutalities, and intimidations the black people are throwing off control of the same rulers who are making war on people throughout the world—in Viet Nam, the Dominican Republic, and the Congo."

2,000 More Marines Land To Aid Viet Nam Fighting

SAIGON, Viet Nam (UPI)—Two thousand U.S. Marines went ashore today at Chu Lai airbase, 350 miles north of Saigon, increasing total American military strength in South Viet Nam to just under 85,000 men.

In the air, Guam-based B52 bombers blasted a suspected Communist troop concentration in the Ba Long Valley, 50 miles northwest of Chu Lai. The predawn raid was the ninth such attack the massive 8-jet bombers have carried out against Red targets in South Viet Nam.

Meanwhile, U.S. warplanes continued their raids on North Viet Nam where Communist small arms and conventional anti-aircraft fire brought down five Navy aircraft yesterday. It was the worst single day for the Navy jets since they started their raids against the north.

A U.S. military spokesman said that a Marine regimental headquarters and a battalion of the regiment started coming ashore at Chu Lai just before noon.

The other two battalions of the regiment are expected to land in Viet Nam in the near future.

Marine forces in the Da Nang area carried out what is believed to be the first night helicopter assault by U. S. troops in Viet Nam, an American military spokesman reported.

The Marines conducted a sweep of Viet Cong positions near the village of Pho Nan. They killed one guerrilla and picked up 30 suspects for questioning.

The spokesman said more than 54 sorties were flown by U.S. air force and Navy planes against trucks, bridges, barracks and storage areas in North Viet Nam.

More than 40 Communist guerrillas were killed in other air srikes, on Red positions in South Viet Nam, pilots reported today.

The spokesman said Air Force, Navy, Marine and Vietnamese planes flew more than 299 combat sorties against Red troop and supply areas in this country.

Two U.S. warships off the coast of South Viet Nam hurled more than 220, five and six inch shells into Red-held positions in the Da Nang area yesterday.

Three incidents of Communist harassment and of sabotage were reported in the past 24 hours, the spokesman said.

One harassment occurred yesterday evening at Phuoc Thoi, 12 miles northwest of Saigon. A government outpost there came under small arms fire and the defenders sustained "light casualties," according to the spokesman.

The other two harrassments occurred in Chuong Thien Province, about 120 miles southwest of Saigon. There have been harassing attacks on outposts and district towns in that province during the past 10 days.

Johnson Impeachment Urged Over Viet War

By MICHAEL PERCY

Prof. Dale Pontius is a man waging a one-man campaign against U.S. involvement in the Viet Nam war, and he thinks he has a solution: Impeach President Lyndon B. Johnson.

And at least 250 applauding people who filled Brown's Hall in Mill Valley last night agreed with him when he suggested such action.

Pontius charges the president with waging an "undeclared war in Viet Nam" and says this is grounds for impeachment under Article Two, Section Four of the Constitution which states Congress must give a president permission to declare war.

"We seem to be in the limbo of being committed by one man," Pontius declared, "who is willing to risk everything, and perhaps lose everything.

"We're like the decadent rich with our swimming pools, shiny cars, willing to sit by and do nothing. But if we wait too long we will become that which we hated in fascism.

"The facts — the atrocities, the burned villages — are available to all of us in the news media, but most fail to act.

"And once the drums start to roll, opposition becomes treason."

Asked what an individual can do, Pontius, an associate professor of political science at Roosevelt College in Chicago, said: "We, the people are enough to begin talking peace. Get Congress into action. Write letters, picket, sign petitions. They'll listen."

Pontius says in order to start impeachment proceedings against the president, the House of Representatives must first "indict" him, followed by a trial in the Senate. If found guilty, he would be out of office.

When someone in the audience asked, "Really, when was the last time a president was faced with impeachment?" Pontius replied, "Right now!"

Who would he like to see take Johnson's place?

"Not Vice President Humphrey. He's guilty by compliance. But I think Senator Fullbright (Sen. J William Fullbright, D-Ark.). His mind is at least open on foreign policy."

Pontius, 59, who was arrested in San Francisco on May 1 for "disturbing the peace" after a 12-hour talkathon against the war in Viet Nam, has been studying at the Hoover Institute of War, Revolution and Peace at Stanford for the past six months. He returns to Chicago Monday.

When asked if he believed the president could in fact be impeached, the one-man Committee to Impeach Persident Johnson said, "I wouldn't be doing anything I didn't really believe in."

Pontius was introduced by attorney Carl Shapiro of Fairfax who acted as moderator.

Countywide Chamber Unit Is Formed

A Marin County Chamber of Commerce was formed yesterday with the backing of chambers in six Marin cities and the Marin Visitors Bureau.

Chamber representatives also approved a joint promotion effort aimed at keeping Marin dollars in the county through a "Buy in Marin" campaign scheduled in October, to be designated "Chamber of Commerce Month."

Jack Alvarado, manager of the San Rafael Chamber of Commerce denied that the county-wide organization was being formed under pressure from county supervisors. Several chambers had begun closer cooperation months ago, he contended.

The supervisors, during their last budget session this year, made it plain that they did not like giving county funds to different promotional organizations and strongly hinted that one county - wide cooperating group should be formed.

"You've all read the county budget—it's obvious they (supervisors) wanted us to federate," said Richard G. Burns, president of the Corte Madera Chamber of Commerce at a Sausalito meeting of chamber representatives.

"But I think we all want to maintain our own independence—formulate our own objectives."

Formation of the county chamber will not mean the end of local chambers, Burns said. The county-wide group would

Greyhound Bus Fares To Hike

Greyhound bus fares between cities in Marin County will be increased by 11 per cent starting Aug. 27.

This was approved by the California Public Utilities Commission Thursday together with increases in Greyhound's East Bay and Peninsula commute fares.

Although Marin is not affected by the rise in commute fares, passengers here as elsewhere in the Bay Area will have to pay more to ride between cities outside San Francisco.

Gold Sale Expected

LONDON (AP) — The Soviet Union is expected to sell up to $700 million worth of gold to the West shortly to pay for her foreign purchases of wheat this season.

Sheriff Sends Guns To Aid Los Angeles

The Marin County Sheriff's office made a contribution to Los Angeles police and sheriff's men battling rioters in Los Angeles this morning.

A call for mutual assistance came from Los Angeles to police agencies in the Bay Area asking for firearms. The sheriff's office rushed five shotguns to the San Francisco Police Department. From there they were flown to Los Angeles.

U.C. Puts In A Bid For Land In County

University of California regents yesterday put in their bid for 300 acres of the Marin County headlands and tidelands north of the Golden Gate Bridge which have been declared surplus by the federal government.

State Sen. John F. McCarthy, R-San Rafael, has been working since June to get the same land, located at Forts Baker and Barry, for a state park.

The regents, meeting in Berkeley, instructed their staff to make formal application to federal authorities for the property.

UC President Clark Kerr told the regents the land would make an excellent addition to the university's system of natural reserves for study by zoologists and biologists.

Senator McCarthy, recovering from a back ailment in the University of California Medical Center hospital in San Francisco, said today he has been working with California Sen. Thomas Kuechel and Rep. Donald A. Clausen, R-First California District, to have the property made a state park.

McCarthy added that he thought the university's plan would serve the same purpose.

"I just think that land should be preserved," he said.

Thundershowers Looming Again For Bay Area

Partly cloudy skies—and perhaps more thundershowers — were expected to break the Bay Area's short-lived heat wave, the Weather Bureau said today.

San Rafael temperature at noon today was 78 compared with yesterday's high of 93, which made it the hottest day this year. Previous high for the year in San Rafael was 91 on April 26 and June 28.

San Anselmo had Marin's highest reading yesterday: 95 degrees. Novato had 90 and Fairfax reported 85.

Thundershowers, expected to fall on Northern California tomorrow, hit the southern part of the state, along with parts of the San Joaquin Valley and the Central Sierra, this morning.

Sonic Booms

BERLIN (AP) — Soviet military jet planes rocked Berlin with at least 14 sonic booms between 7 a.m. and noon today. Such booms are common but it was unusual to have so many.

Japan Surrender 20 Years Ago

WASHINGTON (AP) — Twenty years ago today, Japan surrendered. World War II was over. There was a wild celebration in the nation's capital, and all across the United States.

There was no celebration here today, no formal observance of any kind.

On Aug. 14, 1945, then President Harry S. Truman announced the end of World War II.

President Johnson, a Texas congressman 20 years ago, is spending the weekend near Johnson City, Tex.

There has been no announcement of any observance there for V-J Day, either today or Sunday.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Vince Edwards Sued For Divorce

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Television actor Vincent Edwards, 36, has been charged with willful neglect and mental cruelty in a divorce suit filed by his wife of two months, actress Kathy Kersh.

Miss Kersh

Miss Kersh, 23, also disclosed in the complaint yesterday she is pregnant and without funds to maintain herself.

She asked $3,500 a month support and an additional $1,500 a month after the child is born, plus $75,000 to buy a home.

Her complaint said the couple separated Aug. 6.

She alleged Edwards, whose legal name is Vincent Zoino, is worth $3 million and makes more than $100,000 a month.

Russ Take New Photos Of Moon

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet space station Zond 3 has taken more pictures of the far side of the moon and is sending them back to earth, Tass announced today.

The photographs were taken by the space station when it was about 7,200 miles from the moon, Tass said.

The photographing occurred July 20 and lasted 1 hour and 8 minutes, Tass said, and transmission began July 29.

Leif Ericson Day Is Proclaimed

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson has proclaimed Oct. 9 Leif Ericson Day and called upon the American people to pay homage to "this bold explorer."

"It is particularly fitting to give national recognition to this bold explorer today," Johnson said at the Texas White House yesterday, "when men of similar courage and resourcefulness are challenging the equally formidable unknowns of our time."

Ericson led an expedition of Norsemen to the North American continent nearly a thousand years ago.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States is closing its embassy in Brazzaville, the capital of the former French Congo, to protest "mistreatment" of American officials by the African nation. The State Department announced its action yesterday. The action was quickly answered by the Brazzaville government, which said it was closing its embassy in Washington and sending its five man staff to join its delegation at the United Nations in New York.

May Visit Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., is reportedly considering a fact-finding trip to Viet Nam to study the refugee situation there. Kennedy, younger brother of the late President John F. Kennedy and chairman of a Senate subcommittee on refugees, has been conducting hearings on the problem. Witnesses have testified that thousands of Vietnamese are leaving their homes to flee to other parts of the war-torn country.

Wolden Gets Word

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Assessor Russell L. Wolden has been told to dig up tax records of 62 San Francisco firms by 10 a.m. Thursday or "make some explanations." Wolden appeared in court yesterday on a contempt charge for earlier refusing to give the grand jury tax records of 62 firms. The grand jury wants the records to investigate alleged irregularities involving clients of Castro Valley tax consultant James Tooke.

Frost Answers Jury Purchasing Charges

Marin County supervisors are slated to receive a report from Public Works Director Donald R. Frost Tuesday in reply to grand jury recommendations citing "liberal" purchasing practices and competition with private contractors.

Frost said the report of the public works committee of the grand jury did not acknowledge that many items for which purchase orders were issued were acquired after informal bids had been received.

The committee charged that purchasing procedures which allow the garage superintendent, building superintendent and road superintendent to issue purchase orders up to $500 on items is "far too liberal and could lead to abuses."

Frost noted that "certain charges are the result of emergency occurrences, such as damage to county buildings, breakdowns of mechanical equipment or rolling stock and storm damage to roads."

Frost's report and the committee's interim report on the public works department are scheduled to be presented to supervisors at 10 a.m.

The committee said it had complaints that several department employees were no longer useful in their particular positions.

"On investigation, it was revealed that several oldtime employees were a problem under the present employment practices and it could be difficult to dispose of these men," the committee reported.

Frost said it is usually possible to assign duties consistent with employees' capability. In many phases of work, he contended, knowledge gained through experience is an asset of considerable value.

"We certainly are not about to force the retirement of an employee who is still performing well within the limits of his present capacity and is in an appropriate position." Frost said.

"If such a practice were to be followed by public works or any other department, the social and personal consequences would not be pleasant to contemplate."

The committee said it had received a contractor's complaint about the use of county equipment at the Henry Hall School site near the county dump for filling. It added that the public works department should not compete with private contractors.

"This office has no desire to compete with private contractors," Frost replied in his memorandum.

Frost said he denied the request for fill on the school property, but county crews filled a portion of the dump adjacent to the school.

County Administrator Alan Bruce noted on the agenda that the grand jury may make revisions toi ts report and no board action will be necessary Tuesday.

Supervisors also will have a hearing at 2 p.m. on proposed amendments to the substandard lot ordinance which will regulate the size of a house to the size of the lot.

Marinite Impressed By Kenya

The strongest impression of Kenya that J. C. Shepard, a correctional officer at San Quentin Prison, brought home from three weeks of teaching in the African country was its "pioneer spirit."

Shepard of 7B Judson Lane, Mill Valley, returned last Saturday after instructing native teachers in the Laubach "each one teach one" literacy method, in the village of Kitui.

Shepard was impressed by the people's "eagerness to learn." Kenya President Jombo Kenyatta has a slogan "harambee," which means "let's get to work."

A third year student at Golden Gate Seminary, Shepard first became acquainted with the Laubach method while attending Baylor University in 1956. He was one of 30 Americans chosen by Dr. Frank Laubach to accompany him to Kenya on the literacy program.

Before arriving in Africa Shepard learned 10 sentences in the Camba language. After the elementary stage of his instruction however he had to finish the course through an interpreter.

The Camba language is spoken by 300,000 people and is one of seven major languages in Kenya. Each of the languages has from 10 to 30 dialects. The task of teaching is further complicated because nearly all of the five million adults in Kenya are illiterate.

"But they appreciate our help, they want to learn and they are making progress," reported Shepard.

Garbage Dumps Fast Filling Up

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The San Francisco Bay Area will have exhausted all its garbage dumps within 12 years, a report of the Association of Bay Area Governments said yesterday.

The report said the area will produce 182 millino tons of refuse between 1963 and 2000. That's enough to cover 50 square miles 20 feet deep.

The report suggested study of other methods of getting rid of garbage, such as incineration, distillation or composting.

Span Aide Fears Loss On Buses

The Golden Gate Bridge may be losing too much money by charging only 13 cents bus toll, a bridge director declared yesterday.

Dan E. London of San Francisco asked bridge manager James Adam for a survey to see what percentage of the buses are commute buses as compared with through buses on long distance runs and sight seeing buses.

London pointed out that bridge directors lowered bus tolls last January from $1 to 13 cents to help commuters. He said he wants to learn how many sightseeing buses get "free rides" because of the nominal toll.

Marin Director Thomas D. Hardcastle, who initiated the plan to lower bus tolls, said the bus toll was cut to keep fares down and keep up bus patronage.

Adam reported that Greyhound toll charges last month totalled $1,700, compared with $12,808 in July last year. Director London said the district would thus lose more than $100,000 per year because of the reduction.

Directors decided to postpone action for a month on sale of new commute ticket books so Hardcastle could consult the Marin County Board of Supervisors.

Hardcastle said he wants to study the feasibility of raising the auto commute fare to help finance the Marin County Transit District.

VIOLENCE

Los Angeles."

He described the violence as "contrary to the best traditions of this country."

Troopers early today cleared a path through pockets of lawlessness on the city's Southeast Side but couldn't restore peace.

Rioters leapfrogged ahead of the troops. Arsonists set new fires after they passed. Other bands of Negroes in cars struck miles from the riot center in white sections of the city.

Whole blocks of buildings in the Negro section of Watts have been burned to the ground since the rioting began Wednesday night over the arrest of a Negro motorist by white police.

All the rioters are Negro. They battled police and firemen with guns looted from shattered stores and attacked white motorists — with shouts of "Here comes whitey!' and "Kill them, kill them!". Few whites ventured into the 98-per-cent Negro area sometimes called Los Angeles' "black ghetto."

CHAMBER

consist of any chambers or individuals who want to join.

The Marin chamber presumably will be the organization which will go before supervisors next year asking for money to promote the county. If so, it will answer for expenditures of the funds and allocation of them to chamber members.

With one organization seeking funds from the county, chambers will not "look like a bunch of hungry dogs fighting over a bone," Burns said.

"When you're not asking for funds, go into something in your own town and do something constructive."

Representatives of Corte Madera, Larkspur, San Rafael, Tiburon, San Anselmo and Novato chambers approved formation of the Marin chamber.

Carroll A. Syker, executive secretary of the Marin County Development Assn., voted a "qualified yes" to the proposition, saying he would have to check with directors of his organization.

Officials of the Mill Valley Chamber of Commerce abstained from the vote. Charles J. Francis, newly elected president of the group, said that his directors had just voted "complete opposition" to the idea of a Marin chamber, but added that he would discuss the proposals with them again.

Robert E. Rogers of the Sausalito chamber, left the noon meeting before the vote but said later he was in favor of the plan.

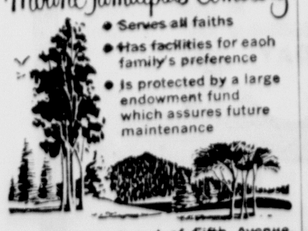

The Marin chamber will legally come into existence when officials of the various chambers sign incorporation papers in Burns' office next week. Officers will be elected and by-laws adopted later.

Meeting Postponed

Because of the lack of a quorum, today's scheduled meeting of the Stinson Beach Water District board was postponed to 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Stinson Beach Community Center. A new director is to be named.

Four million people are injured each year in highway accident.

UFO Seen Over Marin By Driver

A 23-year-old Kentfield man reported to the Independent-Journal yesterday what he said appeared to be an unidentified flying object in the Greenbrae-San Quentin area.

Don Waldbillig, a piano-tuner who lives at 20 Inman Avenue, said he was driving east towards Greenbrae along Sir Francis Drake Boulevard shortly after 9:30 a.m. when he saw what he first thought was an aircraft.

He stopped his car near Bon Air Road, Kentfield, and noticed "something peculiar" about the object, he said.

It was about the same size as an aircraft but he could see no wings. Silver in color, the object hovered motionless at about 3,000 feet, said Waldbillig.

He jumped in his car and drove on to get a closer look but when he again looked in the sky above the East Bay area, the object had disappeared, he said. He estimated he was looking at the object about a minute and a half.

Escapers Search Continues

The search for two convicts who escaped from San Quentin Prison Wednesday moved north today.

Prison officials were checking a report that Harold Roney, 35, and Donald Padgett, 31, had been seen 100 miles away from the prison at Ukiah, Mendocino County, Thursday.

At about the same time, however, a motorist told police he picked up a hitchhiker in Hayward, who fitted the description of Roney and was wearing blue trousers and a blue shirt.

Roney and Padgett were wearing blue denim prison garb when they went over the wall using a 21 foot piece of air conditioning pipe with a hook on the end.

A tower guard was distracted by a telephone call made on the prison telephone by a third convict, believed to be an accomplice.

Roney and Padgett were serving terms for armed robbery and both had records of previous escapes.

Education Board Meeting Called

The Marin County Board of Education will have a special meeting at 8 p.m. Monday in the board room at the Civic Center to certify funds for the education of physically handicapped children in Marin.

Asst. Supt. Robert Stannard estimated that the amount involved at about $15,000.

The special meeting was called because the state rules and regulations have just arrived at the county school office, Stannard said.

Two Booked In Bar Case

Two San Rafael men were booked at county jail on charges of "procuring money to promote an act of indecent exposure" on warrants issued by the District Attorney's office yesterday.

Ernest Eddy of 805 4th Street, and James P. Bell of 331 C Street were arrested after they allegedly solicited $1 from every patron at the Club Moderne, 804 Fourth Street, San Rafael, Aug. 5, to encourage a San Rafael woman to remove her clothes.

Bail on both was set at $276.

Still No Sight Of Yank At Sea

FALMOUTH, England (AP)—A two-day storm off the Cornish Coast roared out to sea today but the calm Atlantic still hid the whereabouts of an American who challenged the sea alone in a tiny sailboat.

Another day went by without any sign of Robert Manry, 48-year-old Cleveland Plain Dealer newspaperman, and his 13½-foot Tinkerbelle.

Youth Is Home From War To See Sick Father

Pfc. Gary F. Cooper, 17, of Fairfax, arrived home on emergency leave from Viet Nam Thursday to be with his seriously ill father.

His mother, Mrs. Lena Cooper of 85 Taylor Drive, Fairfax, sought help from the Red Cross early this week to enable the youth to see her former husband, Ben Cooper of San Rafael.

Gary, who has been in Viet Nam since May, told his mother the Army has ordered him placed on non-combatant duties in that country until he becomes 18 on Oct. 28.

Military regulations permit overseas service for men under 18 but not in combat zones. Before these regulations were enforced recently, Gary was decorated for having served under fire. He wrote his mother he had killed four Viet Cong soldiers.

Meeting Is Set On Integration

A town meeting has been called for 3 p.m. tomorrow in the First Missionary Baptist Church in Marin City to hear and discuss the proposed integration plan for the Sausalito School District.

Discussion also is scheduled on the county's war on poverty program.

Dr. Richard Foster, author of the proposal to integrate the Sausalito schools, will present his plans to the townspeople, while Walter Bremond, Director of the Marin County Human Relations Department, will describe the poverty program.

Mill Valley Man Injured In Crash

William A. Schallock, 20, of 217 Summit Avenue, Mill Valley, was treated at Marin General Hospital last night for cuts on his scalp after an auto accident on Highway 101 near Corte Madera which the California Highway Patrol said was caused by an insect.

Schallock told the patrol northbound when a bug flew through his car window and into his face. He moved to brush it away, took his eye off the road and slammed into the rear of an auto driven by L. D. Carter of 805 Rincon Way, Santa Venetia.

ROBERT D. SLATE

Congregation Elects New President

Robert D. Slate of 85 Corte Dorado, Greenbrae, has been elected president of Congregation Rodef Sholom in San Rafael.

Slate, who has been on the congregation's board of directors for the past three years, is manager of Jann and Kelly, Inc., a San Francisco publishers' representative firm.

Other officers elected were Alan Fibish, vice president; Leon Fish, treasurer; and Della Patnoe, secretary. Elected to the board of directors for the first time were Fred Kirschner and Jake Melnick. Mrs. Marilyn Jacobs, Dr. Jack Siegel and Dr. Mervyn Shenson were re-elected to the board.

Equalization Study Begins

Assemblyman William T. Bagley has begun studying possible legislative change of equalization hearings by county government agencies.

Announcing his interest in the subject in letters to County Assessor Bert W. Broemmel and the board of supervisors, he congratulated them for being "intelligent, capable and fair" in their recent assessment and equalization proceedings.

Bagley expressed concern, however, over the "necessity for the board to take from its busy public schedule, and for individuals to take from their own private businesses and activities the time necessary to hear all the appeals." He wishes to determine, he says, "whether or not . . . a better governmental mechanism" might handle the problem.

Ice Pick Attack Leads To Arrest

Wallace W. Wells, 56, of 203 Auburn Street, San Rafael, was booked at County Jail yesterday after he allegedly attacked three men with an ice pick behind Hoagy's Bar, 711 4th Street, San Rafael.

Gary W. Motchar of Tamalpais Avenue, San Rafael, told police Wells ran at him as he came out of a nearby liquor store with two other men. Motchar said he had to run to avoid being injured by Wells.

Wells was booked on charges of disturbing the peace and possession of a prohibited weapon. No bail has been set.

Pedersen was a native of Norway who came to the United States in 1910 and to California soon thereafter. He was captain of a Golden Gate auto ferry until his retirement after World War II. He was a member of the Balder Masonic Lodge, San Francisco.

Capt. Pedersen is survived by his wife, Sigrid, of Turlock; three sons, Clifford M. Pedersen of Kentfield, Edgar H. Pedersen of Tiburon and Robert L. Pedersen of Daly City; three daughters, Mrs. Mildred K. Hall of Elk Grove, Sacramento County, Ruth Pedersen, a missionary in Venezuela, and Mrs. Amy J. Twinning of Pittsburg, Calif., and 16 grandchildren.

Beer Burglar Stops For Quick Drink

A thirsty burglar paused for a quick quart last night before lugging away 27 cases of bottled beer kept in a storage shed behind the Bermuda Palms Motel, 737 Francisco Boulevard, San Rafael.

John T. Whitworth of the motel told police early today that a door to a storage room was smashed open. Officers fould the empty beer bottle outside the shed.

Luncheon In Fairfax Honors San Francisco, Marin Debs

By MOLLY MARIN

A luncheon was given yesterday at her Ridgeview Farm home in Fairfax by Mrs. Frank Baumgarten to honor of San Francisco Cotillion debutante Shauna Smith and Marin debs Gail Noah and Diane Cabaud, with the other Marin debutantes and some of their contemporaries and the mothers of the honorees as guests.

And next Tuesday, Mary Baumgarten will be hostess to a much larger group of San Francisco and Peninsula friends for luncheon, also at her home. The gathering will honor Mrs. Rufus Thayer of San Francisco, who with her husband Admiral Thayer, just returned from five months' travel around the world, and are spending the summer in their Nicasio home.

ANOTHER DEBUTANTE party will take the form of luncheon and swimming at Seadrift, Stinson Beach on Wednesday afternoon, given by Mrs. Eugene Wheary of San Francisco, Mrs. Wheary has invited Gail's mother, Mrs. Ralph Noah of Belvedere, all the Marin debs, and a few other young friends to her Seadrift home to enjoy the sun and surf. Mrs. Wheary's daughter Molly, will share hostess duties, but her younger daughter, Cynthia, will miss the party as she is visiting friends at Lake Tahoe. The Whearys, former residents of the Tiburon Peninsula, moved to San Francisco last year. They are spending the summer at their Seadrift home.

MORE THAN 60 relatives and friends will attend a cocktail party and buffet supper tomorrow in honor of the 60th wedding anniversary of the Edwin Polkinghornes of Sonoma. The celebration will be held at the San Rafael home of their son-in-law and daughter, the Edmund T. McClellands. The Polkinghornes have lived in Sonoma for the last 11 years. They previously resided in San Francisco since their marriage in 1905. Marinites who will attend the party tomorrow are Messrs. and Mesdames Larry Husband, Ralph Astengo, Richard Moulthrop and Lynn Reed.

REUNIONS WITH OLD FRIENDS and family members have marked the summer for the Homer Hixons of the Reedlands and their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Hixon of Tiburon Estates. Mrs. Bruce Hixon's aunt, Mrs. Louise Fisher, dean of women at Temple University in Philadelphia Penn., spent a week visiting the Tiburon family and is now touring the Pacific Northwest. Shortly before that the Bruce Hixons journeyed to Houston, where they spent two weeks with Mrs. Hixon's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stine.

Mrs. Homer Hixon, former owner of the newspaper in Snoqualmie, Wash., visited her former home and drove back with friends, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Knaupp, and their daughter, Helen. The Knaupps stayed with the Hixons in Tiburon for a week. Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Payne of Portland came to Marin to visit Mrs. Payne's brother and his wife, the Terry Newells of Novato, and also enjoyed a get-together with long-time friends, the Hixons. Last Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Dahl Kirkpatrick of Albuquerque, New Mexico visited the Homer Hixons. Mr. Kirkpatrick has recently retired from the forestry service, and is an old friend of Mr. Hixon, who is assistant regional director of the service here.

HOME AFTER SPENDING two weeks at Lake Tahoe at the California Alumni Center is Mrs. Valara Berry of Corinthian Island and her son, Richard. There they enjoyed golfing, swimming and ice skating.

IT'S A NEW daughter for Mr. and Mrs. William Hynes of Berkeley. This is the first child for the former Molly Keil and her husband, and the first grandchild for Mr. and Mrs. Russell Keil of Keil Cove, Tiburon. The baby, who was born Aug. 7 at Alta Bates hospital, has been named Margaret Keil Hynes. She is also the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adrien Hynes of Piedmont.

College Son Keeps Mother Informed On Campus Styles

By EUNICE FARMER

Thank heavens for a son in college, it sure keeps me on my toes! My son and his friends were checking out my instructions for cuffing trousers and told me I needed to be updated.

It seems that the correct width of the cuffs today is 1½ inches not 1¾ as it was. Also, the trouser legs should be tapered to 16 inches or less.

Please keep these easy-to-follow instructions with your sewing notes. Most mothers and wives have to do this little job eventually.

1. Rip out the original cuff and press the trouser legs flat.

2. Mark the correct finished length (a) on the trousers.

3. Chalk mark 1½ inches below the first chalk line for the width of the cuff (b).

Fold fabric to the wrong side of the trousers on the chalk line (b). Fold down ½ inch of the cut edge and press. For the lightweight fabric instead of a ½ inch turn, it will be double all the way to the finished edge of the cuff. This will give extra weight to the cuff and will result in a neater appearance. Machine stitch this fold to the trousers. This stitching will be covered with the cuff. Last, fold the cuff up to the right side on the first chalk line (a) and press. Tack the finished cuff to the side seams only.

Most mothers have wool skirts that are either too tight or they have grown tired of them. Instead of discarding them, they can be made into excellent shifts or jumper for young daughters.

I usually leave the center back pleat in, there is always enough length, since the girls wear their skirts very short. You can give your girl a new school ensemble for just a few hours' time and not a penny in cost.

Today's Tailor Trix pressing board is awarded to Mr. Carla Sedgwick, St. Louis, Mo., for this economical suggestion.

I have a woven skirt that I would like to make reversible, what is the best way to hem it?

CAROL J.

DEAR CAROL J.:

There are two easy ways of treating the hems of reversible skirts. First, you may fringe the hem to make it equally attractive on both sides. The most popular finish is to bind the edges in wool braid. This is usually done in a contrasting color and most skirts of this type are made in a wrap-around pattern.

Get out some of your old circular felt skirts that have been collecting dust for the past few years and create a great new Poncho. These are the rage today in all sportswear and are most attractive.

You can bind the edges with braid or use a heavy yarn fringe.

Since the waistband of the skirt must be removed, and it wouldn't fit close to your neckline, you can knit yourself a contrasting turtleneck dickie. There's still time to do this before the first football game—and won't your mothers be proud of you.

Prevent the neck of a sweater from stretching! After the sweater has been blocked, take the correct size crochet hook and yarn and slip stitch around the neck at the base of the neck ribbing or collar. This is done on the wrong side of the sweater, picking up each knitted stitch as you crochet. It doesn't show and, although it gives slightly, it never allows the neck to stretch out of shape. You can also do the same for a ready-made sweater.

MR. AND MRS. MICHAEL LEON KENNEDY

Pamela Card Bride Of Michael Kennedy

Michael Leon Kennedy of Mill Valley claimed Pamela Card as his bride Saturday in the first wedding ceremony held in the newly completed Mill Valley Methodist Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Card of Bognor Regis, England, who were here for the nuptials.

The young couple exchanged vows at 2 p.m. in rites conducted by the bridegroom's uncle, Bishop Gerald Kennedy of Los Angeles, assisted by the Rev. G. Russell Oaks.

Pamela wore a full length A-line gown of white organza with bodice and front skirt panel of lace. Her maid of honor, the bridegroom's only sister, Kathleen Kennedy of Mill Valley, was attired in a full length dress with skirt of pale green georgette and bodice of jade green velvet.

Best man for the bridegroom, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Kennedy of Mill Valley, was Bert Holcolm of San Mateo. Ronald Spurrell of Mill Valley showed guests to their seats.

Immediately after the ceremony a reception was held at Sabella's Restaurant in Mill Valley.

The newly married pair spent a brief honeymoon in Monterey and will live in Mill Valley.

The new Mrs. Kennedy is a graduate of Cloughs Business College in Southampton, England, and is employed as a secretary with the Continental Service Co. in San Francisco.

Her husband is a graduate of Tamalpais High School and is employed by the Methodist Publishing House in San Francisco.

August Work Day Will Be Held In Novato Church

The annual August work day will be sponsored by the Novato United Presbyterian Women's Assn. beginning at 10 a.m., Wednesday, at the church.

Mrs. Helen Noel, world service chairman, will be in charge assisted by Mrs. R. W. Casady.

Sewing projects will include aprons and drawstring bags to be included in the Christmas box to families served by the Legget Valley Church in the Redwood Empire; butcher type aprons to be sent to the McCormick Hospital in Thailand and wool type fabric scraps will be pieced together into lap robes for use by patients at North Marin convalescent hospitals.

Also on the day's program will be preparation for sale of the association's collection of cancelled commemorative stamps. The returns from the stamps will be used to purchase powdered milk for undernourished children overseas.

Miss Obear Is Wed In Mill Valley

Ramona Janyne Obear and William John Owings, both of Mill Valley, were married on July 31 in the First Baptist Church of Mill Valley and are living in Mill Valley.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Florence Wegner of Mesa, Ariz., and Howard Obear of Delevan, Wis. She has been living with Mrs. Elizabeth Cronquist of Mill Valley.

The couple exchanged vows at 1 p.m. with the bride given in marriage by a friend, Bruce Johnson of Mill Valley, in the ceremony performed by the Rev. John A. McDonald.

She wore a floor-length gown with fitted bodice of organza and bouffant skirt of tirred Chantilly lace over taffeta. The bride's matron of honor was her sister, Mrs. Richard Brellenthin of Mill Valley, who wore a full-length empire style gown of aqua chiffon.

Richard Brellenthin served as best man for his brother-in-law, and ushers were Donald Johnson of Larkspur and Tim Spaulding of Mill Valley.

Nicolette K. Ortner Marries In Georgia

Nicolette Kay Ortner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nickolas A. Ortner of San Rafael, became the bride of Michael Reed Spainhour of Richmond at the chapel at Fort Benning, Ga., on Aug. 5.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Simoneit of Columbus, Ga., were attendants for the couple at the 2 p.m. double-ring ceremony.

Nicki was graduated from San Rafael High School and is the sister of Mrs. Paul B. Ware Jr. and Marlene Ortner, both of San Rafael, and Mrs. John P. Van Soest of Sacramento. Mrs. Flora Ortner of Hayward is her grandmother.

She is employed with General Cover Underwriters Assn. in San Francisco.

The bride will make her home with her parents in San Rafael until her husband's return from duty with the U.S. Army in Viet Nam.

Getting Sick Of Taxes? Here's Answer For You

MOST COMMENTARIES on the current property assessment shenanigans in other counties seem to assume that once these assessment irregularities are reformed, everything will be just fine.

Such an assumption just isn't true.

Look at what has happened in Marin County.

Prior to Bert Broemmel's installation as county assessor, Marin's assessment rolls were in a mess. The grand jury, the board of supervisors and the state board of equalization had combined forces to compel a county-wide reappraisal in an effort to bring order out of chaos.

The old system, if it could be called a "system," resulted in numerous instances where several properties of almost identical location, age and value turned up on the tax rolls with several widely different tax values. It just didn't make sense.

Reappraisal efforts never really were very effective until after Broemmel took office.

BROEMMEL DEVISED various systems for keeping tax roll appraisals reasonably current—reasonably "up" with rising property values.

Nobody has ever produced any evidence of any kind of favoritism in tax assessing under Broemmel.

With 70,311 separate parcels to be valued, there are bound to be a few inconsistencies; but there never has been even the slightest suspicion of "hanky-panky" in the few inconsistencies that occasionally come to light.

According to the assumptions of most commentators on the appraisal woes of other counties, Marin's present situation—with tax rolls in reasonably fair balance and with no special favors to any person or group—should be just great.

BUT IT ISN'T JUST GREAT, as all recipients of property tax bills know.

The trouble is that tax bills are too high.

Unfortunately, realistic assessment rolls—when finally achieved — have the ultimate effect of forcing tax bills ever upward.

Theoretically, the level of assessment valuations has nothing to do with tax bills. Theoretically, the costs of local government are fixed independently of tax rolls and the size of the tax base (fixed by the total of assessed valuations) merely determines whether the tax load is spread thick or thin. The total weight of the tax load doesn't change—theoretically.

IN PRACTICE THE theory doesn't work.

It is too easy for tax-levying agencies to pretend to "hold the line" on expenditures when in reality they are merely holding the line on tax rate. Rising assessed value means that tax-levying agencies can take steadily more from taxpayers all the while congratulating themselves on not having raised the tax rate.

But their actions, nevertheless, have the effect of raising tax bills. They nevertheless take increasingly more from the taxpayers.

LOOK AT THE RECORD in Marin County.

Property taxes totalling only $6,855,000 were collected to run the county, all special districts and all public schools in 1954-55. Last year the total tax bill had risen to $30,723,000 an increase of 448 per cent with only nominal increases in tax rates.

Actually, the county government portion of this monumental boost was only 326 per cent. Special district tax revenues (other than schools) went up 446 per cent.

Our public schools led the way. We Marin taxpayers collectively put up $3,688,000 to operate them in 1954-55. Last year, we were tapped for a whopping $19,634,000—a decade increase of 532 per cent.

"THERE'S NO ESCAPING death and taxes," the old saying goes.

If you are an informed, dedicated, believing Christian, you can follow in the footsteps of Christ and triumph over death.

But can you beat the tax collector?

Yes, there is a way to do that, too.

Move to Josephine County, Oregon.

Beautiful Josephine County is the northern gateway to the Redwood Empire. The other end of the Redwood Highway terminates in Grants Pass, Josephine's county seat.

Josephine County, which abounds in beautiful county parks, county roads and other fine public facilities, collects NO county taxes.

The board of county commissioners (county supervisors) levy NO county property taxes and collect NONE.

They operate Josephine County with funds from state subventions and income from forest lands to which they fell heir from a defunct railroad promotion a couple of generations ago.

The only property taxes collected in all of Josephine County are those needed for operating public schools and two incorporated cities.

Find a piece of property there in an unincorporated area outside the boundaries of any school district and you can enjoy complete property-tax freedom.

OLD AUTO HULKS MAR SCENERY

Illegally abandoned autos are plaguing many parts of the country. As many as 8,000 such graveyards dot the U.S. map. In New York State alone some 300,000 junked cars blight the roads and landscapes.

Skeletons of discarded autos are especially harmful in resort areas because such eyesores along the highway discourage prospective visitors.

A long-term slump in the scrap iron market has increased the number of junk heaps and junk shops.

In a recent year, a record 5½ million old cars were taken out of operation. Many, if not most of them, ended up as derelicts that present an ugly burden for the public.

An important beginning could be made in solving this problem if one car owner after another would consider the rights and feelings of others before abandoning his old automobile.

God has given you a built-in sense of justice. Put it to use on every occasion and you are bound to be a force for good.

"The fruit of justice is sown in peace by those who make peace." (James 3:18)

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

I-J Columnist Taken To Task

Editor, Independent-Journal:

A reply to Henry MacArthur's "Affairs of State" item in recent article.

Shame on you, Henry MacArthur. Have you no love for your fellow man? Or is your sermon "Pie in the Sky" when they die for our underprivileged farm workers? Have you by any chance visited any of the rat-infested holes that serve as living quarters for the migrant workers? Many without decent toilet and water facilities. Providing no medical care for either the parents or children, except in the most dire emergencies.

Just what places you, Mr. MacArthur, one tiny notch above a Mexican "bracero" or other migrant farm worker?

Our great nation has billions of dollars to spend on the present war effort; yet you and your kind scream to high heaven about wasting the taxpayers' money at spending a few millions to provide decent living conditions for our transient hard-working farm labor.

News Policy Question Still Not Answered?

Editor, Independent-Journal

Your edition of Aug. 9 carries a request from one Michael Dunne Healy for a statement of policy from you regarding the relative value—or precedence—given certain items of news over others. I have carefully scrutinized your reply to Mr. Healey and in consequence I am certain both Mr. Healey and myself are yet awaiting some more satisfactory exposition of your policy.

Equivocation explains nothing, and while it can readly be appreciated that our pure, clean, and good Heart City of Marin and its new organ would rather not become embroiled in vexatious controversies anent the Black and the White, hiding the head of your journal in the sands of obscurantism will not relieve this most urgent national problem of our day.

No more is "picking and choosing" a straightforward way to present the news, with relegation to a back page of Congressman Clausen's opposition to one of the major pieces of legislation recently enacted into law by the federal government.

U.S. Has More Poor Than India?

Editor, Independent-Journal:

"The Republic for which we stand" — so who's standing? The gullibles, with both hands out, eyes closed and cotton in their ears.

Suddenly we have more poor people than India and I'm afraid the president and Congress are so used to doling out billions they've got us mixed up with the "underdeveloped countries" of the world!

Things are so bad that the idea is being advanced that the government should undertake a plan to send government checks to low-paid workers to subsidize their incomes.

My head is swimming. Isn't yours? The speed of this fantastic take-over makes Hitler look like a piker!

'People For Peace' Take Note Of This

Editor, Independent-Journal:

This is to the "People For Peace," particularly to their party members who, with their babies in their arms, deliberately stood in front of the moving train in Oakland the other day, protesting the arrival of our soldiers on their way to Viet Nam.

Not long ago I heard the following eyewitness account:

In a little village in Laos, the Communist soldiers ordered all the people to come out to the schoolhouse. When the villagers had assembled the soldiers went into the school and brought out five children and their teacher. They sat the children on the ground in a row and, one at a time, while one soldier held the child's head, another one rammed a chopstick into each ear, as far as it would go. While the children screamed and writhed on the ground, they cut off the tongue of the teacher. Then, turning to the villagers, they announced, "These children will never again listen to the words of religion and this teacher will never again say them."

Will you please explain to me the real meaning of peaceful coexistence?

One Trench Not Answer

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Tonight (Aug. 5) you have an article by W. B. Van Gelder reflecting on the lack of foresight of the PG&E and their failure to use the same trench for all utilities.

Some folks don't care for all of their eggs in one basket.

I have both gas and electricity in my home—if one blows up, they don't all go and I still have one or the other.

ROSCOE DRUMMOND

Mike Mansfield's Democracy Follows Pattern Of Plato

By ANDREW J. GLASS
For Roscoe Drummond

WASHINGTON—Plato viewed democracy as "dispensing a sort of equality to equals and unequals alike" — a definition that befits the style in which Mike Mansfield of Montana conducts himself as the Senate's majority leader.

Under Senator Mansfield, Senate Democratic campaign funds have been divided evenly among all party members. While for political reasons some Southern incumbents can't accept "administration money," they are no less grateful to the majority leader for insisting that they be offered an equal share.

AFTER THE SENATE gave final approval to the new voting rights act, Mansfield, in his customary fashion, praised Democrats and Republicans alike for helping secure its passage.

New York's Robert F. Kennedy seized the moment to observe that the majority leader likes to "let others step forward and receive the credit and to let others hold the interviews."

But it was largely through Mansfield's efforts that the voting bill was amended to enfranchise New York's Spanish-speaking Puerto Ricans. Typically, the majority leader backed the amendment as a means of blunting a legislative dagger otherwise aimed at the South.

OVER THE YEARS, Mansfield has cemented a strong personal bond with minority leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois. The same Senate liberals who once bridled at the tight-fisted tactics of the previous majority leader, Lyndon B. Johnson, now resent Mansfield's practice of "clearing it with Ev."

Yet these Mansfield-Dirksen ties account in large part for the even progress of the president's programs through the Senate mills, without many delays or much friction.

NEVERTHELESS, like his predecessor, the majority leader is not above using the prerogatives of his office.

He has, for example, resisted pressure from Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey to relinquish valuable office space that once belonged to President Johnson, both in his capacity as majority leader and as vice president.

He has also refused to allow anyone to pursue the type of "hard nose count" of senatorial sentiment once conducted by former majority secretary Robert G. (Bobby) Baker and, later, by the staff of former majority whip Hubert Humphrey. (Senate barometers are still being read by White House liaison aide Larry F. O'Brien, although, necessarily, from a distance.)

MOST RECENTLY, Mansfield has become embroiled in a behind-the-scenes Senate struggle over the choice of a successor to Felton M. (Skeeter) Johnston, who plans, at age 56, to retire at the start of the next session as secretary of the Senate.

BARKER ON CHINA

Chiang Kai-Shek Gives Narrow View

By GEORGE BARKER

CHIANG KAI-SHEK, in a recent copyrighted interview with the U.S. News and World Report, had some hard things to say about the U.S. He lays the blame for the Communist takeover of China 15 years ago squarely at the door of our country. He's a man who thinks largely in terms of military solutions.

Chiang is a man who never made a mistake. In this respect, he is a kind of skinny mirror image of Mao—a sort of super-father of his country. Their methods of wielding political power are not much different. Both were trained in the Soviet method of political indoctrination by Borodin and others in the 1920s. Both are ruthless and narrow in their ideology. Six million Chinese who died on both sides in the Chinese Civil War are mute testimony of their mutual devotion to their beliefs and their ability to inspire men to give everything.

FEW PEOPLE HAVE ever cast doubt upon Chiang's personal honesty. In Hong Kong one hears all kinds of tales, false or true, one is never sure, about the highly unethical speculative practices of some of Madame Chiang's relatives, the Soongs and the Kungs, now multimillionaires living in this country. These tales usually ended with, "But I think Chiang was honest." One might be excused for having some questions about the character of a man who let his high office be used by his wife's relatives, however.

The fundamental way in which the two men, Chiang and Mao, differed—their attitude toward the peasant—was the difference that made the difference. China is mostly rural and her peasants make up 80 to 90 per cent of her population. Chiang was closely allied with the landlord class which was a dominant element in his Kuomintang Party. In normal times the peasant was caught in a tight vise between the landlord and the moneylender, often the same person. The eight-year war against Japan turned the screw still tighter. At the same time that the peasant was demanding a larger share of the fruit of his toil, under the Nationalists the poor were getting poorer. It was a revolutionary idea—this fair shares for all bit—and Mao rode it to victory.

EVEN IF Chiang had wanted to institute land reform, it is doubtful the radical right of the Kuomintang would have permitted it. Chiang feels the U.S. betrayed him. I agree, we did at Yalta. But Chiang betrayed himself in the long run by not recognizing and standing for the winds of change which were approaching typhoon force in China. He attempted to stem these winds with a strictly military solution. Chiang stood for the status quo; Mao stood for change.

Autocratic, aloof, obstinate, Chiang is a sort of Chinese Charles de Gaulle, without de Gaulle's world vision. The U.S. is stuck with Chiang, for better or worse, because he is the only resolute, well-known, anti-Communist Chinese with any following left.

He still dreams of liberating the Mainland. He will exploit the current tension between the U.S. and Red China with the hope of getting us embroiled in this project. Everything he told the U.S. News and World Report should be viewed in this light.

LET'S NOT BE lured by his illusion that the people of China would rise up in arms to support his armies the moment he establishes a beachhead on the Mainland. Chiang has been thoroughly repudiated by the Chinese people.

Goldberg Worries Over U.N. Debts, Voting Deadlock

New Ambassador Also Faces Dominican, Red China Issues

By MAX HARRELSON

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) The U.N. financial crisis is ranked by Ambassaor Arthur J. Goldberg as the No. 1 problem he inherited when he became chief U.S. delegate to the United Nations.

Taking up his post, the Supreme Court justice told newsmen at U.N. headquarters:

"If we do not put our own house in order, I doubt if we will succeed in putting other houses in order."

He meant that he would give top priority to ending the deadlock over Soviet voting rights which paralyzed the General Assembly throughout its last session.

Goldberg already has sought to enlist the United Nations in the search for peace in Viet Nam, and he will be called upon to defend U.S. policies on the Dominican Republic. He also will lead the fight to keep Red China out of the world organization.

But most U.N. observers agree that what happens on the financial problem is critical for the United Nations. Some say further that Goldberg's handling of the question could have an important bearing on his own public image.

Will he emerge, for example, as an appeaser or will he take a tough line? Will he increase his reputation as a negotiator, or will he find himself in the same dificulties which frustrated his predecessor, Adlai Stevenson?

The basic issue in the financial crisis is what to do about Article 19 of the U.N. charter. This provides that members will lose their vote in the General Assembly if they fall two years behind in paying assessments.

The Soviet Union, France and 11 other countries are in this category. But there is a dispute over the legality of peace-keeping assessments, which make up most of the deficit. The delinquent countries say these special levies are invalid—because they were voted by the Assembly rather than the Security Council. The United States disagrees.

A showdown was averted during the past session of the Assembly by a no-vote truce, but only a few housekeeping decisions were taken.

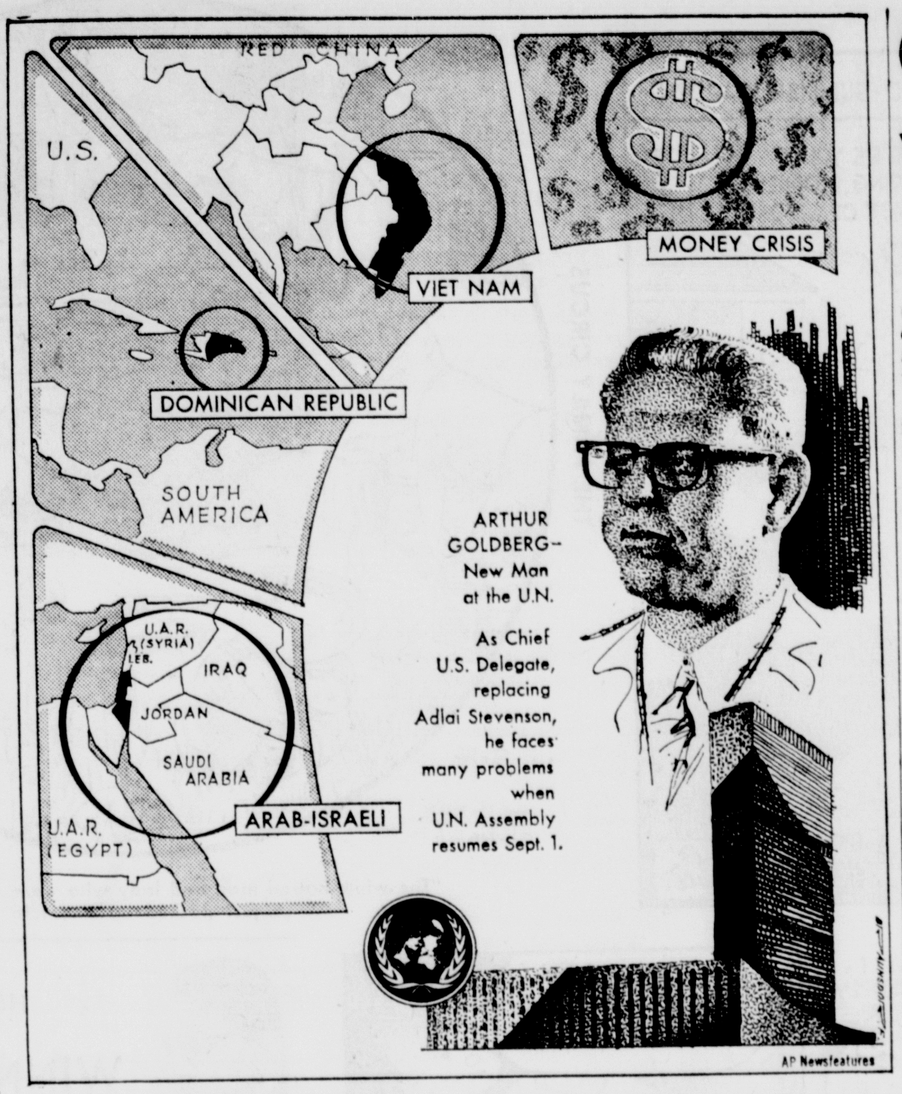

Goldberg has acknowledged that the United States is now reviewing its policy and has not yet decided what to do. It is generally believed at the United Nations that chances of a confrontation have all but vanished.

U.N. observers have concluded that the United States could not get enough support to win in the event of a showdown. It has been noted also that Assistant Secretary of State Harlan Cleveland, chief architect of the hardline policy on Article 19, is leaving the State Department and that Goldberg has taken a leading role in the policy review. His intensive consultations with members of Congress are seen as a sign that he is trying to sell a new approach.

The central question apparently is how the United States can retreat from its tough stand with the minimum amount of embarrassment.

Goldberg has indicated that he hopes to unveil the U.S. position to the Assembly's 33-nation committee on peacekeeping when it meets Aug. 16. If an agreement can be reached, the results will be sent to the Assembly, which will resume its 19th session Sept. 1. The way would thus be cleared for normal voting at the 20th session, which opens Sept. 21.

Apart from the specific issues mentioned above, Goldberg faces two personal challenges. He succeeds the popular Adlai Stevenson, whose prestige was never higher than at the time of his death July 14. And he must overcome an initial coolness on the part of Arab delegations because he is Jewish. Those who know him well say he will have no serious difficulty on either count. He made an unusually good impression on his first brief appearance at U.N. headquarters.

Germans Now Shun War Crimes Trial

By RICHARD H. GROWALD

FRANKFURT, Germany (UPI) — The Auschwitz war crimes trial has become a dull ache that everyone wishes would go away.

It played to packed courtrooms when it opened 18 months ago in city hall here.

But now, as the longest trial in German history draws to a close in a civic center on the wrong side of the railroad tracks, only a few visitors sit, surrounded by empty gray folding chairs.

The trial, so shocking in the horrible details of what went on in the Auschwitz death camp during the Hitler years, has by repetition taken on an air of almost static boredom. It is almost a year since the chief judge wept. Alleged Gestapo torture master Wilhelm Boger, one of the 20 men accused of helping kill 2.5 to 4 million persons at the wartime concentration camp, hasn't clicked his heels in court for almost as long.

There was a time when defendant Stefan Baretzki, a one-time baby faced Gestapo man, caused spectators to faint with the callous bluntness on his recollections. Like the day he testified he once got leave from Auschwitz duties and went home to tell his mother about his work.

"Don't be stupid, Stefan. People don't burn," mother Baretezki said.

"They do where I work," Stefan said he told her.

But today nurses no longer sit and wait outside the courtroom doors to tend the thin-skinned.

The sensation is gone. Sitting in the court week after week, month after month, it is easy to become restive, inattentive, and bored. Once upon a time the black robed court clerks stared up over their eyeglasses when, for example, former Auschwitz guard Klaus Dylewski explained why the Nazis periodically shot all the inmates in a barracks.

"Room had to be made for new prisoners," he said. That was good for a courtroom gasp. No longer, now, sometimes, there is even laughter.

Only the defendants, mostly aging Germans with limited educations who went to such postwar jobs as male nurses and janitors, used to snicker and chuckle. Boger once laughed a lot. Oswald Kaduk, a fat man who looks like a caricature of a Nazi villain in a B movie, was Boger's favorite comic.

The Auschwitz trial is not popular in Germany. It is a skeleton many, if not most, Germans would prefer shoved back in the closet. Isn't West Germany today a Western, anti-Communist, democratic, country? Why rake up the past? Should I be angry that my father didn't stand up and thumb his nose at Hitler and get shot? Germans say this, and they want you to understand.

Computers May Backstop State's Lawmakers Soon

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — Modern streamlining of the California assembly has progressed to the point where the computers of an electronic age will be pressed into service to help solve some of this state's major problems.

The assembly has retained services of Henri Semarne, described as "a respected expert in computer systems." Semarne's job will be to assist the assembly in designing computer applications of various types.

This information came from Speaker of the Assembly Jesse M. Unruh, D-Los Angeles, and was first made public by Unruh in a recent speech he delivered at the National Legislative Conference council of state governments, in Portland, Ore.

Extent of the proposed computer services to the legislature has not been resolved as yet, but it is anticipated a wide field exists for the use of fast and accurate information to California's solons.

It was learned it is possible such services might be coordinated with and entire statewide system proposed by an aerospace firm in Sunnyvale, which now is under study by state experts for possible application in wide informational fields.

The Sunnyvale firm made its recommendations as the result of a study, one of four by various concerns, inaugurated by Gov. Edmund G. Brown, who seeks to apply space age techniques to problems.

Behind The News

A Weekly Page Of Background Information

As yet, the recommendations have not been made public, but enough has been learned of their content to realize a "whole new world" exists insofar as handling information regarding individuals, business, and general state problems as they arise, as well as ways and means of recognizing the outgrowth of new problems before they are evident.

Unruh's move toward computer usage is part of his move to accomplish what he terms restoring the legislature as equal in the three branches of government, executive, judicial and legislative.

He told the legislative conference that legislators need to take advantage of "every tool available to keep pace with an environment that is rapidly becoming transformed by science and technology."

Reluctance of the public to approve constitutional reforms must be overcome, he declared.

One of the speaker's first steps in degislative reform was a move to improve work of assembly interim committees. Under a new plan, committees are to study and make recommendations on major issues and problems, rather than evaluating single bills and resolutions. Unruh said this is the first step toward developing omnibus legislation, drastically reduce total numbers of bills and in the long run, provide better legislation for the state.

The path of reform is difficult for a legislators, Unruh said in his speech.

"A strong executive (governor) is hailed as a leader—a strong legislator is denounced as a bully. Your allies will be few. The lobbyists will accuse you of dictatorship. The press will puncture you with jibes.

"Your governor will cry traitor or assassin. Your party will not understand, and worst of all, many of your own colleagues will be in opposition."

Political Change Comes To South

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Fundamental political change came to the deep South this week.

Under the aegis of the new federal voting rights law, thousands of Negroes in Louisiana's bayous, Alabama's red clay communities and Mississippi's country towns registered to vote for the first time.

There were no incidents as newly installed federal examiners within three days enrolled nearly 5,000 Negroes as voters in nine southern counties in which federal statistics showed voting discrimination was prevalent.

More than 615 Negroes were registered in the Dallas County Courthouse in Selma, Ala. There was no vestige of the violence which last spring prodded the legislative machinery that rapidly ground out the historic voting rights act.

The quiet tone in Selma was reflected in the other counties in the three states, where Negroes also enrolled without trouble.

The tranquility of the once-seething south was overshadowed by mounting fury in Los Angeles, Chicago and Springfield, Mass.

Two national guard batallions with loaded weapons and fixed bayonets swept into a riot-ravaged Negro ghetto in southeast Los Angeles in an effort to halt three straight nights of a bloody holocaust.

Violence erupted for the second straight night in a west side Negro neighborhood in Chicago where an undermanned fire truck struck and killed a Negro woman passerby.

Two stores were set afire in a largely Negro district of Springfield, Mass., following the arrest of 23 civil rights demonstrators on the steps of city hall.

In Viet Nam, a U.S. Navy jet fighter-bomber was knocked down by a Communist surface-to-air missile (SAM). It was the second U.S. plane missile-downed near the North Viet Nam capital of Hanoi.

Five other U.S. planes were shot down by anti-aircraft fire over North Viet Nam in a single day.

A relief force lifted a siege of allied government troops at Duc Co.

Pneumatic 'Tube' Trains Urged As Commuter Problems Answer

By GENE BYLINSKY
Advance News Service

WASHINGTON — Passenger trains propelled through underground tubes by compressed air may be the answer to mass transportation problems in the heavily populated northeast corridor and in the nation's cities.

New York City and its environs, in particular, might solve the commuter problem by building a 140-mile network of dual tubes that would run from Manhattan into Staten Island, New Jersey, Westchester County and Long Island, suggests a California transportation expert.

The cost of such a system of tubes and superfast trains, running up to 300 miles per hour, would be only slightly more than the estimated $1 billion needed to modernize commuter railroads in the New York City area, says L. K. Edwards, president of Tube Transit, Inc.

Writing in Scientific American, Edwards says each train in the urban tube transit system would be a half-mile long. At each suburban station there would be a long, narrow parking lot directly above the train. Numerous access roads would pass through the parking lot, to sharply reduce surface congestion.

The tunnels would slope down and then up again, to help accelerate and slow down the trains.

For longer-range travel in the corridor, Edwards suggests a dual tunnel 400 miles long, running from Boston to Washington.

Surprisingly, Edwards argues that, while the tube trains would offer many advantages, the cost of building the tunnel "may well be less expensive than any other high-speed solution to the corridor problem."

The dual tunnel would cost $4 million to $5 million a mile to construct. But it would cost $6 million a mile to duplicate the largely conventional Tokaido high-speed surface railroad line —the Japanese 150-mph railroad that runs between Tokyo and Osaka.

What's more, says Edwards, surface speeds of up to 500 mph that would be needed in the northeast corridor to compete with airplanes "are unthinkable unless one protects the train from ice and objects falling or thrown into its path."

At such speeds, too, drag forces due to air resistance would make a surface train impossible.

New machinery for automatic tunneling through hard rock is available, says Edwards.

The heavy right-of-way costs and real estate taxes would be almost completely eliminated by tunneling instead of surface construction. Finally, the tunnel would be smaller than some of the water tunnels supplying New York City and only two-thirds as large as a standard railroad tunnel.

Edwards notes that the principle of pneumatic propulsion is not new. Pneumatic delivery tubes are in use in newspapers and other institutions. Even pneumatic passenger transportation isn't exactly new.

'BEST PROGRAM IN NATION'

California Pioneering In Aid To Veterans In The Cold War

By JERRY RANKIN

SACRAMENTO (AP)—Twenty years after World War II's final angry shot, California is pioneering in generous help to fighting men back from yet another war in a far off land—Viet Nam.

In the cases of those who don't return alive, the state does its best to ease the burden of women without a husband or children without a father.

California veterans of Cold War danger zones that didn't turn hot get the same aid as those who served where the bullets flew.

If you are a veteran, the state will help you buy a home, give you one if you're too badly hurt to make a living, or hand you a better chance for state employment over the non-vet.

As Veterans Department Director Joseph Farber puts it, "We have THE program for veterans as far as the nation goes."

This applies whether you beat back the Germans in foggy Belleau Woods in 1918, crossed the Rhine in 1945, ducked Viet Cong or Dominican rebel bullets in 1965, or just sweated it out in Berlin or Lebanon.

It also ranks as one of the century's ironies that today, one day short of 20 years after atomic — bombed Japan surrendered to end the last big war, California assists its Japanese-Americans forced out of the state in 1942 as a frenzied reaction to Pearl Harbor.

A Japanese-American removed from California by President Roosevelt's order that year and penned in camps elsewhere—and who later fought under the Stars and Stripes—is eligible for many of the same benefits offered the non-Japanese vet who once might have gone to school with him and now may live next door.

A unique plan offering low-cost loans allowing vets to buy a home or farm, with special consideration for low-income veterans.

A big, well equipped home at Yountville in Napa Valley's wine country providing care for veterans unable to make their way in the world any longer.

Special property tax exemptions, a subject of increasing attack by state and local officials.

There are other less significant but still important special advantages veterans get over non-vets:

Disabled servicemen of "the Civil War, any Indian War, Philippine Insurrection, Chinese Relief Expedition" or later wars may "hawk, peddle, and vend" goods without paying license fees.

Severely disabled exservicemen qualify for special license plates, and vehicle fees for them are waived.

An outdoors-minded vet with at least 70 per cent disability who still wants to hunt or fish is eligible for free license.

When the veteran dies, counties must pay up to $250 to make sure he isn't laid to rest in a pauper's grave, and up to $10 for a headstone.

Farber, a former World War II infantryman, points out that California has more veterans than any other state — 2.5 million. Of these, 1.25 million qualify for California benefits, but the state processes federal benefits for many of the rest.

He notes that California this year became teh first state to bring Cold War veterans under coverage of advantages previously reserved for wartime servicemen.

In all cases, a serviceman must have an honorable discharge to receive help, plus meet various other regulations.

California's initial veterans effort was the Women's Relief Corps Home to look after poor, unmarried daughters of Union Army vets following the Civil War. The home took in its last spinster in 1947.

Mexican War and Civil War veterans opened the 900 - acre Yountville home in 1883. At the end of last June, 1,769 aging or medically poor veterans of several wars lived there, 92 per cent of its capacity, at an annual cost of $5.6 million. Included are 65 women.

A center of controversy is the veteran's privilege of not paying taxes on the first $1,000 of personal property if he has belongings valued at less than $5,000.

Hundreds of thousands of veterans claim this right, and in recent years grand juries and legislators have declared many of them aren't entitled to the exemption, which costs non-veteran taxpayers millions.

Keystone to the state's veterans program is the Cal-Vet loan plan. Maximum loans available are $15,000 for a veteran seeking to buy a home and $80,000 for those wishing to purchase a farm.

First authorized by the people in 1921, the boosted by voter approval in 12 subsequent bond elections through 1962, the program has provided 222,714 loans in the past 44 years at a low interest rate for a total cost of $2.29 billion.

Farber is intensely proud of the streamlining and cost cutting policies in force since he was appointed by Gov. Brown in 1958.

The younger veteran is looked after, too. When it comes to finding a job, veterans or their widows applying for state civil service positions automatically receive 10 points more on examinations than they actually score. Disabled vets get a 15-point edge on non-veterans.

Since World War, I, millions of dollars have been spent in state educational aid to veterans, their widows or children who've exhausted their federal eligibility.

More than 80,000 exservicemen took advantage of the chance to draw up to $1,000 for education before the program for them wound up last June.

Simple But Unusual Play Assures Bridge Game Win

When you have four trumps in your own hand and only three in dummy, you must take care to keep control.

You must usually set up your tricks before drawing trumps, and you must defend your trump suit in the meantime.

South was sorry to be in four spades instead of five clubs, but the bidding was far from outlandish. He had to swallow his sorrow and concentrate on the play.

FIRST TRICK

South won the first trick with the ace of hearts, ruffed a heart in dummy and returned a low club from dummy. East cleverly played low, and South won with the jack of clubs.

Declarer ruffed his other heart in dummy, cashed the ace of clubs and the king of spades, and then gave up a club.

West got rid of his last heart on the third round of clubs, and East thereupon led a fourth round of hearts.

IN TROUBLE

South was in trouble. When South ruffed low, West overruffed and returned a diamond.

East was sure to get a diamond trick, and West got another trump trick when East led his last heart.

Life became very complicated for South when he took the first trick. The best play is simple, but unusual: he must refuse the first heart.

BEST DEFENSE

East's best defense is to return a heart, making dummy ruff. Declarer draws two rounds of trumps with the king and queen and then leads a low club from dummy.

Whenever East takes the king of clubs he can return a heart, but South still has the ace of hearts to win the trick.

South draws the last two trumps and takes the rest of the tricks in dummy with the ace of diamonds and good clubs.

British Merchants Are Called 'Gloomy'

LONDON AP) — The Association of British Chambers of Commerce says this nation's merchants are "clearly gloomy" at the United Kingdom's foreign trade prospects.

Only a tenth of 295 merchants queried in a survey reported improving prospects, the association said.

Clergymen Take Lessons From Industry

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

To sharpen up their managerial skills, church leaders today are turning to the professional and business world.

Ecclesiastical "top brass" from across the country are involved. The aim: more efficient, up-to-date administrative methods.

It is to help "good church executives become better church executives," said the Rev. Dr. J. Quinter Miller, of New York, president of a newly formed interdenominational agency — the Church Executive Development Board, Inc.

The first program of its kind and scope, it launches its educational operation next week, with high officeholders of churches getting lessons from upper-echelon experts of industry, government, education and other fields.

"The know-how, decision-making skills and management insights which society has evolved in any sector are what we're seeking to bring into the administrative processes of church life," Dr. Miller said.

At the same time, he added, it is expected that the church professionals will contribute particular insights about human personality which may be helpful to the secular institutions.

First of the training sessions, to be followed by others on a regular basis, will run Aug. 15 to Sept. 3 at American University and Wesley Seminary in Washington, D.C., with 60 church executives enrolled.

A tide of other applicants, crowded out of the first class by the maximum set for it, will be scheduled for future sessions.

The program is for senior church officers — bishops, general secretaries, board chairmen, department heads — of denominational dioceses, synods, conferences and associations, and also of national, state and local councils of churches.

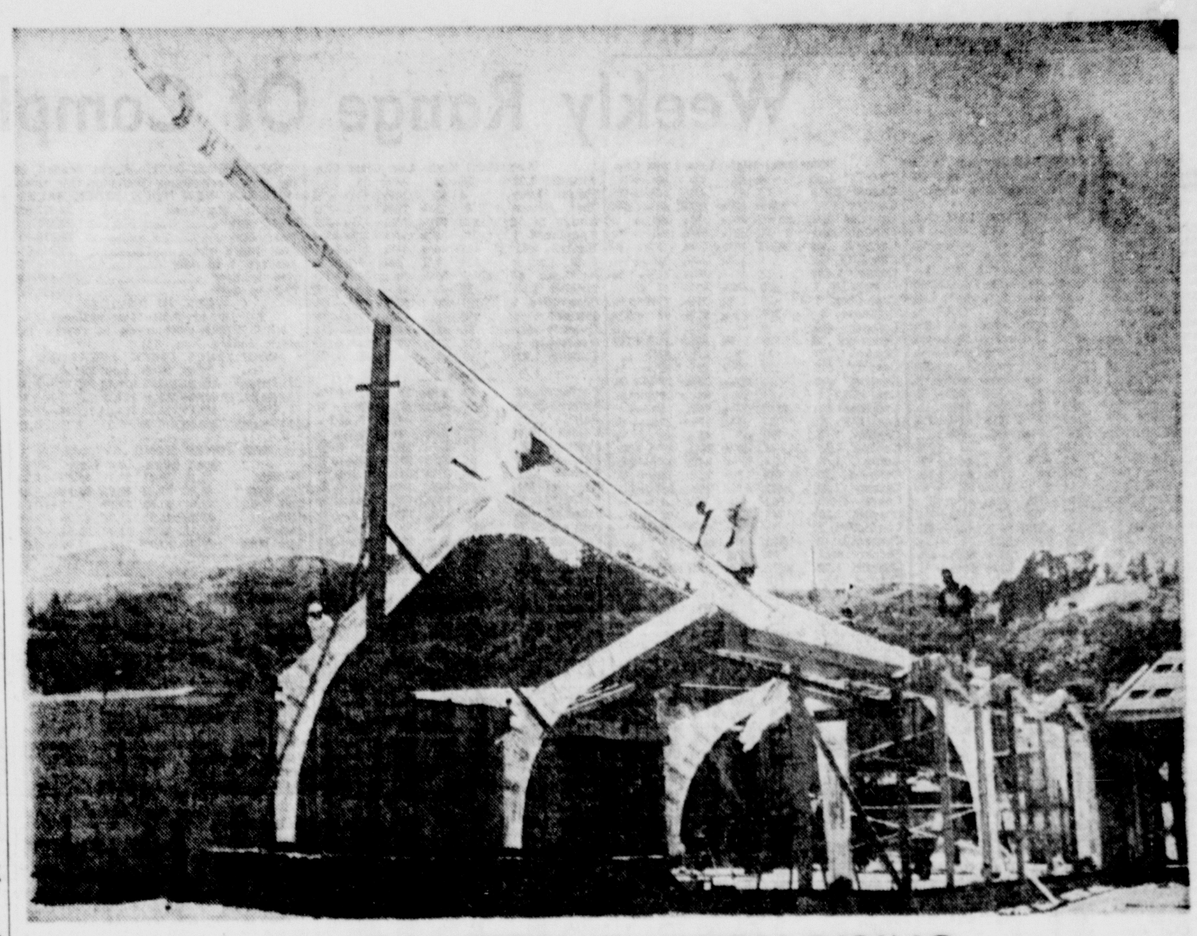

More than 120,000 clergymen and laymen hold such offices in Protestant Orthodox denominations of the United States, and nearly that many more Roman Catholics fill upper executive roles in their church.

Strangely, however, unlike business institutions, the churches have never had any regular provisions for preparing manpower specifically to serve in complicated administrative positions.

Dr. Miller, 65, a Church of The Brethren member and associate general secretary for special services of the National Council of Churches, ran into the problem long ago as a student, seeking graduate study in church administration.

He found that no curriculum existed for it. He has been working to get one going. A grant of $129,700 by the Lilly Endowment, Inc., provided the initial wherewithal. A special interchurch consultation was held on the matter.

Thereafter, a draft plan was drawn up by Robert Greenleaf, director of research of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company. Subsequently, the planning board was incorporated last year to set the program in motion.

Two Ministers Prepare For New Classes

Pastors of two Marin County Lutheran churches have returned from Madison, Wisc., prepared to offer three new classes in the Bethel Study Series to their congregations.

Rev. John Rotto of Christ the Victor Church in Fairfax and Rev. Sig G. Sandrock of Shepherd of the Hills Church in Tiburon, attended a special teaching clinic in the midwestern city last month.

The courses they will teach include "Gems for Daily Living," "To Love and to Cherish," and "The Ten Commandments" in their own churches. In addition, Reverend Sandrock will teach the courses at San Quentin Prison as part of the School of Religion there.

In the past four years, the two Lutheran churches have conducted Old and New Testament classes for some 400 laymen.

Two other congregations, Marin Lutheran in Corte Madera and Good Shepherd in Novato, are teaching the original Bethel Bible series.

British Cleric Sees U.S. Church Woes

"Church attendance may have reached its crest in the United States," a British Baptist leader said last week while visiting the Golden Gate Baptist Seminary at Strawberry.

On his fourth tour of America since 1947, Rev. J. W. Grant, a district missionary superintendent for the British Baptist Union, compared the historical rise of church-attendance in the United States with the parallel decline of church-going in England.

"Only 10 per cent of the people of Great Britain attend church regularly," commented Grant, as he contrasted the peak church attendance in England two and three decades ago.

Prosperity, secularism, and other forces were cited by the Britisher as basic causes for the decline of religious faith and interest. He said these same forces could result in a similar pattern in the United States, and if church-going has reached a peak in America, the decline in institutional church attendance and life may have already begun.

The British minister urged church leaders in America to change and adapt the life of the church to the needs of men today and to use religious language that men can understand in a secular age.

Christianity Must Become A Scandal

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

Dr. Robert McAffee Brown, professor of religion at Stanford University, is one of Protestantism's most "relevant" young theologians.

He has been deeply involved in the ecumenical movement, and served as a Protestant observer at the Vatican Council.

He was one of the first clergymen to go to jail for participating in a civil rights demonstration in Mississippi.

No one has ever accused him of being a hide-bound conservative.

When such a man becomes alarmed by trends in contemporary Protestant theology, it cannot be shrugged off as the maundering of a mouldy fig.

Dr. Brown voices his concern in the preface to a new paperback edition of his book, "The Spirit of Protestantism."

"Much of what is going on at present on the Protestant scene," he says, "gives the impression of being willing to jettison whatever is necessary in order to appeal to the modern mentality."

That's a polite, professorial way of saying that some of his colleagues have gone too far in their gung-ho efforts to strip the Christian Gospel of any doctrine—up to and including belief in God—which seems to give offense to skeptics.

Teaching in a great secular university, Dr. Brown is well aware of "the appalling irrelevance of Christianity to the vast majority of modern men." And he has tried hard in his books, articles and lectures to present the Gospel in terms which educated people of today will find comprehensible.

But reinterpreting the good news is one thing; abandoning it is another.

"It is not the task of Christians to whittle away their heritage until it is finally palatable to all," he says.

"Faith has never been easy. . . . There is a 'scandal' to the Christian faith . . . and he who proclaims it, either through what he says or what he is or what he does, must be prepared to be called a fool for Christ's sake."

"Scandal" is the term St. Paul used nearly 2,000 years ago to describe the reaction of Jewish and Greek intellectuals to the Christian claim that God had dwelt among men in the person of an humble Galilean teacher. But the apostle would not tone down his shocking story to make it more respectable in the ears of his audience. It was better to be thought a fool, he said, than to be unfaithful to the truth which God has revealed about himself in Christ.

Dr. Brown does not want the church to be so concerned with doctrinal orthodoxy that it shies away from open dialogue with a skeptical culture. He acknowledges that "seeming irrelevance to the world is always the temptation of theological purists."

But "undue accommodation to the world is equally destructive of faithful witness." And it is the latter pitfall which opens at the feet of Protestantism today.

AUTHOR—Dr. Robert McAfee Brown, author of the book about which columnist Louis Cassels writes today, spoke in dialogue at St. Raphael's Catholic Church during a Pentecost ecumenical program last spring.

Marin Rabbi Notes Space Age Problem

Even earthbound, devout Jews face a problem in this space age, Rabbi Morris Schussheim of San Rafael's Congregation Kol Shofar pointed out last week in a letter from Jerusalem.

He enclosed a clipping from the Jerusalem Post containing a wry and fantastic tale of a Jewish astronaut who was exhausted by the effort of observing the Sabbath every seventh sunset, when sunsets came every 90 minutes during his orbital voyage.

Although the subject of humor, the problems of devout observance in space are considered very real by halachists, who are pondering the answer to such questions as when is the Sabbath on the moon, where sunsets come only 12 times a year. What if the space traveller gets so far away our Sun is invisible?

Rabbi Schussheim pointed out that the speed of modern travel can cause worry even to more conventional travelers.

"About three years ago," he recalled, "we had a similar experience" on the course of a trip around the world.

"Crossing the International Date Line, we found that we had moved from Thursday night to Saturday morning. As a result, my wife was confronted with the problem of having missed her lighting of the Sabbath Eve candles. To a religious woman, that was a distressing experience."

Glenwood Vicar Goes To Own Home Parish

The Rev. Richard Beaumont, vicar of the Episcopal Church of the Redeemer, Glenwood, since June, 1962, is leaving to become the rector of St. James' Parish in Paso Robles, his former home.

Father Beaumont will celebrate the Eucharist in the Glenwood Church for the last time before leaving at 10 a.m. tomorrow.

There will be a farewell reception for Father and Mrs. Beaumont from 4 to 6 p.m. in the Parish House on Knight Drive.

The name of the new vicar of the Church of the Redeemer has not yet been announced, but there will be no interruption in Sunday services or other church activities in the interim, Reverend Beaumont said.

Evangelist Series Nears Completion

Final two sessions of the Christ for Marin Crusade in the Protestant Chapel of Hamilton Air Force Base will be held tonight and tomorrow afternoon.

Sponsored by 16 Marin County churches, the third annual evangelistic program has been a week of special meetings conducted by internationally known preacher Dr. J. Edwin Orr.

Today's program will begin at 7:45 p.m.; tomorrow's finale at 3 p.m.

Bible School Due In Novato School

Vacation Bible school will begin at 9 a.m. Monday in the North Marin Assembly of God, Novato, and run each weekday for two weeks, from 9 a.m. to noon for children from 4 through 14 years old.

The classes are free, but a daily offering will be received to meet expenses.

The school will conclude with a program at 7 p.m. Aug. 27.

Illuminated Cross Given As Memorial

An illuminated cross constructed on top of the Tamalpais Valley Community Methodist Church will be dedicated at services beginning at 11 a.m. Aug. 22.

The cross is a memorial to Mrs. Melvina Mitchell, charter member of the church, who died recently. It was made possible by contributions.

The cross was designed and installed by LeRoy Post and may be seen from a large part of Tamalpais Valley on the church at Marin and Ash streets.

Novato Methodist Bible School Set

Youngsters of kindergarten through sixth grade age may be enrolled in the Novato Methodist Church vacation Bible school on the first morning of classes next Monday.

The classes will be held from 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. each weekday through Aug. 27, according to Mrs. Norman Brown, director.

Classes will be divided according to four age groups.

Richardson Bay Sanitary Pay Listed

The Independent-Journal, as a public service, continues its listing of salaries of public districts in Marin with those of the Richardson Bay Sanitary District:

Max H. Graefe, plant operator, $8,100; James Torbert, assistant operator, $6,300; Mrs. Clyda Tyrell, secretarial work at $3 an hour; attorneys Wilson, Jones, Morton and Lynch of San Mateo, $100 a meeting averaging one meeting a month.

Directors Stanley G. Bennett, Alfred O. Pratesi, Kurtis Webb, Samuel A. Fletcher and Mrs. Beverly Wheeler are paid $25 each per meeting, averaging one meeting a month.

Youth Council Not Sponsor Of Dance

An article in Thursday's independent-Journal incorrectly stated that a dance banned last month at the Mill Valley Youth and Community Center was sponsored by the Mill Valley Youth Council.

David Gilliam, president of the Southern Marin Boys Club and chairman of the council, said the dance, stopped by Mill Valley City Mgr. Bert A. Balmer, was actually scheduled by council co-director Les Mize and was not approved by the council.

Student Back Home In Italy

Sergio Pecroelli of Brescia, near Milan, lived with Dr. and Mrs. A. J. Ungersma of 36 Vineyard Avenue, San Anselmo, while he attended the school during the 1961-62 school year.

His present studies were described in a Navy news release telling how he and other Italian students visited the aircraft carrier Shangri-La recently in the Mediterranean.

MEDICARE AND YOU

Disabled Does Not Mean Helpless, Too

By JOHN TROAN
NEA Special Writer
(Twelveth in a Series)

You needn't be a helpless invalid to qualify for a Social Security disability benefit.

However, you have to be so disabled that you can't "engage in any substantial gainful activity." In other words, it must be established that because of your physical or mental condition you are unable to do ANY kind of work for a living.

In the past, such benefits were issued only if it was shown the disability was expected to last indefinitely or to result in death. But this has been changed, effective Sept. 1.

Now the law says — if you have a disability which (1) has lasted at least 12 months or (2) is expected to last that long or (3) is expected to result in death, you may start collecting such a benefit.

Provided, of course, you have worked long enough under Social Security to be eligible. Generally, you must have worked under Social Security at least five of the 10 years just before you became disabled.

Wthen you apply for a disability benefit, the Social Security office gives you a special medical form to be filled out by your doctor and by hospitals and other institutions where you have been treated.

On this form they tell what has been found to be wrong with you, how severe your condition is, what medical tests have revealed, what treatments you have received and to what degree you are unable to do such thangs as move about, handle objects, hear, speak, understand or reason.

All this — plus information about your age, education, training, skills and work experience — is sent to an agency specified by your state. There, a team of doctors and others experienced in this field decide whether you are "disabled" within the definition of the Social Security law.

If your application is O.K.'d, your benefit may start with the seventh full month of disability. And your first check would arrive the following month.

If you resume working despite your disability, you may keep drawing your benefit during a "trial work period" that can last as long as nine months. Once it is determined you are no longer disabled, you may get a benefit for three more months.

Suppose you then became disabled again? Well, you wouldn't have to put in another waiting period if (1) the new disability arises within five years after the previous one ended and (2) your new disability is expected to last at least a year or to result in death.

A special provision cover the blind.

Under Social Security, a person is regarded blind if (1) his vision rates not better than 5-200 with glasses or (2) he has such gun-barrel vision that his "visual field" is limited to five degrees in the better eye even with glasses.

The new law also makes it easier for blind persons to collect disability benefits. This applies to persons blinded before age 31 and to jobless blind individuals 55 or older.

(NEXT—Survivors' benefits).

Legion Convention Aide Is Announced

Richard H. Miehling of 244 Santa Margarita Drive, San Rafael, has been appointed National Sergeant-at-Arms for the American Legion National Convention, Aug. 20-26 in Portland, Ore.

Miehling, a charter member of the San Rafael Wilkins Post 37, has served as post commander three times during his 47 years in the legion, and is presently serving as secretary of the board of building control.

New Citizens Traveled Far From Home To Meet, Wed

Joseph and Doris Sami of 10 Mount Foraker Drive, Lucas Valley, naturalized as citizens in July, grew up living 20 miles away from each other in Switzerland, yet met thousands of miles from their homes.

In 1955, at age 22, the future Mrs. Sami left her family's home in Switzerland and traveled to Montreal, Canada, where she secured a job and settled into a new life.

A year later, friends invited her to a party. There was a young man, her age, from Switzerland in the neighborhood and they should meet.

The couple dated in Montreal until 1959, when they moved to this country and were married in San Francisco. They settled in San Rafael, where Sami took a job as a mechanic.

The Samis have two daughters—Helen, 2, and Monica, 7 months.

Also naturalized last month was John P. Edwards of 8 Hillcrest Court, San Anselmo, his wife, Kathleen, and two sons, John A. and Robert D. Edwards. Karen, the couple's 14-year-old daughter, automatically became a citizen.

The Edwards came to America from Vancouver, Canada, in 1960, when Edwards took a job as general manager of Lewis Lithography of San Francisco.

Robert Edwards, 22, served tnree years in the Navy after the family's arrival in this country and is attending University of Colorado; John Edwards, 19, is at College of Marin; and Karen, 14, is at Sir Francis Drake High School.

The family lived in Daly City their first year in this country, then moved to Mill Valley. They have lived in San Anselmo two and one half years.

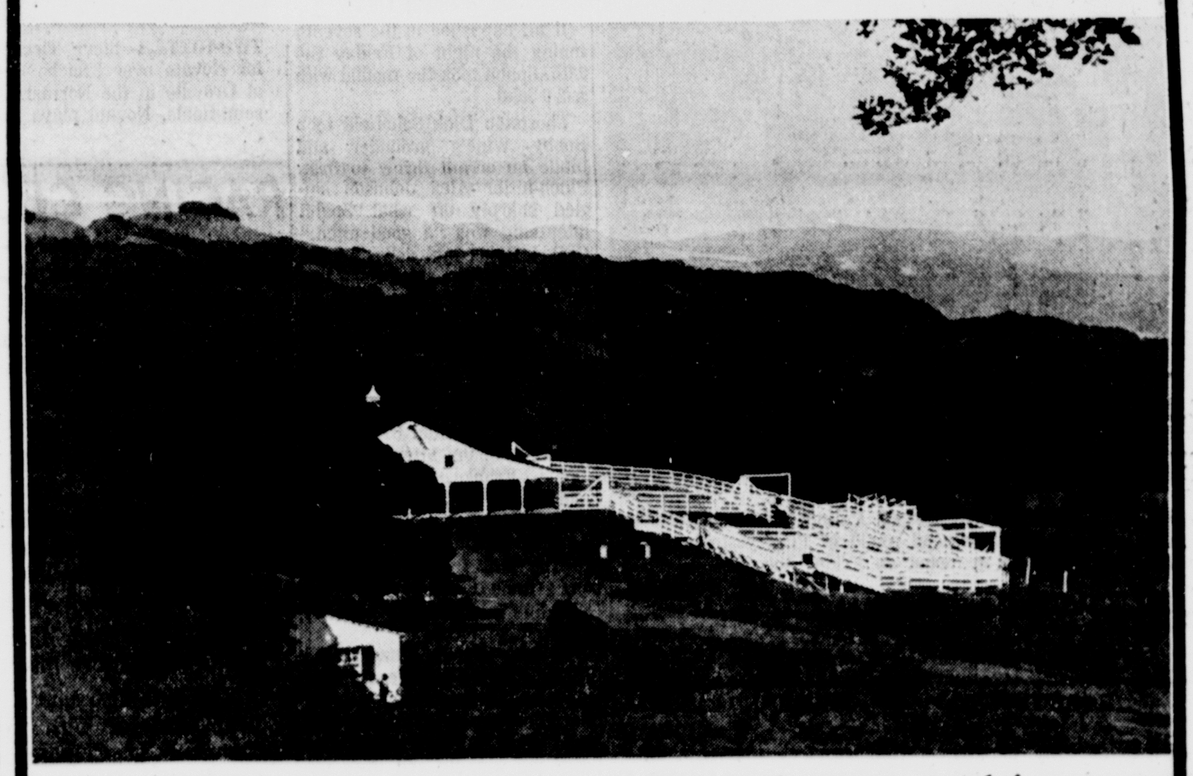

Also naturalized during July were:

Mrs. Shu-Yu Marie Armstrong of 103 Randolph Drive, Hamilton Air Force Base; Mrs. Threse Andree Jacqueline Froehlich of 885 Marin Drive, San Rafael; Luis Arcesio Otanez of 217 Mirada Avenue, San Rafael; Miss Tatiana Yudin of 520 Belle Avenue, San Rafael.

Mrs. Birte Holmgaard of 221 Chapman Drive, Corte Madera; Mrs. Johane Hohlt of 407 Mission Avenue, Apt. 1, San Rafael; Vasil Naimish (name changed to William Naimish) of 14 Janet Way, Apt. 149, Tiburon; Khosrow Sarrafzadeh of 219 Canal Street, Apt. 11, San Rafael; Jerzy Surowiecki-Listek (changed to George Surovtsov) of 387 Cascade Drive, Fairfax, and Mrs. Elizabeth Margaret Huddleston of 40 Driftwood Court, San Rafael.

DIAMOND A RANCH

Ride Away To The Valley of the Moon

Imagine riding over the 18 miles of riding trails, visiting the pond, the waterfall, the fishing lake, or swimming in the community pool. Would you like to relax on the veranda and watch the lights come up in the towns nearby, and be hypnotized by the beacons from the airport. and the towers of the Golden Gate Bridge.

Estate size building lots, in a setting of trees, rolling hills; sprinkled with live streams and lush green ground cover. The perfect background for the home you've always dreamed of, in an area of other fine homes. All just 55 minutes from the heart of San Francisco—an island of solitude mere minutes from the cities of Sonoma, Santa Rosa, and the Sonoma Golf and Country Club.

Lots from 1½ to 2½ acres
Priced From
$8,350 to $15,200

25 lots remaining.

I-J SPECIAL REPORT

OROVILLE—Novato's All-Stars took another big step along the rugged National Little League baseball tournament trail last night by beating Rancho Cordova of Sacramento 1-0 behind the two-hit pitching of Steve Tieche and clutch hitting of Stan Ericksen, Tom Nelson and Jack Burnam.

The dramatic victory—toughest yet in Novato's seven straight triumphs—sent the North Marin 11-12-year-old stars into the Northern California Division championships tonight against West Hayward League All-Stars at 6 o'clock. The Hayward team gained the finals by beating Santa Clara 3-2 Thursday night.

Tonight's winner will advance to the Western Regionals at Portland, Ore. Aug. 19-21—the last springboard to the Little League World Series in Williamsport, Pa., later this month.

Ericksen, who plays first base or the outfield when he isn't pitching, continued his remarkable tournament hitting streak last night, batting three for three and scoring THE run in the division semi-final thriller.

It came in the fourth inning of the gripping duel when the big boy drilled a single to light the spark. Manager Moats ordered Burnam to sacrifice and the reliable catcher bunted perfectly, advancing Ericksen to second. Then outfielder Nelson cracked a single up the middle and Ericksen streaked home with the big run.

Tieche, meanwhile, was pitching brilliantly. He had a no-hitter for five and one-third innings until Rancho Cordova threatened with back-to-back singles with one out in the sixth and final inning. Novato got the second out but Rancho Cordova had the tying run on third and winning run on second, only to collapse when Tieche reared back and struck out the final batter.

It was slender Steve's ninth strikeout. He issued two walks and, as Novato played errorless ball, Rancho had only four base runners.

Defensive gem of the game was turned in by Novato second sacker who made a great catch on a throw to second for a force-out.

Ericksen's three singles brought to 15 his total hits in the seven tournament games to date.

Novato collected seven safeties last night, with a double and single by shortstop Phil Adams and a pair of singles by the heroic Nelson accounting for the other.

Should Ericksen encounter trouble on the mound tonight, Novato also has ready for relief duty Randy Foster, the third man on the team's sparkling Big Three pitching staff. He too has had a week's rest.

The Novato team will return to Marin immediately after tonight's championship game and banquet.

TWO-HITTER—Steve Tieche pitched a two-hit, 1-0 victory for Novato over Rancho Cordova of Sacramento last night at Oroville in the Northern California Litle League Division semi-finals. Novato plays Hayward for the title tonight.

PGA: 5,000 Guys On 5,000 Tees

When you and I think of the Professional Golfers' Assn., we tend to think in terms of Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus or Gary Player.

Actually, the PGA is 5,000 guys on 5,000 tees around the country saying "You looked up!" or "That's fine, now just do the same thing when you swing at the ball," or "That's better, this time try to hit the ball, too." Some of them have never even seen a National Open. Many of them haven't fired a golf shot at anything but a yard-marker in 30 years. To them, golf is a creaky old insurance man or his fat wife struggling uncoordinately to hit a ball in the air off a rubber mat.

They know that only 5 per cent of the people they instruct will ever break 100 but in the meantime, between taking up the game and quitting it two years later, they will pay up to $25 for each six lessons, will buy at least two sets of brand-new clubs, a gold putter or two, a half-dozen alpacas, the latest golf hat (Nicklaus' Augusta model), 14 golf books, a golf glove, and a rubber band to keep their left arm straight.

IF THEY put as much money and time into learning the rhumba, they could go on tour, but golf is the "in" thing in this Year of Our Lord.

The touring part of golf never numbers more than 150 luckouts who get to swing at an annual $3 million, one-tenth of which will go to Nicklaus and Palmer, one-quarter of which will go to Nicklaus-Palmer-Player-Casper-Lema and a few assorted Australians, and these guys now want to form a club of their own with a czar.

A "CZAR" these days is supposed to be the cure for everything from boxing to badminton, but these top guys can say, a la Louis XIV, "golf is me." If you don't think so, try putting on a tournament without one of them aboard in the field.

They only want to play 30 tournaments a year, they want to cut down on the number eligible to play in them and they want to shake loose from the teaching end of the association. This will give them more time to play in TV golf abortions where they can make more money in one day shooting 80 than they can make smashing the course record say in the Carling Open, whatever that is.

IT ALSO leaves them free to count their money, endorse more sweaters, knock golf balls in the back of Mercury sedans, and demonstrate the arts and mysteries of the grip on the Ed Sullivan show and collaborate on a new instructional book "How To Hit Golf Balls Out of the Top of Pine Trees."

I was just reading a book the other day by my friend, Fred Corcoran, who was one of the pioneer PGA tour directors and, as all history does, this volume shows that 'twas ever thus.

WHEN FRED started out, the magic era of Jones and Hagen and Sarazen had waned, and the likes of Runyan, Henry Ransom or Horton Smith, accomplished as they were, was not causing any rush to the pro shop.

Sponsors were hard-working Chambers of Commerce, purses were just high enough so you could get gas to the next tournament, Corcoran got five whole dollars a day to spend in any way he wanted. As soon as a golfer got a blush of notoriety, he deserted, and went off with the latest promoter who could get him a series of exhibition matches where he didn't have to sink 30-foot putts to be able to afford a full-course meal. It wasn't before TV cameras but it was the same thing.

IN LATER years, the pros embraced one-man tournaments, flashy, big-money tent shows put on to salve the egos (or promote the outside businesses) of golf-happy oil or industry tycoons. These quasi-benefactors usually dropped out the minute they had their names (or their businesses' names) in the paper often enough. "Some guys," observed Fred Corcoran, "would jump out a window if they could just read their own obituaries."

FRED PUT in his time with this animal act with 9-irons and has the scratches to prove it. As Bing Crosby says in the foreword "(Corcoran) stepped to center stage as PGA director to a 17-gun salute — aimed point-blank at him." He got the bends if he was more than 10 feet from a telephone. Bing points out it was Corcoran who picked up a phone one day at a tournament and barked into it "Get me anybody!"

FRED HANDLED Ted Williams, Sam Snead (the day Fred first met him he was identified in a paper as "Stan Speed") and now represents Tony Lema and Ken Venturi in the lucrative side pocket of golf income. He started the Ladies' PGA, shrewdly helped build Babe Didrickson Zaharias from a tomboy in track shoes into one of the great ladies of the world. He pioneered the practice of putting massive score boards around a tourney course with birdies in red crayon, bogies in black, and par in white for easy identification.

When the pros finally knocked Fred Corcoran out-of-bounds and left him in an unplayable lie, he agreed to pick up if the PGA would just sign an agreement giving him 25% of all TV monies up to $25,000 and 10% of everything over $125,000. He could be lighting cigars with portraits of U.S. Grant except he took his agreement to NBC and was told "Who wants to see golf on TV? It's not a spectator sport."

TELL IT to Arnold Palmer. Fred is now involved with hockey in Canada's Cup golf but he leaves posterity with a few words: Never judge a man by his golf bag. Watch out for church ushers and Irishmen who pronounce "France" as "Frawnce." Bet that the guy carrying an attache case has a ham sandwich in it and don't sit next to anyone chewing ice. Avoid people who sing in showers or who shake hands with you and say hello to someone else.

And if anyone comes up to you to be the new "czar" of pro golf, don't.

A Very Bad Friday 13th For Two Sports Greats

Nightmare For Palmer In The PGA

By JIM HACKLEMAN

LIGONIER, Pa. (AP) — Laurel Valley's serene acres proved a high-pressure area for Tommy Aaron, a scramble for Jack Nicklaus, a pleasure for Dave Marr — and another nightmare for native son Arnold Palmer.

Carrying the tension of being pacesetter of an elite field in a premium tournament, Aaron led the field today into the third round of the 47th Professional Golfers' Assn. Championship.

Nicklaus, the Masters champion from Columbus, Ohio and solid pre-tourney favorite, skittered all over the hilly, 7,090-yard course for a one-under-par 70 and improved his position by a stroke.

And Palmer was socked with his second two-stroke penalty of the tourney for an unbelievable NINE on a par 5 hole.

"I felt the pressure of being the leader, it's hard to play out front," the soft-spoken Aaron admitted after recovering for a par 71 with birdies on three of his last four holes. The 28-year-old Georgian, who fired a 66 on opening day, actually improved his margin to two strokes with his 36-hole 137.

"Don't ask me how the fairways were, I didn't see them," Nicklaus chuckled. "I feel like I played four rounds today — on four different golf courses on the first nine."

The Ohio strongboy, winner of the last two events on the tour, came in with a 70 — "and pleased to get away with it" — after a string of three birdies on his final nine.

Palmer found nothing but trouble. He started his round on the 10th hole and was severely jammed up by the 11th. On that hole, he hit a small rock in a gulley on a practice swing and wound up taking seven strokes. Officials presented him with two more for hitting the stone — technically, grounding his club in a hazard — after he had told them.

The onetime ruler of golf, now on a decided downgrade, posted a 75 on his home course for a 147.

A stroke back of Nicklaus and Marr, at 140, was steady Billy Casper, whose 70 included 17 pars and one birdie. Gardner Dickinson and Ray Floyd were next at 141, Dickinson blew to a 74 and Floyd took a 73.

Don Bies, Mike Souchak and R. H. Sikes were even par 142. Bies, a slim club pro from Seattle, had a 71 yesterday, Souchak a 72, and Sikes a 71.

Defending champion Bobby Nichols was all but out of it with his 74-74—159. Mason Rudolph, one of the first-round stars, ballooned to a 76 for a 143, Sam Snead went up to 75 for 143 and U.S. Open champion Gary Player shot 72-74—146.

George Knudson of Canada scored an amazing hole-in-one on the 238-yard eighth, helping him to a 69 and a 144 total. Bob McCallister had the best round of the day, a 68, putting him at 144.

Seventy-seven made the halfway cut for the final two rounds, with 151 needed.

Spahnie Is Hard Luck Loser, 3-2

By RON BERGMAN

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Each pitch a plot, each inning a challenge, each game a struggle. . .

This describes the current efforts of Warren Spahn, a 44-year-old left-hander trying to make good with guile in the National League.

Under these excruitiating conditions, the slightest mishap—a pitch that misses by an inch or an error—can ruin an otherwise fine evening's work.

And that's what happened last night. That's why Spahn lost his 14th game in a season in which he's won only five. And that's why San Francisco lost 3-2 to the Philadelphia Phils.

And that's why the second-place Giants went into today's contest against the Phils 2½ games behind the Los Angeles Dodgers. Juan Marichal (18-8) was scheduled to oppose the Phils' Jim Bunning (14-7).

It all happened in the seventh inning the night of Friday the 13th. Spahn took the mound with a 2-0 lead.

Shortstop Dick Schofield took Bobby Wine's grounder and made an errant throw to first. Pinch-hitter Alex Johnson singled sharply off what Spahn later said was "a good pitch." Cookie Rojas laid down a bunt that died on the third base line for a base hit.

"I thought the ball was going foul," explained Spahn, the most successful southpaw in baseball history. "That's why I stood over it. But it straightened out."

Manager Herman Franks had talked to Spahn after Johnson's single. Franks came out and took Spahn out after the pitcher had walked John Callison on a 3-2 pitch and forced in a run.

"The ball I walked Callison on, I think I had him fooled," said Spahn. "It didn't miss by much."

Reliever Frank Linzy forced Richie Allen to hit into a double play as the second run scored. But Dick Stuart then cracked a solid single to left, scoring Rojas with the winning and third unearned run of the inning.

For Stuart, it was sweet revenge. He and Spahn had exchanged hot remarks in the third inning after a pitch came close to the Phils' first baseman's head.

Stuart angrily tore off his batting helmet and disdainfully tossed it aside. Plate umpire Ken Burkhart demonstratively made Stuart put it back on because it's against baseball law to bat without a helmet.

"It was a knockdown pitch," contended a subdued Stuart afterward. "I yelled at him, 'You can't throw hard enough to hurt me.'

"He said, 'Take the helmet off and I'll show you how hard I can throw,'" related Stuart. "Heck, I guess I'll do anything when I'm mad."

Spahn disagreed slightly with Stuart's version.

"I just tried to throw the ball inside and I got it in too far," Spahn said. "And he got all excited. I told him, 'Well if I hit you I'll shake some brains into your head.'

"Later on when I got on base, I asked him, 'What's wrong with you, No. 7?'. He said, 'I don't like anyone getting on me when I'm hitting .230.'"

Spahn got a standing ovation in the fifth when he struck out Stuart with the bases loaded and two out. Spahn also got out of a bases-loaded jam in the first inning.

The Giants scored their first run in the second on consecutive two-out singles by Len Gabrielson, Tom Haller and Hal Lanier. Jim Hart's 12th homer in the fourth off starter Ray

RACING CLUB 'CLEARS' CANDLESTICK COURSE

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A board of inquiry decided yesterday that mechanical failures caused the deaths of two drivers during road races at Candlestick Park.

Ken O'Neill Jr., of Saratoga was killed Saturday and Bart Martin of Hayward was killed Sunday.

The Sports Car Club of America announced that its board of inquiry established that O'Neill was killed when his front wheel flipped off, despite inspection of the wheel before the race.

The board said Martin's right rear suspension broke just before his crash.

The club also said it "wished to fulfill its five-year contract with the San Francisco Junior Chamber of Commerce to continue races at Candlestick Park" thus clearing the course of any blame in the fatal accidents.

Marin Youth Third In Reno Golf

Mike Kelly, a senior at Redwood High School and representative of Peacock Gap Golf and Country Club in San Rafael, placed third in a field of 100 players in the All-Teen Invitational Golf Tournament at Reno's Hidden Valley course Thursday and yesterday.

Kelly, star of the champion Redwood golf team, put together rounds of 74 and 76 for a 36-hole total of 150, four strokes behind winner Bob Berg of Pebble Beach (70-76—146). In second place was Fred Elliott Jr. of Hidden Valley with 74-74—148.

Kelly, Berg and Elliott are all 17 years old.

Four other Marin County high school golfers participated, but finished out of the running. They are Rick Timmer and Ron Cannady of Terra Linda High and Buzz Beattie and Randy Patterson of Redwood.

SPORTS BRIEFS

GOLF

LIGONIER, Pa.—Tommy Aaron retained his two-stroke lead with 66-71—133 at the halfway mark of the PGA championship.

WINNIPEG, Man.—U.S. champion Bill Campbell and Georgia Tech football player George (Bunky) Henry moved into the finals of the Canadian Amateur Golf Championships with two victories each.

SWIMMING

TOLEDO, Ohio—Judy Humbarger of Fort Wayne, Ind., raced world record holder Cathy Ferguson of Los Angeles to a tie in the 200-meter backstroke in the highlight of the National AAU Championships.

BLACKPOOL, England—South Africa's 12-year-old Karen Muir won her third successive title at the British Championships and became youngest triple winner in the meet's 25-year history.

TRACK AND FIELD

MUNICH, Germany—Olympic champions Wyomia Tyus and Edith McGuire led the U.S. women's track and field team to second straight international victory with 62-55 margin over a West German team.

TENNIS

SOUTHAMPTON, N.Y.—New Zealand's Ian Crookenden upset Australia's Fred Stolle 3-6, 10-8, 10-8 and advanced into semifinals of the Meadow Club Grass Court Tournament along with Chuck McKinley, Mark Cox and Gene Scott.

TORONTO—Julie Heldman of New York and Faye Urban of Windsor, Ont., reached the women's final of the Canadian Tennis Championships, Miss Heldman trouncing Benita Senn of Toronto 6-1, 6-0 and Miss Urban upsetting Patricia Cody of Los Angeles 6-1, 6-3.

Hawthorne, Nev. Gains In L.L.

RENO, Nev. (UPI) — Don Orndorf singled home the winning run in the first extra inning of play yesterday to give the streaking Hawthorne, Nev., team a 6-5 victory over Gallup, New Mexico, in a five state Little League playoff here.

Hawthorne, which has won all three starts in the single-elimination tournament, next meets the Arizona champion with the winner to go to the Western States regional in Portland later this month.

Mill Valley To Host S.F. '9' In League Tilt

Mill Valley Merchants, winners of two of their five league games, will host the Gino Benedetti nine of San Francisco tomorrow at Optimist Field, 1:30, in a Bay Area Invitational Semi-Pro league game.

The visitors whipped Mill Valley 24-5 in the two teams' last meeting on June 20, so the Merchants will be very hungry for revenge. The Benedetti team is tied for second in standings with a 4-3 mark.

Starting lineup and batting order for the Merchants:

Santiago Wins In Junior Golf Play

Larry Santiago grossed 38 and netted 29 to score a two-stroke victory over the field yesterday in the Las Gallinas Junior Golf Club's nine-hole medal handicap tournament at the Las Gallinas course.

Dave Grose, 41-10—31, and Steve Latini, 38-7—31, tied for runner-up spot and Tim Cassidy followed at 37-5—32.

Builders Play Practice Game

Billings-Hutchison Builders of Marin, drawing a bye in Bay Area Invitational Semi-Pro Baseball League play this weekend, will host the Montrose Chemical nine of San Francisco in a practice game tomorrow at Albert Field, San Rafael.

The game will start at 1:30 p.m. Dave Hughes and Dick Descalso will share the mound duties for the Builders.

The San Rafael team has a season record of 24 victories and 7 losses, a percentage of .774.

Hawaii Unbeaten In Pony Tourney

PORTLAND (UPI)— Maui, Hawaii, was the only unbeaten team moving into today's action in the Pony League playoffs here.

Maui took an 8-inning 5-4 win over Seattle last night as Mike Morimoto and Les Orikasa got hits in the 8th. Orikasa also homered for the winners.

In a losers' bracket game, Portland eliminated Prince George, B.C., 5-4. Moses Lake, Wash., meets Portland this afternoon and the winner faces Seattle tonight.

The survivor faces Maui for the championship Sunday.

San Anselmo Softball Tourney Due For Thrilling Climax This Weekend

2 Teams Still In Running For Title Tie

Sohner Tree Service of San Anselmo dumped Deans of Marin, 4-1, last night as the sixth annual San Anselmo Invitational Softball Tournament nears what could be a thrilling climax.

Hamilton Air Force Base has completed tourney play with a 4-1 record to cinch at least a tie for the championship. But both Lucky 7 Golf and Burbank Dairy have 2-1 marks and could tie for title by winning their last two games.

With 1-2 records Sohner and Deans can still grab second place by winning their remaining contests.

A big game is on tap at 6:30 tonight at Memorial Park when Lucky 7 will attempt to stay in contention by beating Deans.

Tomorrow's schedule pits Five-Star Homes against Lucky 7 at 1 o'clock, Burbank Dairy against Deans at 3:30, and Sohner against Five-Star at 6 o'clock.

Sohner and Burbank will play next Wednesday in a game that was rained out last Wednesday.

In last night's contest between the two Marin rivals, Ron Jerome homered in the fourth inning to break a 1-1 tie and supply righthander Gary Swarm with all the margin he was to need.

Deans knotted the count in the third when Warren Miller's blooper eluded Jess Munyon in right field for a triple and Frank Ratto hit a sacrifice fly to center.

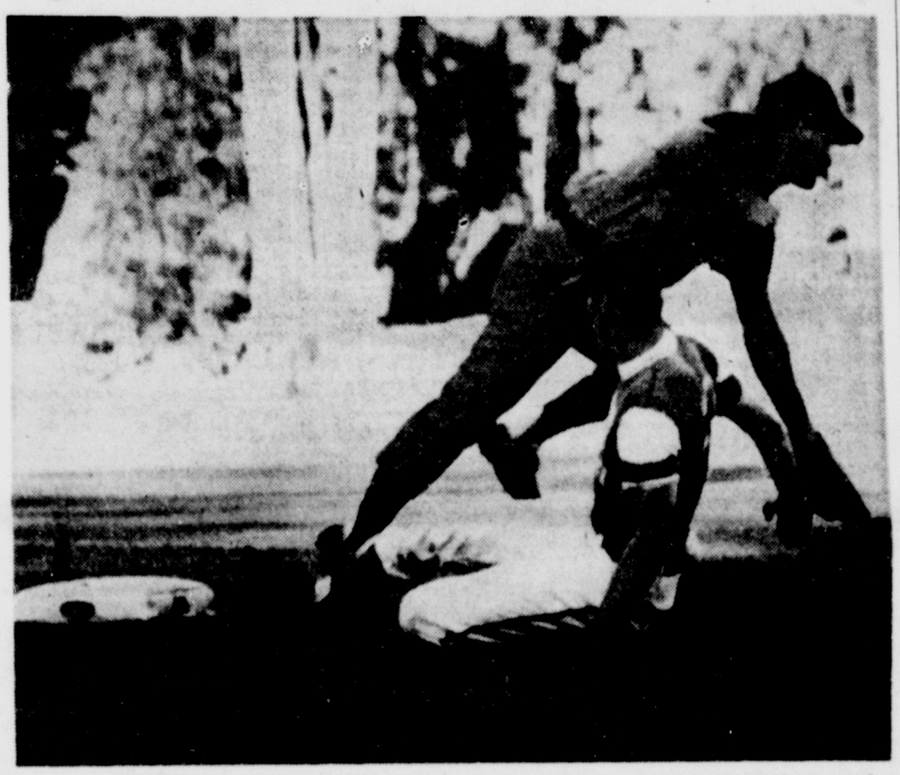

Deans threatened in the seventh when Milt Garfield and Johnny Coleman led off with singles. But Swarm bore down to get Miller on a fly to left and then enticed Ratto to hit into a double play.

In notching the victory, Sohner's third win in as many games with Deans, Swarm hurled a six-hitter, striking out two and walking none. Loser Budd Spriggs also tossed a six-hitter.

The line score:

				R	H	E
Sohner	100	120	0	4	6	1

WP—G. Swarm; LP—Spriggs. Home run—Jerome (S). Triple—Miller (D).

STOP, THIEF! — Sohner's John Brookman steals second base with a neat slide as Deans shortstop Carrol Stephens reaches for wide throw from catcher. Action came in second inning of their game last night in San Anselmo Softball Tournament. Sohner's won, 4-1.

Herbert accounted for the other.

The Giants could do nothing but get one hit and two walks off Phils' relievers Jack Baldschun, Bo Belinsky and Gary Wagner. Belinsky got the victory, his fourth against eight losses and first in more than a month.

"I was just lucky, that's all," said Belinsky, in typically modest fashion. "I threw a lot of different pitches."

Drake Cage Loop Title Game Set Next Thursday

The Marin Athletic Club and A & E Garage teams of the Drake Summer Adult Basketball League will play for the championship next Thursday at 7 p.m. in the Drake gym in San Anselmo.

Both teams, with 5-1 records, currently head the loop. In their last games, A & E Garage beat Cain's Tires and Marin A.C. won by forfeit over Don's Market.

Results of this past week's adult league action:

A & E Garage (Dale Aman 11) def. Cain's Tires (Bob Bilchinsky 14), 60-31.

Namath's Debut A Success

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Pulled out of a pre-game parade by Coach Weeb Ewbank, Namath made the most of his first start at quarterback for the New York Jets last night by passing for his first touchdown as a pro in a 26-16 American Football League exhibition victory over Boston.

Namath, the Jets' $400,000 rookie from Alabama, and $200,000 John Huarte were the headline attractions for the game at Allentown, Pa., but were among those missing as 10 open cars drove down Main Street in a noon-time parade.

Namath, Huarte and holdover quarterback Mike Taliaferro were held out of the parade in favor of a pre-game meeting with Ewbank.

"There's a limit about what we can do with these players," Ewbank explained. "I can't develop a quarterback when he's in a parade. I know Namath and Huarte are popular and everybody wants to see them. But I want to see them too—on the football field."

He got his longest look at Namath and his first on-the-field look at Huarte against the Patriots.

Namath, throwing sparingly on a wet field, did not attempt a pass for 13 minutes but his first was complete for a 60-yard touchdown to Don Maynard. Namath wound up with four completions in six attempts for 80 yards while playing the entire first half.

Huarte, who played in the All-Star Game at Chicago, came on at the end of the third quarter after Taliaferro had pitched a 55-yard scoring strike to Maynard. The Heisman Trophy winner from Notre Dame completed only two of seven passes for 31 yards.

Mark Smolinski scored the other New York touchdown on a five-yard run while Jim Turner kicked two field goals.

Babe Parilli passed seven yards to Ron Burton for one Boston touchdown and rookie quarterback Charlie Green ran five for the other. Justine Canale contributed a 49-yard field goal.

The game, which attracted an estimated 18,000, opened a long weekend of pro football activity in both the AFL and National League.

In the AFL tonight, Denver meets Oakland at Salt Lake City and Houston is at Buffalo. The NFL schedule shows New York at Green Bay, Minnesota vs. Pittsburgh at Atlanta, Baltimore vs. St. Louis at New Orleans and Dallas at Los Angeles.

There are three games Sunday, Detroit at Philadelphia and Cleveland at San Francisco in the NFL and San Diego at Kansas City in the AFL.

'Loaded' 49ers Vs. Browns Tomorrow

Full of hope and running backs, the San Francisco 49ers open preseason play tomorrow, 1 p.m., against the National Football League Cleveland Browns.

The 49ers started the 1964 season in the same Kezar Stadium against the Browns and beat them 26-7. The 49ers ended at the bottom of the Western Conference with a 4-10 record.

The Browns, the only preseason victims of the 49ers, went on to blank the Baltimore Colts in the NFL title game.

San Francisco could start two running backs who've gained 1,000 or more yards a season, J. D. Smith and John David Crow, the latter acquired in an off-season trade with the St. Louis Cardinals.

Waiting in the wings are running backs Don Lisbon, No. 1 draft choice Ken Willard, Mike Lind, Dave Kopay and Gary Lewis. Not all these fellows will be around when the regular season opens Sept. 19.

None of the these will be the top running back on the field. That honor belongs to Cleveland fullback Jim Brown.

Along with Brown are running back Ernie Green and quarterback Frank Ryan. End Gary Collins is Ryan's favorite target.

The main Cleveland problem looms at flanker. Paul Warfield broke his collar bone as the Browns were defeating the College All Stars in Chicago and is lost for the entire pre-season slate and perhaps longer. Clifton McNeil, a former taxi squad member, takes Warfield's position.

John Brodie has been selected by 49er coach Jack Christiansen as the No. 1 quarterback, George Mira notwithstanding.

Brodie has ends such as Monty Stickles, Bernie Casey and Dave Parks to collect his passes. But Mira should get his chance, also.

MARIN GRID ALL STARS REPORT FOR TRAINING

Forty-four Marin County grid stars from last year's prep season will report to camp tomorrow to start practice for the first county-wide North-South All-Star football game coming up on Aug. 26 in Kentfield.

The players, 22 for the North and 22 from the South, will check in at the little theater at Redwood High School tomorrow at 10:30 for physical examinations and an organizational meeting. The boys will also be introduced to members of the game-sponsoring Ross Valley Kiwanis Club at a luncheon. All gridders are 1965 high school graduates.

The practice schedule for both camps will start Monday—the North at Terra Linda High School and the South at Drake High, beginning at 10 a.m. Schools represented on the North team are San Rafael, Terra Linda, Novato, San Rafael Military Academy and Tomales. Making up the South team are gridders from Drake, Redwood, Tamalpais and Marin Catholic.

Coaching the South team will be Bob Franceschini of Drake, assisted by Al Endriss of Redwood. Heading the North coaching staff will be Pete Limm, last year's Terra Linda School coach who will start teaching at College of Marin next month. His assistant is Marlin Olsen of Novato High.

North players to report include Gary Lieberman, Rick Edwards, Tim Garvin, Doug Barker, Dennis Camgros, Pete Cowger, Bill Hall and Norm Trondsen of Terra Linda; Roger Ulrich and Mel Smith of San Rafael Military Academy; Don Phillips, Ron Rowell, Warren Laufer, Paul Kahler, Bob Bonner, Steve Coontz and Ron Tieche of Novato; Dave Cooley, Gary Ferrari, Ken Pharms and Bob Rich of San Rafael High, and Fred Rodini of Tomales.

Daily practice schedules for each camp will be at the same time for the first week. The former prep stars will practice on the field from 10 to 11:30 a.m., have chalk talks from 2 to 3 p.m., then get back to the practice field from 3:30 to 5 p.m. First week's practice will wind-up Saturday, with intrasquad scrimmages scheduled for 10 a.m.

INTRODUCING THE MARIN ALL-STARS

Introducing members of the North-South Marin All-Star football squads that clash Thursday night, Aug. 26, at Kentfield in a game sponsored by the Ross Valley Kiwanis Club:

THE SOUTH

LOU LENCIONI is a 5-foot, 11-inch, 190-pound gridder who played first string varsity for three years at Marin Catholic, elected team captain his senior year.

He played offensive guard and middle linebacker on defense. He also participated in track and field at Marin. His non-athletic interests include church youth work.

Lencioni will attend College of Marin this fall, with hopes of moving on to an engineering school later.

LARRY STEIN was an outstanding athlete during his days at Sir Francis Drake High School, captain and most valuable player on the football team, captain of the basketball team, and a sprinter on the track squad.

Stein was named to the All-MCAL team as an offensive end both his junior and senior years and last year led the league in receiving, catching 15 passes for 338 yards. With his 10.2 speed, this end knew what to do with the ball after he caught it, displaying fine running ability. Five of his 15 catches were good for touchdowns.

He was named to All-Northern California team and was a nominee for the Shrine North-South prep game in Los Angeles. He is 6-2 and weighs 185 pounds. He suffered a serious toe injury last spring in a power mower accident, but it has healed and he is in top shape.

THE NORTH

FRED RODONI is a six-foot 180-pound halfback from Tomales High who was team captain and All-North Bay League.

He was also given honorable mention all-league in baseball and basketball, being named team captain his senior year as a cager. He was also senior class president last year.

Being from Point Reyes Station, Rodoni likes the wide-open spaces and was active in 4-H work. Like many of the local prep stars, he plans to enter College of Marin.

NORM TRONDSEN will be leaving Marin for the Naval Academy Prep School in Baimbridge, Md., just two days after playing in the North-South game.

He recently completed basic training at San Diego, the first step for the few appointed to the Naval Academy. Norm was an all-league offensive guard when he played at Terra Linda High, and now is 5-11 and 200 pounds. He was first string varsity for two years.

In addition, he was on the school wrestling and track teams. He was a yell leader during the last basketball season and also served as secretary-treasurer of the Block T.L. Club.

After a year at the prep school Trondsen will enter the Naval Academy.

I-J Newspaperboys learn the route to success

The I-J's on the way—and so is he!

Perhaps it's the daily habit of delivering the news right to your home that gives I-J carriers, like him, a sense of direction in life.

Maybe it's the feeling of managing a route, where each boy is his own boss. Or the idea of collecting and banking money each month. Or maybe the channeling of energy into responsible effort . . . serving others.

It could be the solid training, too, which these boys receive from our experienced circulation advisors.

But one thing's certain: these boys develop AIMS and GOALS often a lot larger than the boys themselves. The aim to serve . . . the goal of a college education, for instance . . . with savings to attain it. They discover that delivering the paper on time, in place, can lead to the larger ends of independence and initiative.

HOW TO OWN A MANSION
We DID have a special one in mind — all glamor, substance and space (about 4,300 deluxe sq. ft. under cedar roof) — with 5 bedrms., 3½ baths, sumptuous liv. rm., TWO din. rms., gracious entry, view kitchen, HUGE social room plus tremendous garage area. BUT . . . if you wanted it spanking NEW . . .

You might start from scratch to copy our villa — beginning with as valuable a site — adding thereto a wealth of patios, shade trees, rock wall, grotto, fencing, iron grillework AND prof. landscaping.

Add loggia, 85-ft piazza w/view and all closely appts. to villa. $90,000 later, you MIGHT have a reasonable copy.

$72,500, on the other hand, buys the one we had in mind, mellowed by 11 years time.

Everyone's Talking About
TERRA LINDA

WHY? . . . Because this award-winning apartment community has everything you are looking for: Furnished or unfurnished apartments and townhouses . . . a relaxed setting of incomparable beauty situated on 25 acres . . . family buildings separated from adult buildings . . . all schools just steps away . . . townhouse units have over 1500 sq. ft. with their own private outdoor patios.

THE OAK VIEW CLUB — your own Private Club, is just a short walk from your beautiful Apartment or Townhouse. There is a putting green, lockers, men's and women's lounges, showers and sauna baths . . . 2 wind-free championship tennis courts acclaimed as the best in Marin County . . . two large heated swimming pools and a wading pool . . . shuffleboard, ping-pong and a large, comfortable sunning area . . . all this amidst rolling hills, studded with ancient oaks and beautifully landscaped.

THE CLUB HOUSE itself is luxuriously furnished . . . the cocktail lounge is carpeted and has a huge fireplace . . . intimate social-dining room . . . spacious facilities for private receptions, parties, bridge, teen-age dances and indoor movies.

APARTMENTS consist of one, two and three bedrooms.

TOWNHOUSES consist of two and three bedrooms, 1½ baths.

CHOICES of parquet flooring or area carpeting. All are beautifully draped. All have louvered doors within. Kitchens are completely electric. All refrigerators are self-defrosting and have separate freezer tops. THESE UNITS ARE THE ONLY ONES IN MARIN COUNTY WITH CENTRAL AIR CODITIONING, THERMOSTATICALLY CONTROLLED BY YOU.

Rents start at $160 per month and afford family membership in the Oakview Club.

MODEL apartments, townhouses and the Oakview Club are open for YOUR inspection. We invite you to compare The Meadows with ANY other apartment development in Marin County before renting.

DIRECTIONS: Past San Rafael take Terra Linda turnoff, continue to the end of Freitas Parkway, and then you enter THE MEADOWS.

OPEN every day, 8:30 a.m. to 7:30 p.m.

TELEVISION REVIEW

Documentary Strong Point Of U.S. TV

By ROBERT MUSEL

NEW YORK (UPI) — One of the things American television does superlatively well — as even the grudging Europeans admit—is the documentary and before John Secondari took off for Vienna he discussed the next episode in his "Saga of Western Man" series — Beethoven.

Secondari, executive producer of ABC news' special projects, expects to spend up to four months on this study in color of the composer who, among his other qualities, demanded the world accord him dignity at a time when even artistic immortals of his calibre were little more than second class citizens.

Beethoven rates as one of the milestones in the saga of Western man, along with previous documentaries on Leonardo Da Vinci, the voyage of Columbus and 1776 (the year of the American Revolution) because he was the first great composer to make his musical personal and because he refused to let fate destroy him.

"He gave us the symphony in its present form," Secondari said in an office decorated with his trophies as a hunter — a lion skin, the skull of an eland, the mighty horns of a cape buffalo and a pair of elephant tusks.

"He ended up by being mad, no doubt about that. But we'll concentrate on his life from the time he came to Vienna and the beginning of his deafness at the age of 30, until at the age of 34 he started the Eroica symphony and began carrying conversation books so people could write their questions."

Secondari describes his documentary technique as "an hour long act of seduction." He says Beethoven, in color, will be one of them ost elaborate documentaries ever shown on television —the research alone took six months. "We now know as much about Beethoven as anybody." He said the process cannot be rushed. "My wife became pregnant about the time we started working on Da Vinci," he said. "She had the baby two weeks before we finished."

Secondari (author of the novel which became the film, "Three Coins in the Fountain") recently completed a program on the beautification of Washington with Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson, wife of the President, as guide. It will be televised Thanksgiving Day.

Meanwhile ABC expected Eugene Jones back soon from another major documentary titled "In Search of Man" which took him around the world from an Eskimo village north of the Arctic Cricle to the tropical islands of Polynesia. Jones had an ambitious outline to flesh out with his cameras for a Dec. 13 airdate.

The basic idea is that all men are individuals, yet essentially of the same family whatever their racial or geographical environments. Jones was told that man is "the most fascinating inhabitant of this planet" and to go out and bring back the proof.

He filmed a new born baby in an Eskimo igloo, an old Hindu being consigned to a funeral pyre on the Ganges, young lovers in the South Seas, dedicated youth in Israeli's harsh Negev and various aspects of life in Paris, New York, Tokyo and other world capitals.

Van Heflin is the narrator.

Nursery Co-Op Signups Set

The San Rafael Cooperative Nursery, sponsored by the adult education department of the San Rafael High School District, is taking applications for the fall semester, membership manager Robert Powell announced yesterday.

Pre-kindergarten children two years and nine months and older are eligible for the school which is located on the campus of the San Rafael High School, he said.

Powell asked that parents interested in registering their children call him at the San Rafael City Schools Office.

Tax Protest Is Planned In Novato

A group of Novato residents plan to meet Tuesday to protest last month's decision by the city council to hike the tax rate from 33 cents to 92 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

Harold Bright, 525 Midway, said a number of taxpayers will meet at his home at 7:30 p.m. to draw up what he calls "a plan to show the council it can do the same for less money."

George Amaroli, 11 Rebecca Way, is also an organizer of the meeting, said Bright.

"It is not intended to be a blanket condemnation of the council's decision," said Bright. "But we think it is possible to show the taxes need not go above 50 cents."

The citizens' plan is expected to be presented at the Aug. 25 meeting of the city council.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Elderly Person's Health Should Include A Positive Approach

VAN DELLEN

According to the American Medical Assn.'s committee on aging, the key to positive health "lies in struggle rather than retreat, in enjoyment rather than avoidacne of the stress of living. The wounds of combat are preferable to the decay of idleness."

Life is a gamble and some take unreasonable risks. Examples include the heavy smokers, steady topers, and coffee hounds who remain healthy and live to be 90. These are the exceptions, as not many survive abuses of this nature. Moderation in all things is preferable as it allows us to use our allotted time intelligently and happily.

PUT THE EMPHASIS on living rather than existing. We envy the man or woman with the willpower to smoke and drink in moderation. The same can be said of those with control of their emotions. But there is more to the rules of health than keeping our minor vices in check. Maintain a balance between rest, work, and play. Watch your diet, and avoid gluttonous eating. A sound nutritional program encourages vigor and helps maintain normal weight.

Tranquility also enters the health picture. Learn how to unwind and never pass up the opportunity to take a catnap. Cultivate mental alertness by broadening your range of interest. This is especially important for the retired man whose job has been his life. He is lost without diversion.

IT IS DIFFICULT to enjoy positive health when bothered with poor hearing or failing sight. Invest in good lighting and better acoustics. If glasses or a hearing aid is needed—get them. After 50, have a medical checkup. If an ailment is found, it may be correctable. The minor conditions in mid-life become the cripplers after 65.

Regular exercise is the foundation to physical fitness. The more we move our muscles and joints, the better they perform. Fitness is the ability to respond to life's demands. It allows us to take vigorous activity in stride. Regular exercise is one of the greatest single factors in preventing heart attacks.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request).

STIFF KNEES

Mrs. L writes: Several weeks ago I did some gardening and was not surprised at the muscle stiffness that followed. But my knees remain stiff and have now become painful. What could be the cause? I'm 63.

REPLY

You may have osteoarthritis, a form of the disorder that stems from wear and tear. Symptoms often make their debut after unusual exertion. Now and then the cartilage of the knee is injured by the stress of bending or kneeling.

HAND AND ARM PAIN

W. R. writes: Could pain in the hands and arms indicate kidney trouble?

REPLY

Why pick on the kidneys when there are so many other logical causes? The idea that a focus of infection in one part of the body causes pain an a distant part is not as popular as it was in the past.

LEG CIRCULATION

G. E. writes: Could hardening of the arteries of the legs be present without coldness of the feet and legs?

REPLY

Yes. Blood is capable of running through a narrowed artery in much the same way as water flows through a rusty pipe. Coldness develops when the circulation is curtailed 80 per cent.

TOO MANY CURVES

W. O. writes: What is scoliosis?

REPLY

The technical term for curvature of the spine. It stems from poor posture, fatigue, bone infection, and one leg being shorter than the other.

Today's Health Hint—

Where Three Cities Share East Bay View

Nearly every part of Marin offers a view: of the ocean, of San Francisco, of the bay or the chain of cities which line its eastern shore.

This photo depicts parts of three cities — Corte Madera, Tiburon and Belvedere — whose vista of the East Bay and the water in between is among the best.

Just above Mariner Cove, on filled bay land, is the Paradise Cay area. At the right (at the south end of the Northwest Pacific Railroad tunnel from Corte Madera) is the Belveron Gardens subdivision, with the city of Tiburon and a small part of Richardson Bay visible beyond. Most of Belvedere lies just outside the photo but its lagoon can be seen at right.

Across Racoon Strait, one sees historic Angel Island. Beyond that are Treasure Island and a small part of Yerba Buena Island, with the San Francisco Bay Bridge linking them to Oakland.

Air Conditioning—Field Of The Future

By DON KEOWN

The young man looking for a profession with a bright future could do a lot worse than consider the field of air conditioning.

So says Henry Kirner of 125 Garden Avenue, San Rafael, who in his capacity as a civilian mechanical engineer for the U.S. Air Force at its Hamilton Air Force Base spends much of his time designing and maintaining air conditioning systems.

It was because of his conviction that air conditioning is one of the "coming" fields of the future that Kirner conceived the idea of an evening class for men interested in learning the intricacies of the profession.

KIRNER FIRST approached the educational officer at Hamilton Air Force Base, then the College of Marin, and found both very much interested in his suggestion.

As a result, as part of the College of Marin adult education program, an air conditioning course, open to both civilians and servicemen, will open Sept. 15 in the educational office at Hamilton Base with Kirner as the teacher.

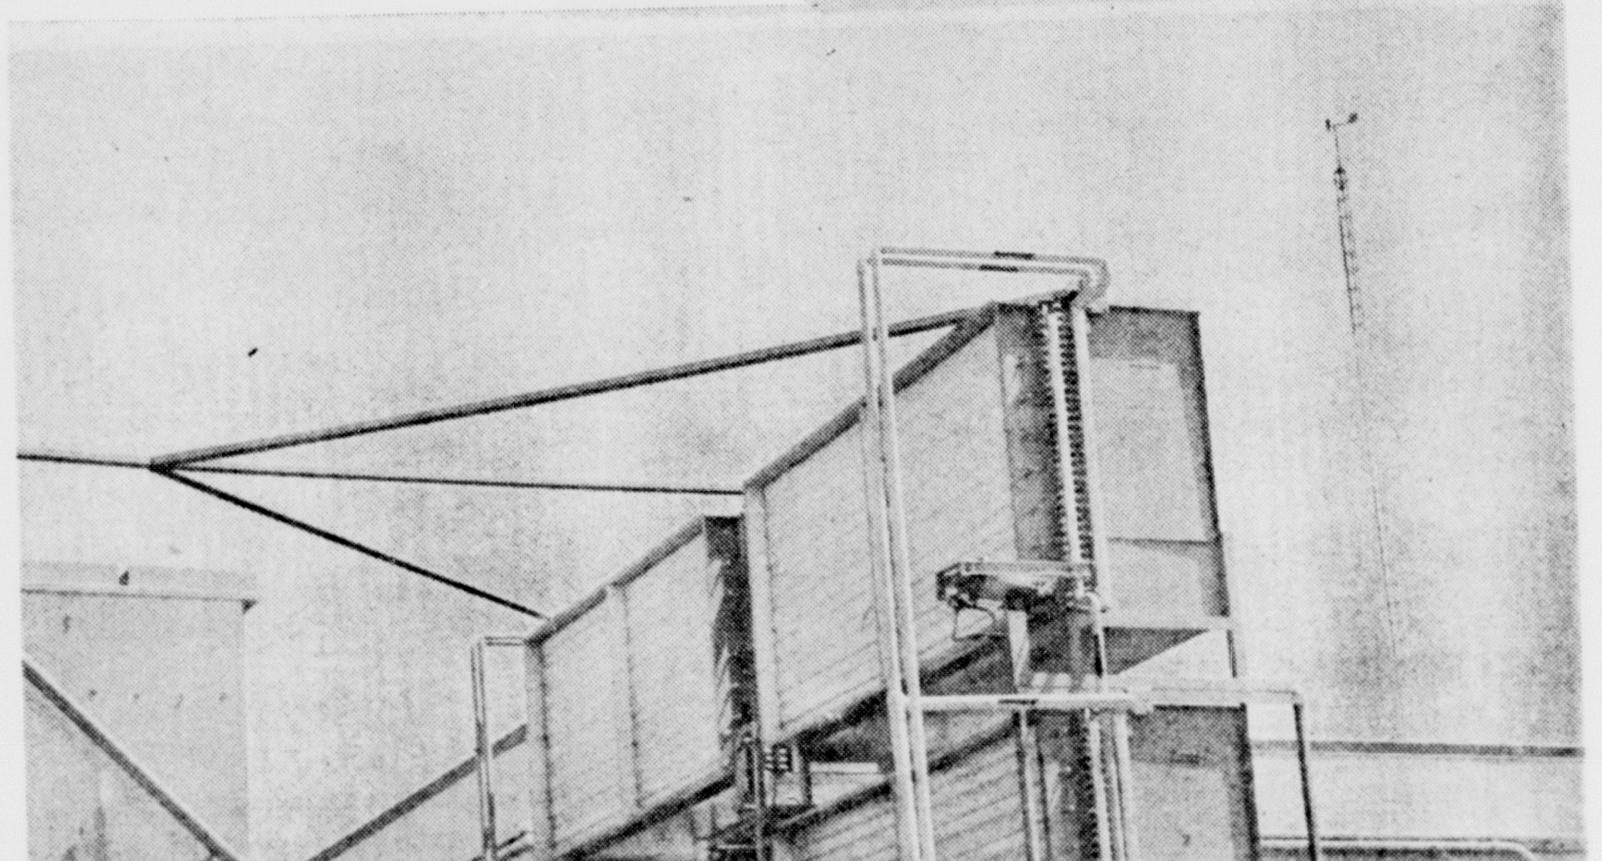

The class will meet Wednesdays from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. for 18 weeks.

CLOSE ON HAND for demonstration purposes at the big air base will be a wealth of air conditioning apparatus, including a mammoth 100-ton system for a combat center, another 50-ton unit for an electronic equipment and repair building, and two 15-ton air conditioning systems personally designed by Kirner for the critical task of keeping air conditions at a proper and unchanging level for the sensitive computer equipment.

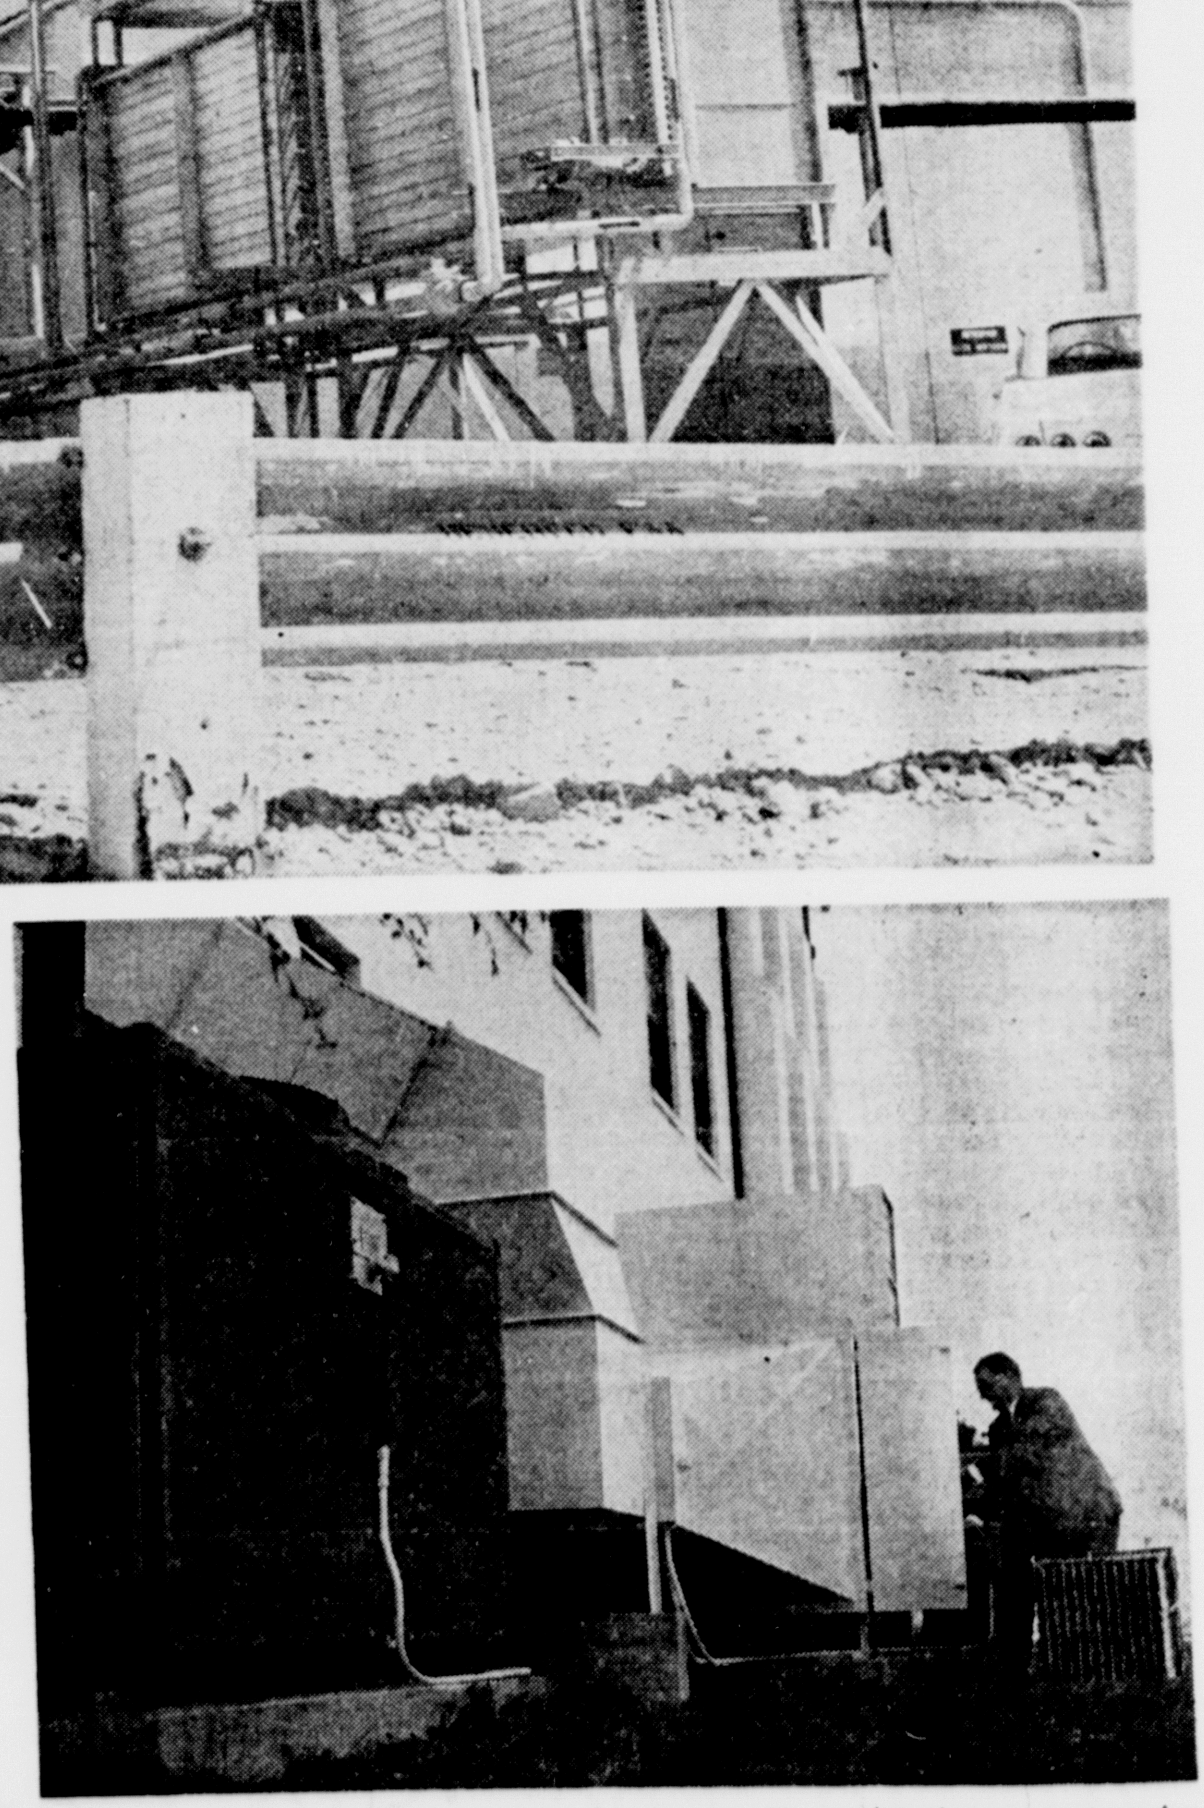

Those installations, however, are only a small part of the works for which Kirner is responsible. His territory also includes Oxnard Air Force Base and 18 radar stations.

tems and a number of other fields.

BUT AIR conditioning has come to be a prime interest.

As the technical reviewer for consulting engineering designs submitted to the division for approval, he is the lone man authorized to approve air conditioning systems for the 11-western-state Headquarter Air Defense Command of the 28th Air Division.

Kirner is a graduate of College of Marin, the University of San Francisco and Heald Engineering College. He holds both business and mechanical engineering degrees.

But after completing his extensive education, he had no plans for or expectations of winding up an air conditioning expert.

"MOST OF MY subjects had nothing to do with air conditioning," he says.

However, when Kirner went to work for the Air Force five years ago, he found himself frequently faced with emergency air conditioning problems at remote radar stations "where there was no expert available for consultation, and where you had to do your own diagnosing and planning of repairs."

Until then, Kirner says, he had only a slight acquaintance with air conditioning work.

"WHAT I DID was to get myself about $100 worth of textbooks, and do a lot of research," he says. "Air conditioning proved to be a lot more complicated than I had suspected."

Kirner has also attended the Carrier Air Conditioning Corp. school in Syracuse, N.Y.

There is a lot of misunderstanding about air conditioning and its purpose, Kirner says.

"Most people think of it simply as cooling. Actually there are five key factors, if you are to achieve real air conditioning. You must be able to cool the air, to heat the air, to control the humidity of the air, to control the distribution of air and to control the cleanliness of air."

"IN OTHER words, air conditioning means a complete environmental control of the space," he summarizes.

And when the air conditioning goes "haywire," he adds, it is usually the end result of a system not designed to do the complete job.

In the civilian field, Kirner says, the most critical need for good air conditioning is in the hospitals. Next come industrial plants, particularly those with electronic equipment for which a very close control of the environment in which they operate is essential. Kirner's own military work is also often in this field.

KIRNER SAYS really effective air conditioning is practical for homes as well as for public and industrial buildings, including systems using the more efficient chemical refrigerants instead of water.

"They can be designed to do the job without becoming too expensive," he says. "And the trend is in that direction."

Marin has not fully participated, he adds, because of the belief among some residents that its mild climate makes air conditioning in the home an unnecessary expense.

"But there, again," Kirner says, "they are thinking of air conditioning only in terms of cooling."

WHILE MANY public buildings and institutions are air conditioned, one area where the benefits of such facilities are being overlooked, Kirner believes, is in the schools.

"The children would do better work and would be healthier if their classrooms were air

Stereo Hi-Fi

By C. J. Catania
Audio Engineer

MORE ON HOME VIDEO TAPE RECORDERS – Sony Corporation recently introduced its new, low-priced, fully transistorized home video tape recorder at a showing in New York. The recorder features simplicity of operation, much like the operation of an average home tape recorder. It contains its own built-in TV monitor with a 9 inch screen. The Videocorder, as it has been tabbed by Sony, uses 7 inch reels of ½" wide tape traveling at 7½" per second. A half hour reel of tape will cost about $27.95, and a one hour reel about $39.95.

The Sony Videocorder uses the rotating head principle in conjunction with the slow tape speed to get its high quality pictures. The unit can be used to record directly off-the-air TV pictures and sound, or to play back picture and sound from tape, or to record on tape both picture and sound using an accessory video camera and a microphone. The video camera will require about the same amount of light as the average movie camera. Sony, like Ampex, has broken the $1,000 price barrier for a quality video tape recorder. The Sony price is reported at $995.

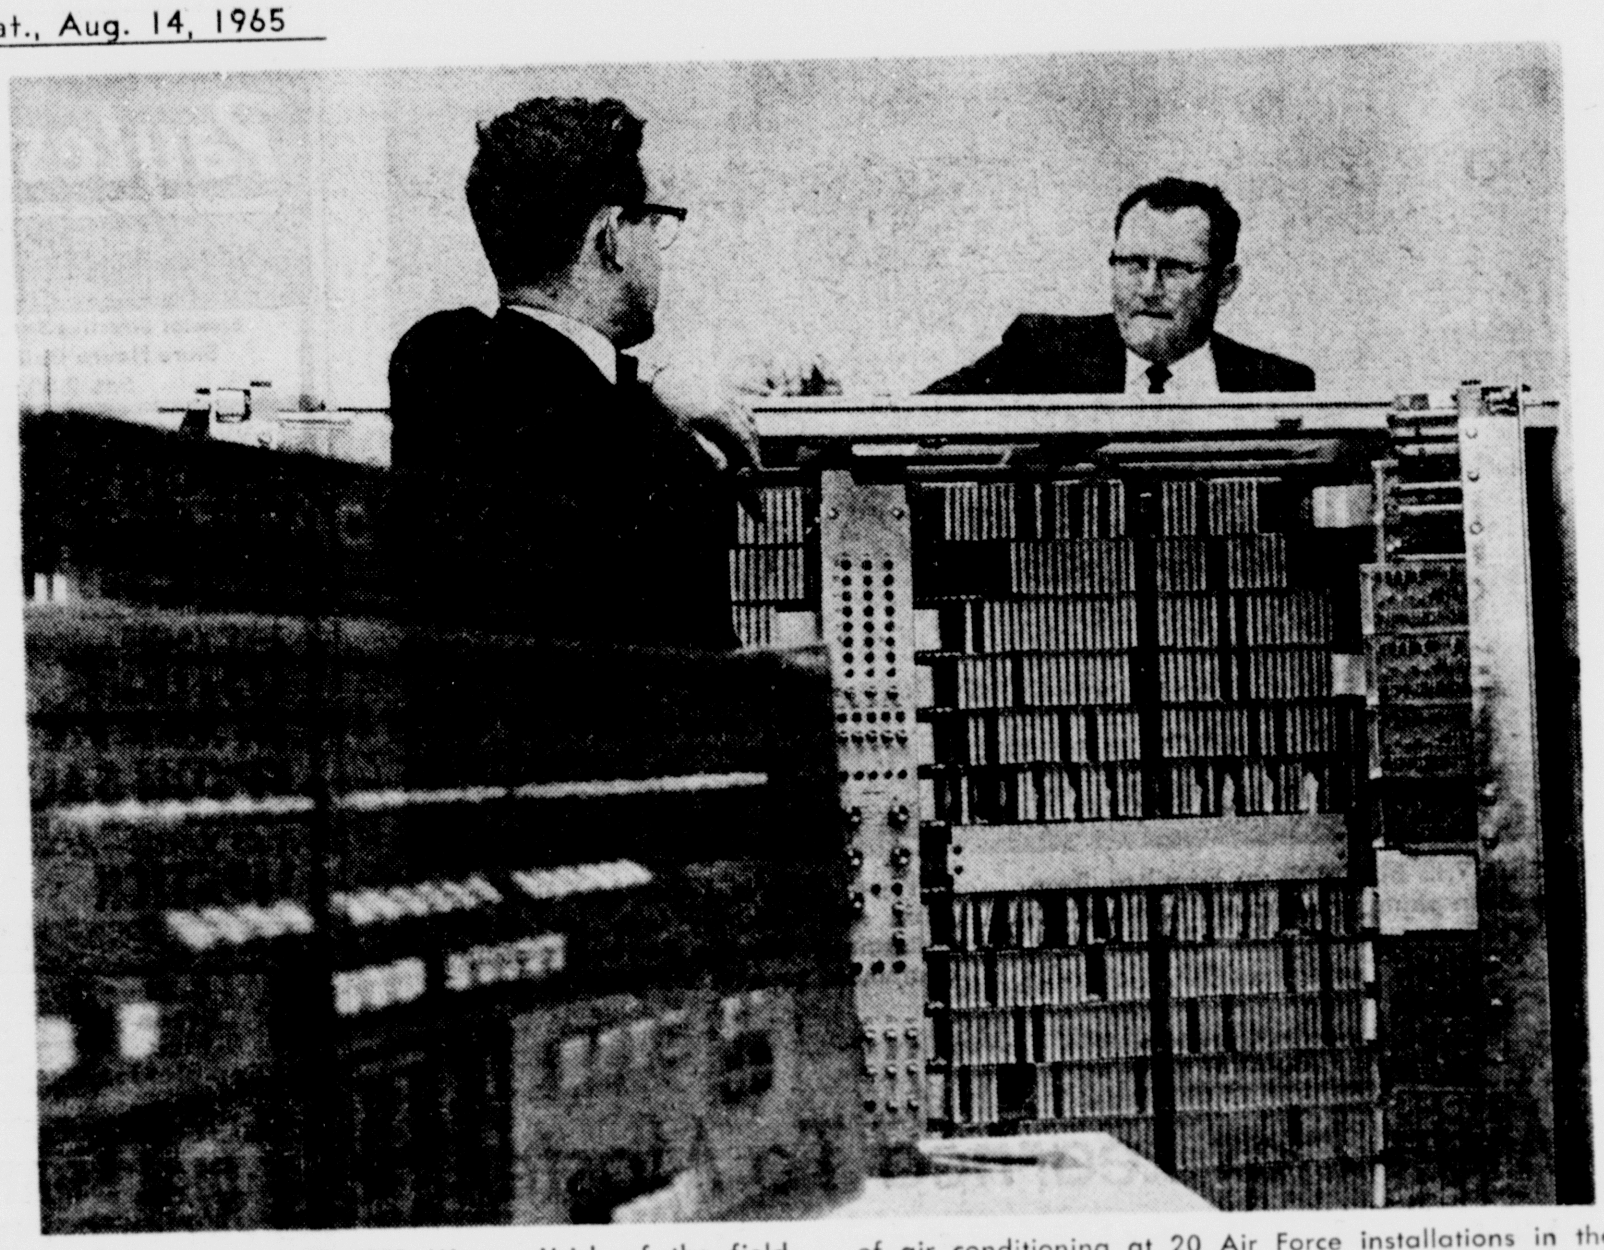

Lear Jet Corporation unveiled for the press, at the New York Hilton Hotel, their new 8-track stereo tape car player. The unit combines the functions of the car radio and the stereo tape player in a unit no larger than the car radio. It will play continuous type tape cartridges with up to 80 minutes of stereo playback from one cartridge. The cartridges will be on ¼" tape traveling at 3¾" per second.

The 8-track stereo recorded tape system was developed by RCA Victor in collaboration with Lear Jet Corporation. The initial release will include 150 cartridges selected from best-selling albums from the RCA catalog.

Ford Motor Company announced that they plan to introduce the 8-track tape player radio as optional factory installed equipment in their 1966 models. It is expected that other motor companies may offer the system with their cars.

The unit takes no more panel space than a conventional car radio. It will be simple to operate. Soon we can be bathed in stereo sound while traveling in our cars, and with long playing tape cartridges.

conditioned," Kirner says. "I think it would be worth the cost."

Contrary to the belief of some, Kirner says, the best air conditioning for most situations, is that which allows some slight variation in temperatures.

"If the temperature is maintained at a constant level inside a building, its occupants tend to become loggy and listless," he explains.

AN EXCEPTION are those air conditioning systems serving electronic works. There the maintenance of an exact and unchanging temperature level is often vital.

He says he will spend three to four weeks on a 50-ton system, somewhat longer designing the larger ones, a somewhat briefer period on the smaller units.

AIR CONDITIONING has moved forward during the five years it has held his attention, Kirner says, with better compressors that offer a higher compression, more compact systems, the elimination of the need for bearings in the refrigeration compressors and other improvements.

The course he will teach at Hamilton Base under College of Marin auspices marks Kirner's debut as a teacher.

HE EXPECTS about 30 students.

"And when we are finished, they will understand thoroughly air conditioning systems and how they work.

"They will know that air conditioning is not just cooling."

To sign up for the course, prospective students need not have mastered calculus. "But they should know some physics and some mathematics and should be familiar generally with the principles of thermodynamics," Kirner says.

HE PREDICTS a "great boom" in air conditioning in the near future — "We are already feeling its beginnings."

The class he will conduct will prepare his students to be ready to take advantage of that boom.

But whether they plan to become professional air conditioning technicians or not, Kirner adds, there are many Marinites whose work in allied endeavors bring them into frequent contact with air conditioning principles and problems, and who can benefit substantially for the course.

"MAN HAS always aspired to gaining mastery of his weather," Kirner says. "And true air conditioning, I guess, is about as close as he has come to this objective."

"I take a lot of razzing at the base on hot days," Kirner admits. "Everyone likes to let me know if he thinks it's either too hot, or too cool, inside his place of work."

But as long as those air conditioning units are functioning, keeping the precise and vital electronics equipment of Uncle Sam's Air Force operating at peak performance, Kirner knows he is accomplishing his biggest job. And he can take the jokes in stride.

MARIN PICTURE BEAUTY LURES THE CAMERAMEN

Marinites are not unaccustomed to having the scenery of their county show up as background for television shows and commercials, or as illustrations for newspaper and magazine advertisements and releases.

When Dorsett Plastics Co. of Santa Clara decided to shoot pictures of its 1966 line of fiberglass boats, it was not surprising that a Sausalito locale was selected.

The San Francisco agency handling the Dorsett account is Allen, de St. Maurice and Scroggin. And all of that firm's principals involved in the Dorsett promotion are Marin residents—account executive Larry Larson of Sausalito, publicity director Bill Hendricks of Ross, copy chief Charles Matheny of San Anselmo and art director Rex Harrison of Tamalpais Valley.

Furthermore, cameraman Bruce Williams has a Sausalito studio—and docks his own boat at the Sausalito Yacht Club.

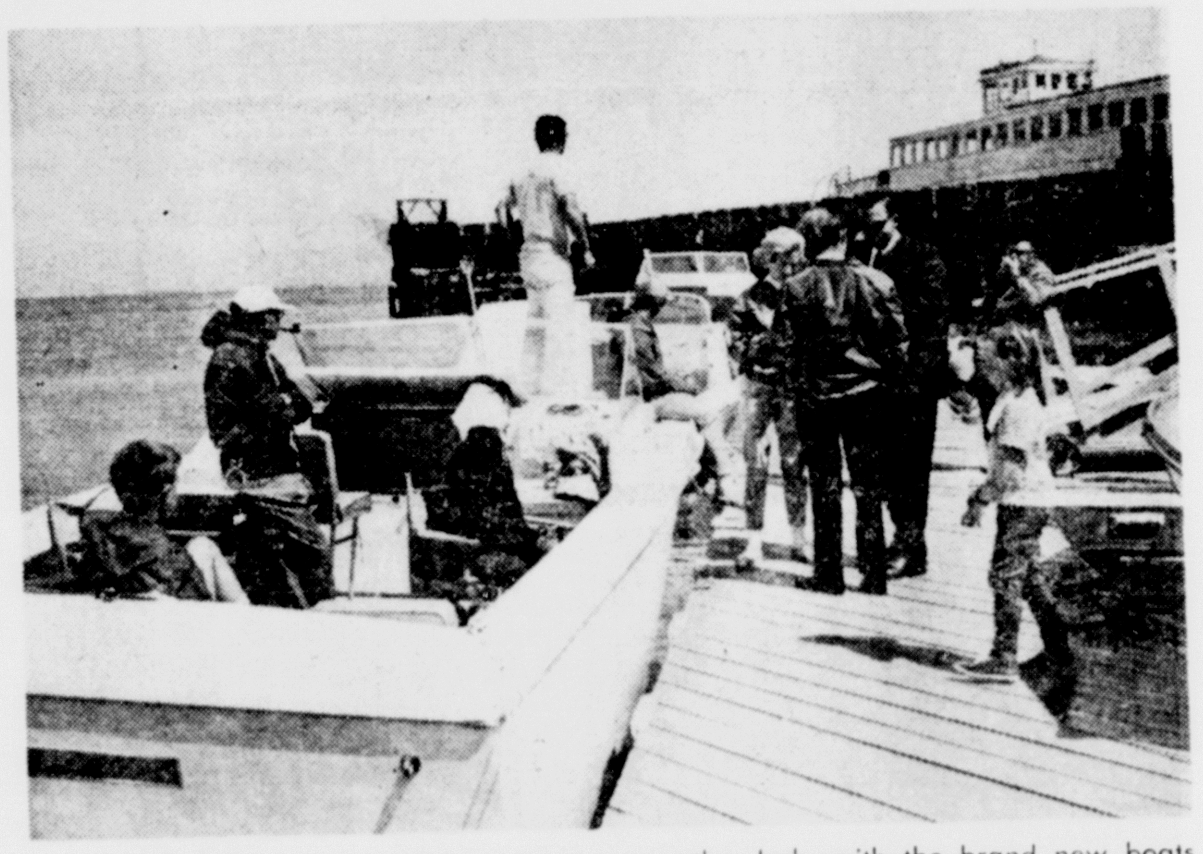

So photographer, models, agency and Dorsett officials, wives and small fry gathered at the loading docks at Zack's and the Sausalito Yacht Club, carrying cameras, water skis and box lunches.

And throughout the day, the boats, ranging from a 35-mile-per-hour runabout to the 23-foot Farallon cabin cruiser that sleeps four, were put through their paces while still and movie cameras snapped and turned. Action ranged from water skiing to dozing in the sun with a fishing line out for camouflage.

The result was yet another set of photos to be published nationwide in which Marinites can recognize with pride their own waters and distinctive coastline.

BRUCE WILLIAMS of Sausalito, well-known boating photographer, checks his cameras to make certain they are ready for action as he prepares for his assignment of shooting pictures of the 1966 line of Dorsett-manufactured boats for the Santa Clara firm's 1966 catalog.

PLANS FOR THE day's shooting are reviewed with camera director and models on the dock, with the brand new boats lined up alongside, ready to go.

AND OUT THEY GO onto the water of San Francisco Bay off Sausalito's shoreline. This and the other new Dorsett boats will soon be doing their stuff for the cameraman.

THE THREE BIG offshore boats of the 1966 Dorsett line zip through the waters as they swing past the Sausalito yacht harbor, on their way onto film and into the 1966 catalog. Camera crews and models spent a week in Marin waters photographing the nine fiberglass boats produced by Dorsett for the coming year.

THE VINEYARDS of California's great Central Valley caught the eye of artist Lada Hlavka of San Rafael and this harvest scene became the subject of a painting that recalls the work of the impressionist masters of the 19th century. Mindful that art styles have changed, Hlavka says he still prefers the older schools of painting, in keeping with his training in his native Prague.

An Artist Who Still Likes The Old Ways Best

Lada Hlavka Reminds The Critics Of 19th Century Impressionists

Impressionist painting in the manner of the 19th century masters is no longer in vogue.

But it is still the kind of art that Lada Hlavka of San Rafael likes best.

And it is the kind of art to which his own work is often likened.

"I don't criticize the new ways," the Czechoslovakia born 66-year-old artist says. "They could be right and I could be wrong. I just say that I prefer the older schools."

ONCE A WELL recognized and well paid painter in Europe and also a successful artist in this country whose work has been shown at the Carnegie Institute and the Palace of the Legion of Honor, Hlavka admits that current artistic tastes have brought about a sharp decline in his sales.

"But still I paint," he says. "I am always painting."

His studio is the converted garage of the home that he and his wife Alice have bought at 9 Antonette Avenue, San Rafael.

"That is," he qualifies," the garage is my studio in the winter. In the summer, you will find me painting outdoors, under umbrellas."

HLAVKA WAS born in Prague and studied at Charles IV University and later at the Academie Des Beaux Arts in Paris. For 16 years he was a professor at the Art Institute of Prague and often held one-man shows in the Czech capital.

In 1939 his government sent him to the United States to decorate the Czechoslovakian Pavilion at the New York World's Fair.

While he was at work on the murals and a sculpture piece, he conceived the idea of traveling around the United States to do a series of paintings on the beauty spots of all its regions.

HE CONTINUED to travel widely, and to paint. His journeys took him to South America. And, naturally, to California.

He decided to make California his permanent home "because of my admiration for the richness of the scenery and because of my liking for the weather," and he came to the state in 1946. San Francisco became his home, and he taught for the Art League of California.

Two years ago, the move was made to San Rafael because of Hlavka's bronchitis.

Mrs. Hlavka, a San Franciscan, commutes daily to San Francisco where she works in the insurance business.

"SHE EARNS the bread and butter now," the artist says.

Hlavka says he began his art career "very realistic with the classical approach."

"But as time went by," he adds, "I developed a greater freedom in my work and became more impressionistic."

The move away from the intensity of his early striving for realism, Hlavka stresses, in no way represented a diminishing of the seriousness with which he approaches art. And he still insists upon a strong vein of realism in his paintings. Abstracts are not for him.

MOST OF HIS own work is in oils, and includes landscapes, portraits and still life.

"But I can teach in many media including lithography," he says.

His murals have been likened by a San Francisco critic to the work of Degas, Renoir and Toulouse Lautrec.

"He has never put down an uninteresting color," wrote a Southern California expert of his paintings. "Each shade is remarkably complicated, and has a definite surface function."

COMMENTED THE New York Herald Tribune: ". . . substantial conservative pictures, strongly painted, forcefully illuminated—not according to the usual impressionist pattern, but individual in their realism."

Hlavka has no plans for returning to Czechoslovakia, even for a visit.

"My family is all gone," he says. "And the Communist regime is just like Hitler's. It is not good for anyone, and particularly not for artists."

The United States is now his homeland. And although sometimes he wishes there was a greater appreciation in this country for the older approaches to art—"I think my work would have greater appeal for Europeans than for Americans, even today"—, he is not unhappy with his lot.

"EVEN IF MY paintings do not sell, I shall continue to paint," he says. "I'll just store them. I can't make myself destroy or discard them."

Even artists interested in the newer schools can benefit, he feels, from a follower of the old masters.

"One thing they would learn from me is discipline—that there is no room for sloppiness in art, no matter what kind it might be," he says. "Sometimes when I see today's artists at work, even the way they hold their palettes, why it . . ."

THEN HE smiles. "But I shouldn't criticize. Maybe they are right and I am wrong.

"But still I like the old ways best."

NEIGHBOR ANTONE ROSTONI, right, poses for a painting by Lada Hlavka. In warm weather, Hlavka prefers to work in the yard of his home at 9 Antonette Avenue, San Rafael, under the shade of umbrellas. In the winter, he moves his work into the garage which he has converted into a studio.

THE STUDENTS ARE all attention as James Clark, instructor and co-director of the summer work-study program at College of Marin, explains a paper in an informal tutoring session. Rick Miller, Jo Anne Jackson, Jim Stites and Luana Meacham listen carefully.

WORK-STUDY STUDENTS

Summer Program Reawakens Their Interest In Education

Twenty-five Marin youths who in the past looked at the schoolroom as a dull place are rediscovering the excitement of learning and, along with it, are discovering themselves.

They are a cross-section of the so-called "educationally disadvantaged": High school dropouts and high school graduates who lack the proper credits for a regular college program but have developed an intense desire to further their education.

They are enrolled in a unique six-week summer work-study program sponsored by College of Marin in cooperation with Marin public agencies.

The college looks upon the program as an experiment. At best, the students will be motivated to tackle two or four years of college. At the least, they will have a better idea of themselves and the educational and occupational opportunities open to them.

THE AIM OF the program is two-fold, according to Richard Gott, director:

"It includes classroom study to bridge the gap between high school and college for high school dropouts and recent high school graduates who may lack the educational background to go directly into a regular junior college program, and, a work program, 90 per cent of which is covered by funds from the federal 'war on poverty' act, to provide employment and work experience for those who would not be able to attend college without financial assistance."

Two instructors and three student tutors work with 25 students who voluntarily spend five mornings a week to upgrade their written and oral communication skills and raise their job sights through occupational orientation.

ANOTHER PHASE of the summer work-study program at the college sees students "in the field" working for public agencies. John Sheets, who works as playground supervisor at Lucas Valley School's summer recreation program in Marinwood, is the umpire behind the plate, while young Russell Fritz goes after the baseball hit by John O'Shaughnessy. Kenneth Marks is the catcher and watching the action are, left to right, Rory O'Ward, Bill Deering, Cliff Marks and Sean Aurely.

Summer Work And Study Rekindles Student Interest

as a research specialist in the Vocational-Technical Center of the University of California at Berkeley. For five years he was an instructor at the San Quentin Prison Adult School. He is a specialist in development education.

"The problem isn't getting through the first semester for these kids. I'm concerned with keeping them in for the second semester," says Clark.

The programmed teaching method, which emphasizes the student's reaching a goal by working gradually but steadily at his own speed, is one way to help keep them in for the second semester, Clark believes.

WHILE THE students do work at their own speed, they are not allowed to "take it easy." Urging the class to greater effort, Clark tells them, "You can't be casual and take your own usual time. If you feel pushed, upset, that's good. It means that you're thinking. Push yourself harder."

Clark wants the students to see and express themselves realistically. One technique he uses is to have them act out real life situations.

One such "play" was an interview between an employer and a prospective employee. After the skit was over the class was asked for comments or criticism.

One boy asked, "Why didn't you ask if she had graduated from high school?" When told that the information would already be on the application, he commented, "You still should have asked about her grades. If she didn't graduate or didn't have good grades, she isn't likely to get the job."

FOR MANY of the students this is a bitter realization. They see clearly that without an education jobs will be hard to find and often difficult to hold if they do find them.

Many didn't like high school or couldn't keep up with their fellow students in class. By recognizing their educational deficiencies and enrolling in the program, they show, according to Clark, that they are willing to take advantage of this "second chance," and they are taking it gladly.

How does an instructor work effectively with students, many of whom have been indifferent and, in some cases, even hostile, to the school situation?

First the teacher must establish a feeling of trust and respect between teacher and student. He must get across the idea that he is aware of and understands their problems.

MUCH OF the credit for the success of the program is given to three techniques: Programmed English skills, the Scientific Research Associated reading laboratory and the student tutors.

One, called the "2600," is designed for students who are weak in language usage. The other, "3200," is for the advanced levels of high school and early college.

The two texts, described as "errorless learning", are designed to help the student reason through problems on a step by step basis.

THE STEPS are so gradual and their order is so logical that, with reasonable concentration, the students are not likely to make many mistakes. There is a short test at the end of each unit, which the student completes on his own, with no pressure from the teacher or fellow classmates.

The second technique, the Scientific Research Associated reading laboratory, is programmed reading.

Again the students compete only with themselves. They progress one step at a time through the course. As in the communications class, there is a test to be taken at the end of each programmed unit, and it is taken only when the student feels ready to progress.

THE THIRD, and in some ways the most important part of the course, is the tutoring program. The tutors work with the students during two 20 minute breaks every day.

One worry when the tutoring sessions began was that the students would not attend, since this is strictly voluntary. It became quickly apparent that there was no need for worry.

The students realized, says Clark, that "it is impossible to get the personalized treatment from a classroom teacher that the tutors can give."

Holly Bowen, from Larkspur, a history major, Margaret Deedy from San Anselmo, a political science major, and Alma Dinsmore from Larkspur, an English major, are the three tutors.

THE IMPORTANCE of making progress during each of the 30 days of classroom instruction is stressed.

"Make an impact. You can't blame anything on the teacher or the class being slow, or the class being boring. It's largely up to you."

The job orientation part of the three class program is handled by Charles Herndon, College of Marin counselor, who regularly works with business and industry executives on job opportunities, requirements and placement.

SPEAKERS HAVE been invited to give the class pointers about job possibilities and training needed for the jobs.

Charles Willis, instructor in automotive technology at the college, told the group about jobs in the automotive field and in other technical areas. A representative from Hansell Associates clerical and secretarial school explained many of the job opportunities open in those fields and the training that some of the people would need for these jobs.

The students work five afternoons a week off campus for public agencies in jobs arranged by the college. They are employed at the Marinwood Recreation Center, San Rafael General Hospital, the Marin County Volunteer Bureau, the Tuberculosis and Health Assn. of Marin County, the Girl Scouts, and at Sunny Hills in San Anselmo.

ACCORDING TO Gott, "The students were placed in work situations designed to meet their vocational interests and abilities."

Counselor Armand Cello tested the students at the beginning of the program on reading comprehension, vocabulary, the mechanics of English, and spelling. At the completion of the course he intends to give a similar battery of tests to measure how well the students have progressed.

Whatever else the students are getting from the program, they are feeling a sense of achievement and learning to see themselves in a more realistic way.

As one girl said after looking at her test score from the previous day, "Well, I only got 80 per cent right, so I guess I better try again."

A QUESTION RAISED during one of the two tutoring sessions held every day in the summer work-study program at College of Marin is discussed with gestures by instructor James Clark, left, and student Rick Miller, right. Another student, Gary Stevens, is an interested listener to their conversation. Youths who once found classroom work deadly dull have discovered, under a new program, a new excitement in learning.

TUTOR HOLLY BOWEN clears up the problem that Tom Silman has asked about in one of his tests. Tom Boes checks over one of the mimeographed pages she uses in her tutoring sessions.

Our Reviewers And The New Reading

Former San Francisco newspaperman and retired Navy captain Allan Bosworth has written a novel of whaling which cannot but remind one of "Moby Dick" in the moments of its fascination with the details of the whaling operations, pitting mere men against earth's largest creatures.

But the story itself is pedestrian and one dimensional, relying on the adventurous aspects of the voyage of the Bedford Lass, first sail and steam whaler sailed from New Bedford through the ice of the Bering Sea, for its interest.

The youthful captain Scon Bailey risks his whaling reputation on steam power against strictly sail competitors, planning to winter in the ice fields, and is aghast to find that the late owner's daughter, now the vessel's owner herself, has shipped aboard for the two year voyage, to complicate shipboard life considerably. The result is a passable adventure tale, with good detail on the daily lot of the whalers.

Human Achievement

Professor Mallowan forthrightly says that the purpose of his book is ". . . to set before the general reader, and particularly the university student, some elementary information about human achievement in the third millennium B.C."

The general reader is likely to find the book too specialized, with not enough of an historical framework to give real meaning to the concentration of detail.

For the student of archaeology or of the history of art and architecture this catalog of the contributions of the Sumerians to the development of civilization will be of interest.

The illustrations are interesting and plentiful, but the text is academic and pedestrian. The material has appeared previously as a single chapter in a larger work on world archaeology. It would be more meaningful in such a setting.

Learned Essays

THE EUROPEAN RIGHT edited by Hans Rogger and Eugen Weber, University of California Press, 587 pages, $9.50. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

"The European Right" is a collection of 11 essays on right-wing political parties of 11 European nations by 11 professors.

The editing by Hans Rogger and Eugen Weber of University of California at Los Angeles consists principally of an introduction and "after thoughts."

As might be expected, the contents vary widely. Some of the 11 professors have felt called upon to define the Right (as has Weber in the introduction). Some have felt they must philosophize at length about it.

To some (particularly, J. R. Jones of University of East Anglia, who writes of England), everything to the right of center in the western European political spectrum is the Right. To others, such as editor Rogger, who writes of the Right in Czarist Russia, it represents indeed the extreme of reaction and repression.

Outstanding among the dissertations which make up this learned but rather unplanned volume is Istvan Deak's account of the Right in Hungary — although it is limited to the period between the two world wars.

The volume is subtitled "A Historical Profile," but it is scarcely that. The articles, each by an expert, are not directed to the discussion of the same period of years, are not related to each other, and do not approach the subject in similar manner nor even from the same direction; so the volume is only a collection, not a profile.

Brush-Up Course

HIGHLIGHTS OF SHAKESPEARE'S PLAYS edited by Edward P. Vandiver Jr., Barron's Educational Series, softcover, 454 pages, $1.95. Reviewed by Laurel Shapiro.

Students, high school and college, should find this compilation by a South Carolina professor of English a valuable handbook.

Professor Vandiver examines the 23 most important plays — histories, tragedies and comedies. In a brief, well-written introduction to each category, he summarized the action and presents the most famous and interesting passages at length with explanation and historical notes.

As the professor points out, his book is arranged as a helpful review and guide for the student of literature. The sensible organization and simple commentary make it also a quick brush-up course for readers whose knowledge of Shakespeare is rusty and for those who have always wanted to understand and enjoy the plays more fully.

Growing Guide

A GARDEN FULL OF FLOWERS by Nancy Ruzicka Smith, Scribner's, 241 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

Mrs. Smith, a New Jersey resident and a professional garden consultant and writer, has tackled a very formidable task in her attempt to write a guide to flower growing that is applicable to all the varied regions of this country. Generally, she has succeeded as well, or better, than might be expected.

Unfortunately, California's mild climate is even less typical than that of most sections, thus aggravating the geographical problem.

Still, the book does hold considerable value for West Coast gardeners. This is especially true of Mrs. Smith's suggested plantings for special purposes. Since just about every flower flourishes in our state, her listings are generally quite applicable here. And she has used both common sense and imagination in her compilations.

Her ideas on garden planning and layout will also be helpful, although her thinking here has a strong eastern flavor.

The material on plant culture and on blooming dates, however, must be read while keeping in mind that Mrs. Smith generally was thinking of climates with far greater seasonal variations than our own. This restricts somewhat the practicality of the book. But the truth is that flower gardeners frequently enjoy reading well-written books on their favorite subject, without regard to the area at which they are directed. This one is well written. And the experienced flower grower can usually make the necessary adjustments quite handily.

They will find in this book a good many tips on useful and beautiful plantings they might now be overlooking, and will also pick up some advice of value on phases of plant culture that know no geographical bounds.

Illustrations are black and white and not very numerous for this kind of book.

Mountain Man

OLD GREENWOOD by Charles Kelly and Dale Morgan, Talisman Press, 322 pages, $8.50. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

Caleb Greenwood was largely typical of the mountain men whose role in opening the West is only now beginning to be appreciated.

He was typical in that he was brave, strong, boastful, unlettered, intemperate and married a squaw. What made his career far from typical, though, was that he made his fame — and married his squaw—at an age beyond that at which most such rugged characters were used up and shoveled under.

Caleb Greenwood was past 80 years old when he went to Fort Hall to try to turn Oregon immigrants toward California in 1845 —and served as guide to those with whom he was successful.

He was 83 or perhaps 84 when he went into the all-but-impenetrable Sierra early in 1847 to the relief of the Donner party.

He acquired a whole family after the age of 60; indeed, he was an obscure, little-known frontiersman prior to that age. There are vast gaps in this biography because of that.

Such things strain one's credulity, but Charles Kelly has researched his subject well, and there seems no question but that Old Greenwood really was that old when he was roaring back and forth across the Sierra. Among those who have contributed supporting data is Edward L. King of Bolinas, a great-grandson of Old Greenwood.

Talisman Press, the publisher, lists "Old Greenwood" as a "revised edition." In fact, however, it bears very slight resemblance to a thin volume of the same name which Kelly published in Salt Lake City in 1933. It is actually a new book—and a worthy addition to Talisman's growing shelf of Californiana.

Two By Cuppy

HOW TO ATTRACT THE WOMBAT and HOW TO BECOME EXTINCT by Will Cuppy, Dover, 159 pages and 114 pages, $1 each. Reviewed by Laurel Shapiro.

Ever long to lure a wombat to your side? Complete your knowledge of the woody mammoth? Find a humor book that's downright funny? You are in luck.

Dover has reprinted two of Will Cuppy's ineffable animal anthologies.

Reading Cuppy is like eating salted peanuts. Just one more choice little piece, and one more, and—before you know it you have gotten the lowdown, Cuppy-fashion, on the emu, the wart hog, the giant ground sloth, and are happy as a lark. For you are in the hands of the master of unnatural history.

Never one to belabor a point, Cuppy's bite is deft and quick. Sharp as they are, his animal exposes are happy and wholesome; all the more enjoyable for invoking those sunnier prewar days when most of these pieces first delighted Cuppy fans.

Line drawings by the incomparable William Steig add immeasurably to the fun of "How To Become Extinct" and Ed Nofziger's witty drawings complement "How To Attract The Wombat." Don't forget these two when you pack your vacation reading.

A New Novel By James Cain, An Old One By Russell Kirk

By DON KEOWN

It is shocking to realize that a novelist of James M. Cain's reputation has written a book so ordinary as his latest, "The Magician's Wife."

Now in his 70s, the author of "The Postman Always Rings Twice," "Mildred Pierce," "Double Indemnity" and other book-movie successes has ploughed the same field he has furrowed before — the hard-boiled novel about the man who yields to the temptation of a beautiful but evil woman.

There seems so little of merit in "The Magician's Wife" other than a certain fast flowing simplicity in the narrative stream that the reader might well wonder:

Have Cain's abilities deteriorated so greatly since his books were once regarded as the pacesetters in the sex-and-crime field?

Has the competition simply moved forward while Cain has stood still?

Or did the appeal of the earlier books by Cain lie principally in what was then regarded as somewhat daring subject matter, rather than in any special literary quality?

In "The Magician's Wife," the man who finds the woman irresistible even though he realizes she is plotting murder is Clay Lockwood, business executive. The temptress is Sally Alexis, unfaithful wife of a professional magician. The woman is presented so totally without redeeming features that it is difficult to accept Cain's premise that a man of Lockwood's business acuity and worldliness would fall so completely under her spell.

Indeed, the characters in the novel are generally an uninteresting and unlikely lot.

Only the name of the author will serve to move this novel in the bookstores. And even if that factor should lift "The Magician's Wife" high on the sales charts, it will add no lustre to the Cain name.

THE CONSERVATIVE columnist Russell Kirk writes his fiction in what seems an appropriately old-fashioned and rather florid style.

His approach proved well suited to the material and the atmosphere of his "Old House of Fear," first printed in 1961 to considerable critical acclaim and now republished by Fleet as a "suspense classic."

Termed "a Gothic novel in unblushing direct line of descent from 'The Castle of Otranto'," this tale of romance, adventure and intrigue is set largely upon one of the smaller and more desolate of the Hebrides isles, within and around the walls of an ancient Scottish castle.

A business mission brings an American lawyer to the island. There he encounters a damsel in distress, and a band of villains (Communists, naturally, considering Kirk's political beliefs). There is a great deal of sparring of wits, and, of course, the inevitable chase. Through it all, Kirk does such a magnificent job of describing his locale and of establishing its gloomy and menacing atmosphere that one is willing to forgive him a certain naivete of plotting.

The whole thing reminds us of nothing quite so much as Robert Louis Stevenson's "Treasure Island." True, that classic's appeal is largely for the juvenile. But so would be that of "Old House of Fear" if it were not for the fascination that the unique Hebrides background cannot help but hold for all ages.

"HOW TO Write Better & Faster" is not a text for professional writers, but instead a guide for non-professionals.

Its intended audience includes the letter writer, the compiler of reports, the club publicity chairman, the student, etc.

Author Terry C. Smith is himself an engineering writer for Westinghouse Electric Corp. and a member of the Society of Technical Writers and Publishers. But he is also an experienced teacher of courses in effective writing, and he has attempted, and very largely succeeded, in keeping his book non-technical.

He offers advice on the gathering and organizing of materials and upon their presentation in an effective and readable manner.

The most common pitfall of faulty writing—misused words, bad spelling, hackneyed expressions, redundancy, superfluity, etc. — are discussed, and counsel given on their avoidance.

Along with these topics directly related to good writing are other subjects of indirect import — the use of reference sources, proofreading marks, a table of common grammatical terms, some suggestions for further reading, the utilization of illustrations and procedures for copying are only a few.

The book is a great deal more practical than some others previously available in the same general field.

THE LATEST batch of Crest paperback reprints from Fawcett World Library includes the Mary Stewart suspense best-seller "This Rough Magic," Don Robertson's Putnam Award-winning "A Flag Full of Stars" and Warren Miller's novel "The Siege of Harlem."

Sleuths & Suspense

WAITING FOR A TIGER by Ben Healey, Harper & Row, 207 pages, $3.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Monte Carlo is the colorful setting for this action and suspense novel.

An artist and a young English woman on holiday find themselves enmeshed in some kind of deadly game being played by assorted sinister types. They don't understand what is going on, but finally, in order to save their own necks, they must take the offensive.

There is a plentitude of stories of this kind these days, yet this is a good one that will keep you entertained.

If we had to pick any one publishing house for consistency in the quality of its crime fiction, it would be Harper & Row. The Harper imprint almost never appears upon an inferior book, and quite frequently marks a superior one.

The Stereo Scene With Sunier

By JOHN SUNIER

The Nonesuch label, discussed here sometime ago, continues to add many worthwhile new releases to the catalog of bargain-priced classical recordings.

The policy seems to be to release about five new albums per month. Several Nonesuch lp's are regularly at the top of the list of the best selling classical lp's, according to Billboard magazine.

HAYDN: Symphonies 19, 31 and 45—The Little Orchestra of London, conducted by Leslie Jones—Nonesuch Stereo H-71031:

With the recent re-discovery of the less familiar Haydn works, record companies are exploring each little nook and cranny of the more than 100 symphonies written by the composer.

This appears to be the first stereo recording of both 19 and 31. The very familiar No. 45, usually sub-titled "Farewell," is given a concise and enjoyable performance.

POULENC: Sonata for Clarinet and Piano, Sonata or Oboe and Piano, Aubade (choreographic poem for piano and 18 instruments—Jacques Fevrier, piano; Andre Boutard, clarinet; Pierre Pierlot, oboe; Concerts Lamoureux Orchestra conducted by Serge Baudo —Nonesuch Stereo H-71033.

A most welcome album of music by the witty composer whose death this year was a great loss to French music.

These are the first and only stereo recordings of all three works. The Aubade is charmingly "neo-Baroque" and is good to have in the catalog again, replacing an old MGM performance now deleted. The sonatas were composed just three years ago, although they are amazingly conservative and full of good old fashioned melody. They pay musical homage to both Ravel and Prokofiev.

While sound is clear, there is a somewhat objectionable tape hiss on this lp.

FRENCH DANCES OF THE RENAISSANCE and other celebrated pieces of the Renaissance and Baroque—The Ancient Instrument Ensemble of Paris—Nonesuch Stereo H-71036:

It is in the witty original "cartoon" style that adorns most of the Nonesuch albums. Three couples are seen dancing and romancing.

The music is a wonderfully varied and fascinating program of the most tuneful Renaissance and Baroque music. Many different instruments are heard, including harp, the recorder and viol families, lute, percussion and harpsichord, along with vocalists.

This lp would be a fine lesson for those who think music of these periods to be dull and repetitious.

CEREMONIAL MUSIC OF THE FRENCH BAROQUE—CHARPENTIER: Epithalamium, LULLY: Plaude Laetare Gallia, DELALANDE: Concert d'Esculpade — Roger Blandchard Vocal Ensemble with Conservatory Society Orchestra conducted by Roger Blandchard —Nonesuch Stereo H-71039:

These works, each in a different language (Italian, Latin and French), were composed for the greater glory of the French royal family. The first was written for a wedding celebration, the second for a baptism and the work attributed to De Lalande was commissioned by one of Louis' mistresses as a "get-well" piece when the king was ill.

Stereo is a must for these sizable orchestral and vocal forces.

C. P. E. BACH: Six Sonatas For Flute and Harpsichord — Jean-Pierre Rampal, flute; Robert Veyron-Lacroix, harpsichord—Nonesuch Stereo H-71034:

It is unique and satisfying to find a record label to which volume sales are necessary because of the bargain price tag but which still record music which fills "holes" in the recorded repertoire. This is another one, the first in stereo of six of the sonatas from the complete set of 12. Perhaps volume two will be released later on.

These are galante and diverting pieces, and the internationally-famous Rampal and Veyron-Lacroix Duo interpret superbly.

TELEMANN: Sonato in f for Flute and Continuo, Sonata in b for Flute and Continuo, Trio Sonata in B Flat for Flute and Harpischord, Concerto No. 1 in D for Flute and Harpischord — Jean-Pierre Rampal, flute — Robert Veyron-Lacroix, harpsichord—Nonesuch Stereo H-71038:

The listings under the name Telemann in the Schwann catalog of recordings seem to be growing at a faster rate than those for any other composer.

Although Telemann paid for his great popularity during his lifetime with a long period of neglect after his death, he is again coming into his own with a vengeance as far as the record companies are concerned.

Although these four works are all for flute and harpsichord, they illustrate wide differences in style and effect. There is little danger of boredom with the particular combination of instruments.

THOUGHTS OF A SUMMER NIGHT

Midsummer's now.
Grass is crispy brown
Like shredded wheat.
The browning is gradual,
In patches of light and dark.
It's not the heat.
Water isn't turning to vapor;
It's not that hot.
Just gradual warming.
The kind that sends
Bees to swarming
In search of pollen jackpots
And men to excuses
For not doing weekend chores
Stipulated by Monday-morning wives.
Forget the lawn
In its brown mood.
Look to the tree, so withdrawn,
Its leaves curled at dawn.
The earth is a dry sponge,
Not wrung, just evaporated.
There seems to be a lull
In the order of things.
Look inward to see beyond.

THE SIERRA SPEAKS

I am the Sierra Nevadas—
The High Sierra mountains.
From the chaste white dome of Lassen
Far to the southern Tehachapis,
I stand sentinel. I guard
The fertile western slope and provide
Its watershed. Of winter's snow
Melting in spring's warm sunshine
Abundant waterfalls quench the thirsty valleys
That they in turn may feed
The hungry millions who come
To mild Pacific's shore.

Tall yellow pines, sugars and pinons,
Nutmeg, laurel, spruce and fir
Clothe my verdant shoulders.
Here the mighty Sequoias, broad and tall,
Guardians of the centuries
And old as I myself,
Teach the everlastingness of life,
Dwarf petty care and tribulation,
Give peace and rest and quiet
To those who pause in reverence.

Birth Of An Island At Bel Marin Keys

A Pleasure Spot Arises In The Water For Residents Of Novato Development

NOT A FLOOD scene, but the lagoon serving the first two units of Bel Marin Keys waterfront homes. "Pleasure Island" in the foreground was man-made at the time the lagoon was dredged for residents to have as picnic grounds and a place to hold marina social gatherings.

MARIN LANDSCAPER Floyd Gadt applied the design for transformation of Pleasure Island. Over 11 working days by a six-man crew were involved to bring in more than 270 tons of stone and 11 tons of sand, and for tree planting.

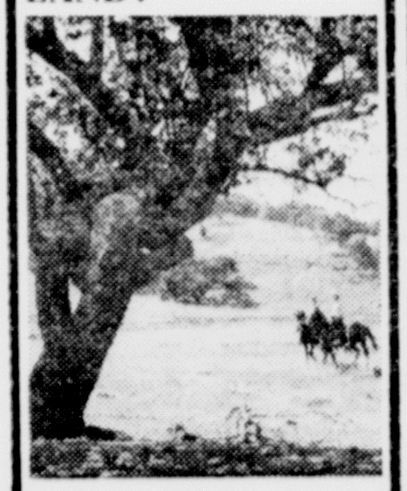

FINISHED PLEASURE ISLAND is one of 12 such islands Bel Marin Keys expects to place throughout its waterway development. Scenes such as this gathering of boat enthusiasts will be common, with invitations to be sent to yacht clubs and with Novato Creek to be dredged for easy access. "MILDEW COMES IN VARIETY OF COLORS: CAN BE PREVENTED"

In Biblical writings they called it "leprosy of garments." Today we call it mildew. It permanently stains your clothing, causes loss of fabric color, and weakens fabric. How can it be prevented? Proper storage is the key, says the National Institute of Drycleaning.

The Institute describes a mildew spore as "a fungal seed which grows into a microscopic fungus and eventually may even sprout roots into your clothing."

Air currents can carry these spores or seeds virtually anywhere. The seed needs only the proper condition to grow on fabric. Interestingly enough, the growth may appear in a variety of colors. The fungus may be green, blue, yellow, brown or red. The combination of dampness and high temperature encourages mildew germination and growth.

When you store a garment, seal it in a drycleaner's plastic bag. But be sure, when you seal the bag, that the temperature is cool and humidity low. Warm humid air in the bag could cool and cause moisture condensation which is important to mildew growth.

Installing Floor Tiles Is Ideal Job For Novice Do-It-Yourselfer

Generally, the large ones are more difficult than the small. But this isn't always the case.

In putting down resilient floor tiles, for instance, it is no more difficult to tile a room of 400 square feet than it is a room of 100 square feet.

NOTE THE words "more difficult." It takes longer to tile a larger room, but it isn't more difficult, simply because the process for laying hundreds of tiles is exactly the same as it is for installing half a dozen.

If you can do six properly, you can do 200 or 400 or 800.

While the novice probably can do a better first-time job with the installation of floor tiles than he can when tackling almost any other handyman task for the first time, there is one area where he must exercise care: In the spreading of the adhesive.

There are two general types of adhesive for this purpose. One is the tar-like adhesive used for asphalt and vinyl asbestos tile. The other is the molasses-like adhesive used for other kinds of tile.

IN BOTH cases, the adhesive usually is best spread with a piece of serrated metal. Most dealers sell an inexpensive kit that includes a notched adhesive spreader. The notches help to spread the adhesive evenly so that too much is not left in one place.

It is when the adhesive is put on too thickly that trouble results.

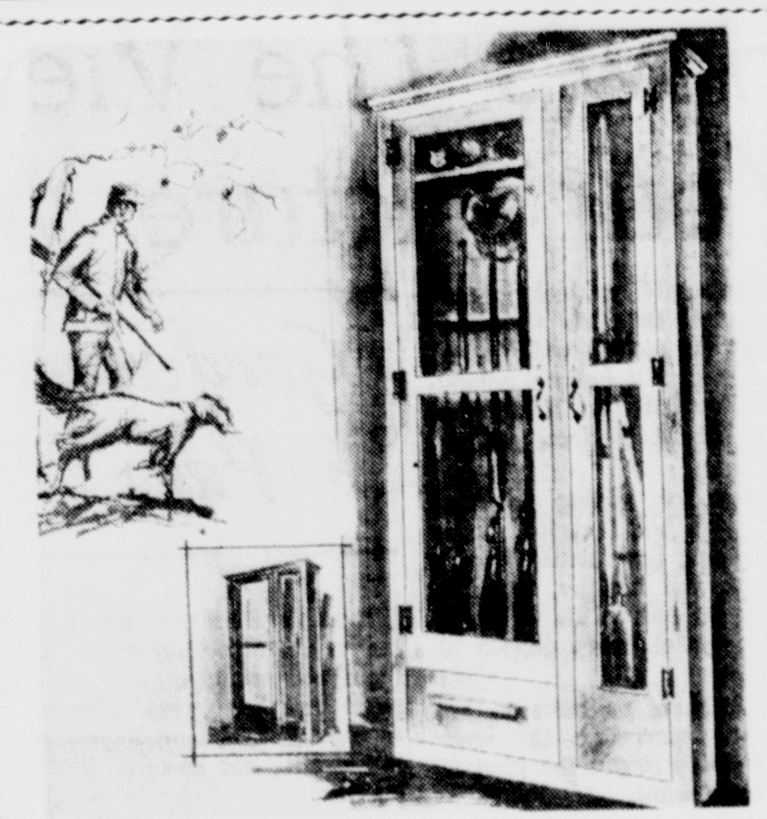

Too thick an application of adhesive causes it to ooze up between the joints when the tile is walked on.

Another cause of the rise of the adhesive to the surface is improper handling of the tiles. Each tile must be butted squarely to the next, but it must be laid in place, not slid there.

THE TYPE OF adhesive used for asphalt and vinyl asbestos should be left on the floor for 30 minutes or more before laying the tiles. In fact, it usually is better to wait for several hours or, if need be, overnight.

The adhesive used for other kinds of resilient tile dries quickly; therefore, the technique is to spread enough for 10 tiles or so, put down the tiles, spread more adhesive, lay more tiles, and so on.

The Basic Plumbing Repair— Changing Of Faucet Washer

Perhaps the most basic of all plumbing repairs around the house is the changing of a faucet washer.

No matter how many times the warning is issued about making certain that the water to the troublesome faucet is shut off, somebody comes along and disregards it.

Therefore, this is not a warning. But if you want to see a stream of water shoot up to the ceiling, forget to turn off the water, either at the shut-off valve under the sink or at the main water valve in the house.

TO GET AT the worn washer, you must loosen the nut directly under the faucet handle. After placing a piece of tape or cloth around the nut so it won't be damaged, loosen the nut with a wrench by turning it counterclockwise. After that, keep turning the handle as though you were turning on the water. The entire faucet spindle will become loose. Lift it up and out.

A few types have threads and must be turned, again counterclockwise.

Sounds easy doesn't it?

It is—nine times out of 10. In the 10th case, you'll run into a little trouble.

THE SCREW holding the washer won't turn or the head will break off. In that event, you'll have to cut away the old washer with a pointed tool. A single-edge razor blade also is effective for doing this, but it is advisable only if you can place the faucet spindle in a vise so you won't risk the possibility of cutting yourself.

When the washer is off, it then is possible to grip the top of the screw with a pliers and turn it counterclockwise to get it out. In very rare cases, the screw will break off. If you are an expert with a drill, the shank of the screw can be drilled out by using a bit slightly smaller in diameter. If not, better not fool around anymore. Take the spindle to your hardware dealer. Most of them will drill out the screw for you. Or you can buy a new spindle.

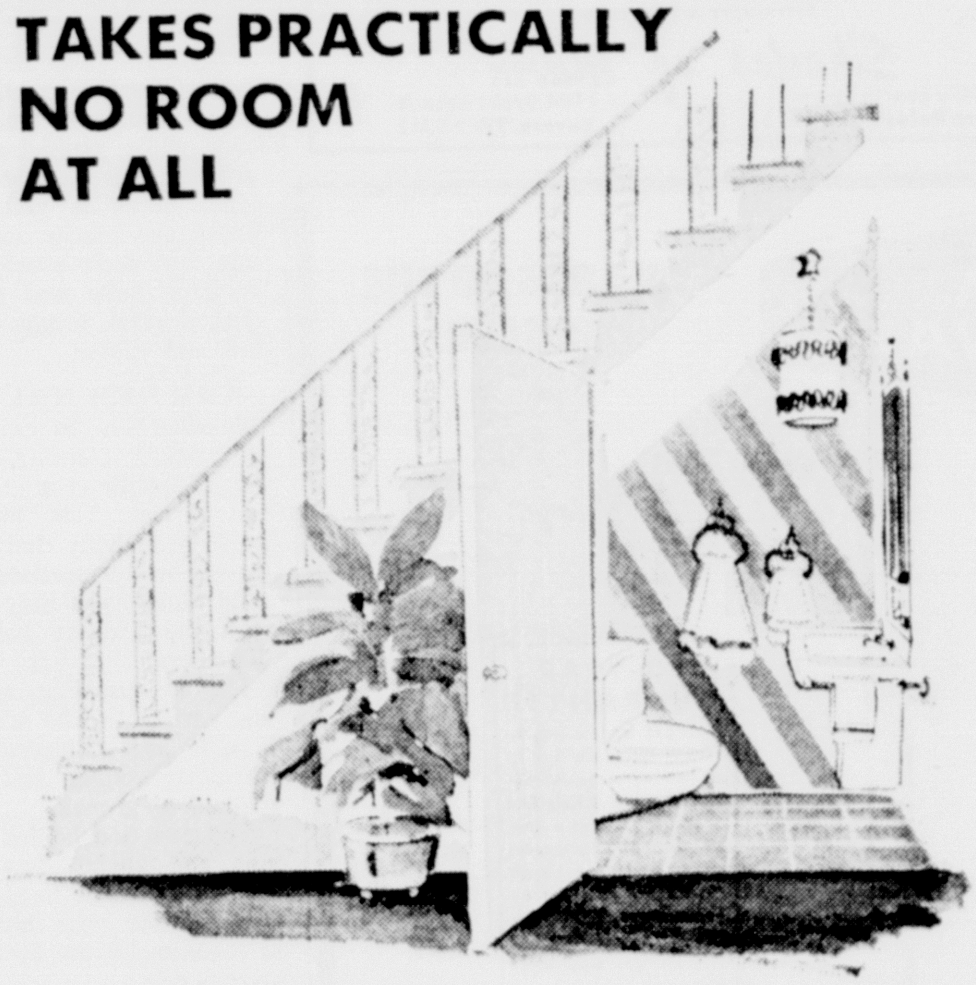

While the trouble mentioned in the previous paragraph doesn't happen very often, it does happen. So you won't get caught short, try to start the entire project at a time of the day when your local hardware store is certain to be open.

NO ROOM for canned goods? This wall-hung cabinet is located alongside the doorway, making use of just a few inches of space. Pantry is just two cans deep. Doors are built of tongue-and-groove panel boards to match the wall. Idaho white pine, western hemlock and western red cedar are good woods for this project.

How's The View From Your Picture Window?

Gardening Page

Occasionally a lucky home owner will take his first look through his picture window and discover that it frames a landscape, natural or man-made, that's almost perfect just as it is.

Except for adding seasonal color with his favorite plants and keeping the "picture" well-groomed and healthy, there is nothing he has to do in order to enjoy it at every season of the year.

But most of us have to arrange—or rearrange—the view from indoors to get the kind of picture we want.

THE FIRST STEP is often to screen out or camouflage any objects that spoil the view. Carefully chosen trees and shrubs are the best material for this as they not only blend into the landscape naturally, but their foliage and flowers are an asset in themselves. Nurserymen have had long experience in working out specific screening problems, and will be glad to advise you on the right materials to choose and the best way of placing them to get the effect you want.

For certain situations he may recommend one of the taller varieties of pittosporum, which will grow to 12 feet or more if left unpruned. The variety called Victorian Box is a popular one for screening because, while it grows tall and dense, it is slender in habit and takes up no more than three or four feet of garden space.

Pittosporums are reliable and easy to grow in any soil, and their clean, shiny foliage and creamy white flowers followed by orange berries make them an excellent choice.

SOMETIMES A small group of trees—or even one tree—will make a good screen in a particular situation. Or a vine on a cleverly placed trellis may answer your need.

The choice is wide in handsome materials that will do the double duty of screening out unwanted views and at the same time providing a garden backdrop for you to enjoy.

After the stage is set by screening, the fun of putting the picture in the window begins. Keeping in mind that this is a view that's on display for 12 months of the year, plan a basic framework of handsome trees and fine, evergreen shrubs.

Remember that there are dozens of evergreens that put on a glorious show of color in season, while providing beautiful green foliage all year long. Azaleas, camellias and rhododendrons are classic examples of this, but don't overlook shrubs such as holly and pyracantha that provide bright berries in fall and winter.

THE NEW HOLLY called "Sparkler" is an excellent one to consider planting right now for its prolific crop of glistening red berries. This, however, is an English holly that does best in cold winter sections. Here in mild Marin, you may do better with the Chinese holly called "Dazzler."

It's a sparkling showpiece, and gardeners who are growing it now are enthusiastic about its glossy foliage and compact method of growth.

You can find hollies in every size and shape, from low, mounding dwarfs to giant beauties, so ask your nurseryman to recommend the best one for your needs.

Holly prefers a rich, slightly acid loam, but will grow in almost any well-drained garden soil, in sun or shade. Growth is more compact in sun, and berry set is heavier.

BOXWOOD, junipers and Pink India Hawthorne are lower growing evergreens to keep in mind, and your nurseryman will show you many more.

Deciduous shrubs and trees that are good-looking in winter as well as summer add important interest and color to the view from indoors. Birch trees, Japanese maples, flowering crabapples and Oriental persimmons are some to consider for winter form and an autumny show in the fall.

This is an excellent time to plant either deciduous or evergreen material from containers, because roots of plants set out now start to grow vigorously in soil that's warm from long, sunny summer days. Thus, the plants become well established before the beginning of winter.

A beautiful lawn or handsome groundcovers are other features in working out your view. And last but not least come the flowers that make your picture window a fascinating and ever-changing scene.

YOU'LL WANT a scene that remains pleasing to the eye throughout the year when you plan the plantings outside your picture window. Here that objective has been attained with a velvety lawn, a well-groomed boxwood hedge and graceful shrubbery that serve as a background for the focal point — a strikingly handsome, evergreen magnolia.

Regular Watering Schedule Vital To Young Trees

Watering at regular intervals is the most important treatment that can be given recently planted trees and shrubs.

The condition of the soil surface is not a reliable indicator of the moisture content in the root zone of plants. The surest way to determine whether or not your young trees and shrubs need watering is to examine soil samples taken at depths ranging from about six to 15 inches below the surface. These samples may be taken with a soil auger.

For optimum plant health, according to the National Arborist Assn., the soil at root growth levels should be moist, but not saturated.

If the soil is dry, water thoroughly at intervals of a week to 10 days; use a hose-attached soil lance for application directly in the root zone if the water supply is limited.

In tree-planting pits dug in clay soil, often water is trapped and keeps the soil too wet for plant growth. In such cases, a tile line draining from the bottom of the pit may be necessary.

GARDENERS CHECKLIST

✓ Last call for feeding camellias. Fertilize them now with the camellia food your nurseryman recommends, and then confine your care to regular watering and disbudding to encourage mammoth flowers.

✓ Prune raspberries, loganberries and boysenberries by cutting to the ground canes that bore fruit this year, and loosely winding the new growth around the trellis.

✓ Shade trees may be planted now, and will develop a good root system before winter begins. The August sun will let you know where you need them. Specimen trees are available in containers now at your nursery. You can see what they look like in full leaf.

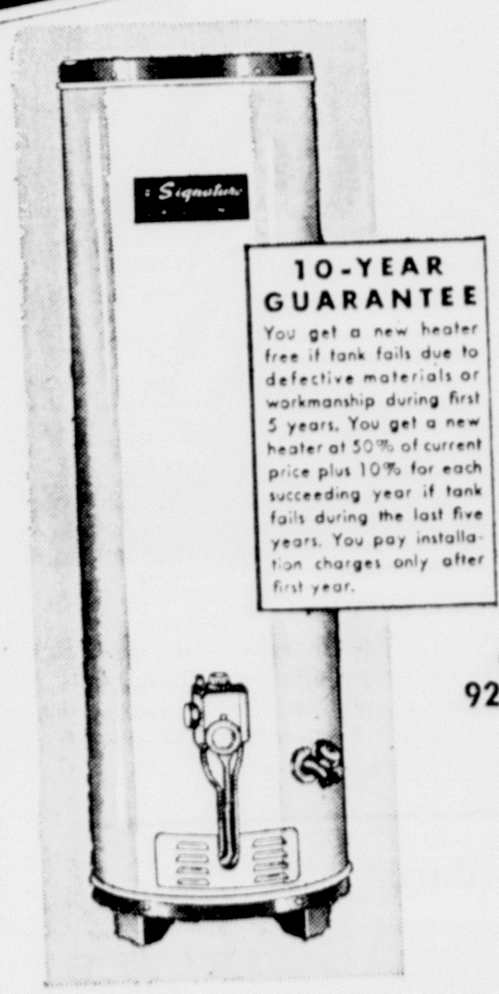

✓ It isn't too early to start planting native shrubs and trees. The low, spreading varieties of caenothus (Wild Lilac) make handsome ground covers and produce clusters of bright blue flowers in the spring.

✓ For baskets of bloom in December, plant seeds of early-flowering Sweet Peas now. Sow seeds thickly in rich soil, and cover the seed beds with wire until the seedlings are four-to-six inches high.

JEAN ARTHUR will be seen in one of her rare television appearances in a role in a "Gunsmoke" episode that will be repeated tonight at 10 p.m. on KPIX. She's shown above with series regular Milburn Stone, who portrays Doc Adams.

SHARI LEWIS sings and dances to "Singin' in the Rain," accompanied by the Hugh Lambert Dancers, on "The Ed Sullivan Show" bill to be repeated Sunday at 8 p.m. on KPIX.

WEEKEND SHOWS

A Repeat Of Tribute To 'Coop'

One of the most popular non-acting actors ever to win an Oscar, Gary Cooper, is the subject of a "Project 20" special to be repeated on NBC-TV and KRON tomorrow at 7:30 p.m.

Walter Brennan, close friend of the late Cooper, narrates the script by Richard Hanser of the three-decades-plus career of the man who became the international symbol of the American.

SATURDAY: Another long-time screen favorite, this one very much alive, Jean Arthur, is seen in one of her rare television appearances in a repeat of a "Gunsmoke" episode (KPIX, 10 p.m.).

Best bet among the Saturday night movies is "Trial," a courtroom drama of 1955 and co-starring Glenn Ford and Dorothy McGuire (KRON, 9 p.m.).

"Thirty Seconds Over Tokyo" with Spencer Tracy and Van Johnson is the movie version of Jimmy Doolittle's B-29 raid of World War II on Tokyo (KGO, 11:15 p.m.).

Al Hirt's guests on "Fanfare" include Liza Minnelli, Jackie Vernon, Johnny Tillotson, and Little Anthony and the Imperials (KPIX, 7:30 p.m.).

Burl Ives hosts the repeat bill at "The Hollywood Palace" with Ann Miller, Anna Moffo and Edgar Bergen among his guests (KGO, 9:30 p.m.).

SUNDAY: "Look up and live" begins a three-part drama and discussion series on the changing roles of women in society and the Catholic church with Mary Fickett as the hostess. The first program is a free-form dramatized history of women (KPIX, 8:30 a.m.).

"The Catholic Hour" continues its series on the church and change in western Europe with interviews of German theologian Rev. Hans Kung and German writer Carl Amery (KRON, 8:30 a.m.).

Sports fans can watch an American Football exhibition game between the San Diego Chargers and the Kansas City Chiefs (KRON, 12:30 p.m.), or the windup of the PGA Golf Championships (KGO, 1 p.m.).

Bobby Rydell tops the guest list on "Shivaree" with Bobby Fuller Four, the Crystals and Dobie Gray also present (KGO, 5 p.m.).

The repeat bill on "The "Ed Sullivan Show" is an unusually strong one including Rex Harrison, Audrey Hepburn and Wilfrid Hyde-White in their "The Rain in Spain" sequence of the movie "My Fair Lady," plus Birgit Nilsson, Alan King, Shari Lewis, Allen and Rossi and George Kirby (KPIX, 8 p.m.).

"The 20th Century" rebroadcasts its report on the race to develop the first supersonic jet airliner (KPIX, 6 p.m.).

Marin County's "Master Plan for Older Adults" will be the subject of a panel discussion on "Bay Window" (KPIX, 11 a.m.). Participants will include Richard Phoenix, coordinator for the Citizens Advisory Committee; internist Dr. Marjorie Belknap; Peter Behr, chairman of the Marin County Board of Supervisors, and Charles P. Weikel, regional representative of the U.S. Office of Aging.

Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, will be quizzed on Vietnam on "Issues and Answers" (KGO, 12:30 p.m.).

"Camera Three" (KPIX, 9 a.m.) offers a salute to William Butler Yeats on the 100th anniversary of the birth of the Irish poet with a reading from and discussion of his work.

As for movies, there's a Bing Crosby-Bob Hope romp, "The Road to Hong Kong" (KGO, 9 p.m.): a Marx Brothers comedy classic, "A Night at the Opera" (KGO, 2:30 p.m.): the touching "Miracle of Fatima" (KRON, 11 p.m.): a good suspense picture, "The Man with a Cloak" with Joseph Cotten, Barbara Stanwyck and Leslie Caron (KTVU, 7 p.m.): the oldie "Lost Horizon" starring Ronald Colman (KPIX, 11:35 p.m.): Charlton Heston as Andrew Jackson in "The President's Lady" (KGO, 10:45 p.m.), and an early Frank Sinatra picture, "Higher and Higher" (KPIX, 4 p.m.
